Under the Alabama Child Labor Law, children under 16 can work after school hours in certain types of work which will not injure their health, or morals. The type of work they may do depends on their ages. They must, however, have certificates.

To work at such jobs as delivery boys, office boys, and in grocery stores, and to work at other jobs not around machinery, minors 14 and 15 will be issued certificates to work after school hours.

Boys 10 and 11 years of age can carry papers in residential sections, but not sell papers on the streets, if they have a carrier badge.

Boys 12, 13, 14 and 15 years of age can sell papers or magazines in the business section if they have a seller's badge.

A number of young boys have been killed in Alabama during the last year while working in saw-mills, Fleetwood Carnley, Director of Industrial Relations, pointed out recently.

Mrs. Daisy Donovan, Chief Child Labor Inspector, said that every effort was being made to stop the employment of children around sawmills and in factories where they might be seriously hurt or killed.

Children under 16 years of age cannot work before 7 o'clock in the morning and after 7 o'clock at night except boys employed to sell or deliver papers woh may work until 8:00 p.m., Mrs. Donovan pointed out.

"Our child labor laws are designed to protect the health and welfare of boys and girls," Mrs. Donovan says. "The Legislature passed these laws so that every boy and girl could get an education, and to protect them from working in places which would encourage delinquency."

"We urge all parents, employers and boys and girls to cooperate in protecting the welfare of children," Mrs. Donovan said. "Going to work at too early an age, or doing types of work which may injure the health, or working around machinery may not seem serious at the time. The cost, however, may be less happiness or less opportunity to make a good living in the years ahead."

The Alabama Child Labor Law does not protect the boys an dgirls engaging in agricultural employment. If such agricultural products are sold in interstate commerce, there are certain Federal regulations which govern this employment. For further information consult your Superintendent of Schools.

Those who hire boys and girls without the necessary certificate or badge to legalize their employment are guilty of violating the law and are punishable by a fine, Mrs. Donovan pointed out.

A GOOD BREAKFAST STARTS DAY RIGHT

The right breakfast pattern assures a family of the correct amount of nutrients at the beginning of the day when they are needed most.

Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist, points out that if this is kept in mind, breakfast planning becomes quite simple. Just remember to include each of these food groups in every breakfast: Fruit, cereal, milk, bread, butter or margarine, and a beverage.

"Men and teen-age boys require more food at each meal than women and girls," agrees the nutritionist. "For this reason they should eat larger portions of each food or should eat additional eggs and breakfast meats that contain valuable supplies of protein and minerals.

SAVE SEED FOR NEXT YEAR'S COTTON CROP

Auburn, Ala. — During the rush to get cotton out of the field and to the gin, farmers should not overlook another important job — saving seed for planting next year's cotton crop.

Furthermore, O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist, urges farmers who planted breeder or pure, first-year seed of recommended varieties to make every effort to keep seed pure when picking, handling and ginning.

"Unfortunatly," discloses Andrews, "many farmers in the southern part of the state will not be able to save planting seed since excessive rains and high temperatures lowered their germination. Of course, under these conditions, seed are unfit for planting purposes."

The A.P.I. Extension Service recently released a publication called NEW WEALTH FROM SOILS. It gives results secured by 66 unit test demonstration farmers in 26 counties located in six Alabama soil regions. Ask the local county agent for a free copy.

PARK ATTENDANCE FIGURE [illegible]IMBS TO NEARLY 750,000

Montgomery- The attendance at Alabama's six major state parks during the state fiscal year which ends September 30 is sure to top the three quarters of a million mark, Conservation Director Bert. E. Thomas has announced.

Thru September 11, figures compiled by the Conservation Department's Division of Parks, Monuments and Historical Sites show that over 742,000 visitors took advantage of the scenic attractions and recreational facilities offered at the state's six top resort areas.

This year attendance at the state's most popular park should almost equal the total attendance reported for all of the state's major parks last year. At Gulf State Park, on the tip of Baldwin County, 346,376 guests had been reported thru September 11. Last year 394,973 guests, a new high in Alabama park attendance at that time, visited Cheaha, Chewacla, DeSoto, Gulf, Oak Mountain and Monte Sano Parks.

Runner-up to Gulf State Park in popularity this year is Monte Sano Park, in the mountains of Madison County, with an attendance of just over 100,000 reported so far. Next in order of popularity are Chewacla, DeSoto, Oak Mountain and Cheaha parks.

With the end of vacations and the beginning school year, park attendance is beginning to slacken. Overnight and day-use facilities will still be available for visitors, according to Park Chief James L. Segrest. Park concessions at Chewacla closed down September 15. Those at Cheaha will close on the 19th and DeSoto on the 30th. The concessions, as well as the cabins, at Gulf State Park will stay open all winter.

MORE LIVESTOCK

One of the best ways to increase income from more acres on most farms, particularly acreage taken out of such cash crops as cotton and peanuts, is to produce more livestock.

CHILTON COUNTY SANS DIPHTHERIA DEATHS IN 1948

Montgomery- Chilton County was not one of the 20 Alabama counties from which diphtheria deaths were reported last year.

The State Department of Health today revealed that 27 deaths were attributed to that disease during the year. The announcement was based on provisional reports prepared by its Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Diphtheria deaths by counties were announced as follows:

Jefferson, 7; Talladega and Walker, four each; Macon and Mobile, three each; Winston, two; Butler, Choctaw, Coosa, Cullman, Dallas, DeKalb, Franklin, Lauderdale, Limestone, Marion, Montgomery, Morgan, Perry and Randolph, one each.

ALABAMA'S GAME INVENTORY BOOK MADE AVAILABLE

Montgomery- The Department of Conservation has received its initial shipment of "A Game Inventory of Alabama" and is engaged in filling the flood of requests which came in after its announcement some weeks back, Conservation Director Bert E. Thomas states.

The book is by Dr. Fredrick Barklow, Jr., professor of zoology in charge of wildlife conservation and management at North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering. Dr. Barklow was Alabama's first Pittman-Robertson project leader and coordinator. The booklet was published by the Pittman-Robertson Projects Section of the Division of Game, Fish and Seafoods.

Containing 140 pages, the booklet details the method and the findings of the state's game inventory survey which began in 1939. Its contents include the data collected by Dr. Barklow and his former associates in the research project.

The booklet may be obtained free of charge by writing the Division of Publications, Alabama Department of Conservation, 7 North Bainbridge Street, Montgomery 4, Alabama.

AS SOIL GOES, SO GOES THE NATION-

It has only been in recent years that men have realized there is any connection between human nourishment and soil fertility. Although the field is still relatively new, much has been learned, however, in the last decade.

Dr. Russel M. Wilder of the Mayo clinic who is internationally [illegible]ed as a nutrition expert has o[illegible] that human erosion seems in[illegible] to follow soil erosion. He point[illegible] classic examples the once f[illegible] gions of Asia Minor and the [illegible] North Africa. Now denuded by erosion these are inhabited today by natives who are among the most backward peoples of the world.

[illegible]e in the United States where ag[illegible] as practiced by the white [illegible]s scarcely 300 years old, the effects of soil erosion on humans is already seemingly apparent.

Experimental data to prove just how soil fertility affects human nutrition is [illegible] to obtain because humans can[illegible] caged like white mice and fed [illegible]tal diets for succeeding generations. But research, nevertheless, is [illegible] way.

Experiments at the University of Il[illegible] College of Agriculture have proved that corn grown on poor land [illegible]nly 380 pounds of protein to [illegible]ls while corn of the same variety, grown on good land, showed [illegible]00 pounds of protein. Experiments at Iowa State College proved the mineral content of crops produced on land [illegible]rectly affected by soil condi[illegible] this experiment Iowa State [illegible]at applying [illegible] to poor land increased the phos[illegible] content of the grass as much [illegible]rcent.

[illegible]iam A. Albrecht, chairman [illegible] the Department of Soils at the University of Missouri who is widely recognized for his work in nutrition, has another significant conclusion. While per-acre yields of both corn and wheat have increased, he points out, the protein content of both grains has slowly declined due to decreasing soil fertility [illegible]r sections of the country are steadily turning to soft, low-protein strains of wheat and in 10 years the protein concentration of corn has dropped from 9.5 to 8.5.

Dr. Hugh H Bennett, chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, points out that the United States has already ruined or badly damaged 282 million acres of once fertile topsoil, and is ruining another half million acres an[illegible]l of the United States, erosion is carrying away far more nutrients than are used by all crops.

It is well that the nation's farmers in more than 2,000 soil conservation districts are beginning to look toward weather-proofing their land against erosion and maintaining its fertility. For in a few more generations, the city housewife may take a hand.

Supposing the future housewife should require proof from her green grocer of just how much protein is contained on her one-dozen order of roasting ears, or how much healthful [illegible]d calcium are in the head of lettuce. Where would that leave the truck farmer producing crops from ground low in minerals and other nutrients?

Alabama State Fair Starts Next Monday, October 3rd

Residents of Chilton County today were reminded by Probate Judge W. L. Parrish that the Alabama State Fair to be held in Birmingham the week of October 3-8th bids to be the best in the history of the event and urged all residents of this county to visit the State Fair if possible.

A brightly colored poster now adorns the walls of the Chilton County courthouse telling of some of the top attractions of this year's Fair. The poster reminds Chilton Countians that the State Dairy Cattle Show and the State Beef Cattle Show will be held in the mammoth new cattle barn -the cow palace- that will be dedicated at this year's Fair. The new steel structure is 200 by 220 feet and will house 700 head of cattle. More than $15,000 in prize money in addition to the coveted blue ribbons will be offered the state's cattle winners.

Attention is again focused on the Industrial Arts Building and its story of Alabama industry. Last year this new building was dedicated and the blending of agriculture and industry at a state fair gained national recognition for the State Fair.

A Fox Hound Show, a Coon Dog field trials, and bench show and a rabbit show are features that will be shown in the Pool Building. A quail exhibit will also attract attention in this building.

There will be the 4-H, FHA, FFA and other exhibits in which the youngsters of the state will show the progress that they have been making in their home and farm work.

In addition to the educational and cultural features this year's Fair will also present a colorful grandstand show, auto races and the Royal American Shows, featuring Gypsy Rose Lee on the midway.

"Be sure and attend this year's State Fair," Judge Parrish urged, pointing out that "the annual State Fair adds to the cultural, educational, and financial improvement of the state as a whole and to every individual citizen. The constant striving to improve stock breeds and the cultural arts is enhancing the revenue coming into Alabama and is bringing more prosperity to the section and to each of its residents. Alabama is progressing rapidly and the State Fair is adding materially to this progress, "Judge Parrish said.

Henry Adair

Henry Adair, assistant principal at Chilton County High School, who died last Saturday morning, will be missed by more people in Chilton County than any one we know. He was universally loved and admired by the young, the middle aged, and the old.

He will be sorely missed by his co-workers in education, civic club work and his work in the Methodist Church. In the past six years Henry Adair had grown to love Chilton County and her people. Chilton County and her people loved Henry Adair.

Un-Appreciation

That's a bad word, sure—but so was the conduct of the football players who were given free passes to the Wadesonian Theatre the other night by Charles Wade, owner. "Raising the roof" is not one way of showing appreciation, and that is just about what the boys tried to do.

It was fine of Mr. Wade to show these boys this special recognition, but we are sure he did not intend for them to take over the theatre and be a nuisance to paying customers.

It's An Order

You know, and we know, that a habit is hard to break. Well, one habit that had better be broken is that of parking on the East side of Highway 31—and also on the West side, unless you drop in a coin in that pretty little gadget that stands at intervals along the curb.

According to our Mayor, C. Fenn Jones, operation of the meters went into effect last Monday morning and the "no parking" order went into effect at the same time.

Now the best way to remember the new rules is to get a ticket, but the policemen do not want to give anybody a ticket unless they just have to. They would much rather have your complete cooperation.

Try to remember the new parking regulations along the highway.

Law Enforcement In Walker County

Coal miners in our neighboring county, Walker, nearly all belong to the union—the United Mine Workers. A relatively few do not. All of the union miners are on strike. A few strip and small wagon mines are operating with non-union workers. The union men want all mining operations in Walker County to halt during the strike. A few small mine owners are determined to keep working.

Violence has flared up and one man has been shot, in a gun battle at an operating strip mine.

It is Sheriff Grover Baggett's duty to suppress violence and rigidly uphold the law. There is no law against anyone working that wants to work. Sheriff Baggett seems bent on trying to "compromise" the matter. There should be no compromise with law violation, even under the excuse of trying to keep peace.

If the sheriff cannot enforce the law and preserve peace with the force he has available, he should call on the Governor of Alabama for reinforcements through the state highway patrol or by calling out the National Guard.

We do not oppose union organizations of workers as such. We do oppose violence and breaking the law by any union or non union men. We must live under the "law of the land" as legally constituted, or the "law of the jungle" as enforced by brute strength. We happen to prefer to live under legally constituted laws. The latter must be enforced at all times, else the law of the jungle immediately takes over.—Cullman Democrat.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Banks should have nice, soft, easy chairs in the lobby for the use of folks who wish to borrow money. Or make deposits. Or cash checks. No matter what time or what day you go to do business at a bank you have to wait—and wait—and wait. . . .Now if they would just put easy chairs there so we could rest our tired, broke, carcasses, the suffering would be much more comfortable.

Herman Crew tells us he caught fifty-one king mackeral in Florida the other week. He also says that is the highest number that has been caught there this season. That's a lot of mackerel. Confidentially, we are not sure he even caught the one, much less the 51. He hasn't brought any around as proof. Until we see something that looks like a mackerel, all we can say is that it looks fishy to us.

A bakery is opening in Clanton where Jimmy Warren's Studio was until recently. That's next door to Broadhead Market. Or to take the neighbor on the other side, that's next door to Clanton Bargain Store. We show no favorites.. The young fellow who will operate the bakery has had several years experience with Bob Windham, we understand, and is preparing to give Chilton County folks some nice pastries.

Can Floyd Bussey, who operates Floyd's Glass Shop, do nice upholstery work? He sure can. He can make an old worn out chair look like a brand spanking new one in no time at all. If you need your sitting furniture repaired and upholstered see Floyd, his work and prices will surprise you.

Rev. A. T. Hickman will be back on our editorial page again next week. He has been too busy for the past few weeks with revivals and such to write his column, but he has told us that he would be on hand next week.

The Clanton Lions are going to sponsor a rodeo at City Park next month. Plans have already been made and the local drug stores have ordered several gallons of Sloan's liniment in case any of the local Lions take a notion to "roar" that night or try to make like Gene Autry. It's all for a good cause of course and deserves the support of every businessman and citizen of the county.

Earl Parrish says he won't ride. Says he got kicked by a jackass in the last Donkey Ball Game sponsored by the Lions and he will definitely not be around the business end of any animals at the rodeo.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

EARLY AMBULATION

There is no such thing as bed rest. There is no state of suspended animation in which a person can be put, and found to be in the same physical condition one, two, or ten weeks later.

At two widely separated universities, the effects of bed rest have been tested on individuals, the periods of the tests varying from six to sixteen weeks. The average man's heart decreased 11 per cent in size during the tests and his blood volume decreased from 5 to 15 per cent. There was a 35 per cent reduction in reaction time, and there was a marked loss of vitamin C and thiamin, plus a marked inability to do sustained work.

The first surgeon who, some fifty years ago, got his patients up out of bed after operation on the first or second day, reported unusually good recovery, much better than anything ever before reported in medical literature. Other surgeons considered this pioneer radical and crazy.

Surgeons today are getting their patients up early, and reports from thousands of cases are amazing in all types, from simple appendectomies to complete removal of the stomach. Those who get up on the first or second day leave the hospital an average of five days sooner and get back to work an average of five weeks sooner. Complications have been reduced by more than one-half, morphine requirements by two-thirds. These early-out-of-bed-after-operation patients go on regular diet on the second or third day and gas pains are practically eliminated.

Observers state that the dramatic thing about these patients is the fact that they have the will to get out and get well quickly. Early ambulation is the latest procedure.

EXTRA COLOSTRUM FOR CALVES RECOMMENDED

It's good economy to feed calves extra colostrum when it is available.

J. R. Parrish, A.P.I. Extension Service dairy specialist, explains that calves receive milk known as colostrum from their dams for approximately three days after birth. When this period is extended, calves maintain higher blood levels of Vitamin A and carotene, make more rapid gains, and exhibit a more healthy appearance.

The Legislature shall then take into consideration the loss to the institution affording such free educational benefits under this Act in making its annual appropriations to such institutions, colleges, universities and other schools.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

ENCROACHMENT

The word, encroachment, is pronounced with the sound of the long O. This word is seldom used but it has an important meaning. The simplest illustration I can use is taking more than your share of the bed and pulling the cover off your wife some cold night, and to go farther it might cause a fight. Encroachment always has a reaction. The state government encroached upon the Mississippi River and pushed it back and piled up mountains of sand against it and took that fine delta soil from it but once and a while it gets on a rampage and washes the levy away and drowns everything before it. When I lived in New Orleans the water in the river stood ten feet higher than the house I lived in at highwater stage. Should it have broken through the levy it would have covered half the city or more. We were always uneasy during high water. Any encroachment against nature will invaribly react to destroying its victims.

REV. H. M. SANDLIN

A man bought a large tract of land down the creek from the highway. He cut a road a mile down to his land and built a house and watered his flock from the creek water. Another man bought up all the land between him and the highway and put a fence across this other man's road, and changed the channel of the creek to around the man's farm until his cattle could not get water. It is not hard to tell what that man would do. It is just one example of a man encroaching upon another man's right—in his own right. Of course there is a law against such encroachment here, but with nations and states there is not a law every time to enforce righteous rules for all the people. The interstate law is for that purpose. That very thing has caused great nations to go to war with each other. When one class, one people, or groups of people encroach upon the rights of other people or classes it genders trouble. I trust you will think encroachment out and figure out if you have been encraoched uon or have you encroached upon any one else.

MARKETING AGREEMENT FOR ALABAMA PECANS

Auburn Ala. — A Federal marketing agreement and order regulating the handling of pecans grown in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and South Carolina has been issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The regulatory provisions of the program will become effective prior to the beginning of the pecan shipping season, the exact date to be announced by the Secretary of Agriculture. Other provisions, covering administrative organization and non-regulatory provisions became effective September 20, 1949.

The agreement and order establish grade and size regulations designed to maintain orderly marketing of pecans and prevent movement of low quality and small-size, unshelled pecans from the five-state production area.

It is expected that popularity of unshelled pecans sent to market will be increased because of their improved quality resulting from the new regulations.

USE ALL OPEN LAND

More livestock will balance Alabama's agriculture, and production of livestock is one of the most important ways to make use of all open land.

If They're Wild, They Belong To Tik!

Saw Tik Anderson last week and was reminded of the first time I ever spoke to him. The missus had sent me out one Saturday afternoon to hunt for some blackberries.

I took a long hike and couldn't find any. Finally, I came to Tik's house along that low stretch east of the fork on River Road. "Hi there," I says, "any blackberries around here?"

Tik says, "There used to be —but I don't know much about things that grow wild." Later, I found how Tik supports his family by picking berries. Ever since, I've been like the rest of folks in town—respectful of his right not to tell where "his" berries grow.

From where I sit, respecting other folks' rights comes natural in our town . . . in America for that matter! Whether it's a person's right to enjoy a temperate glass of beer or ale, or whether it's Tik Anderson's right to keep secret where his berries are, it's all a big part of a real democracy!

You wouldn't use a trailer rig to haul a pillow

You wouldn't buy a trailer rig to carry a pillow but if you wanted to you could buy a trailer load of pillows made in Alabama and haul them in a trailer rig also made in Alabama. You would haul them on roads of cement or asphalt, likewise made in Alabama. The pillows you could place on beds, springs and mattresses made in Alabama, covered with bedspreads also made in Alabama.

These are just a few of the thousands of different items already made in Alabama — ranging from food products to heavy machinery.

Senior Class Grieved Over Passing Of Mr. H. M. Adair

We, the members of the Senior III Class of Chilton County High School are deeply grieved that we have lost our beloved friend and advisor in the sudden and untimely passing of Mr. Henry M. Adair, who has been a sponsor of Senior III Classes in this school for the past six years.

As assistant principal and sponsor of the Beta Club, his leadership has had, and will continue to have, an undying influence upon our student body. He unselfishly gave his time and energy and rendered his services voluntarily to his Church and the community of Clanton. No teacher is more genuinely mourned by his pupils in the sense of a personal loss to such an extent as is Mr. Adair.

We, therefore, resolve that a copy of this resolution be published in each of the county papers, be made a permanent record in the minutes of our class, and be sent to the members of the family of our dear friend and teacher.

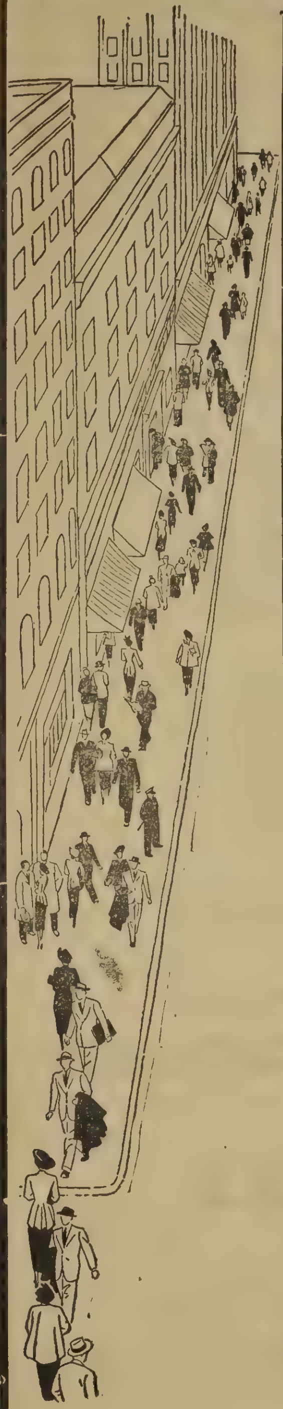
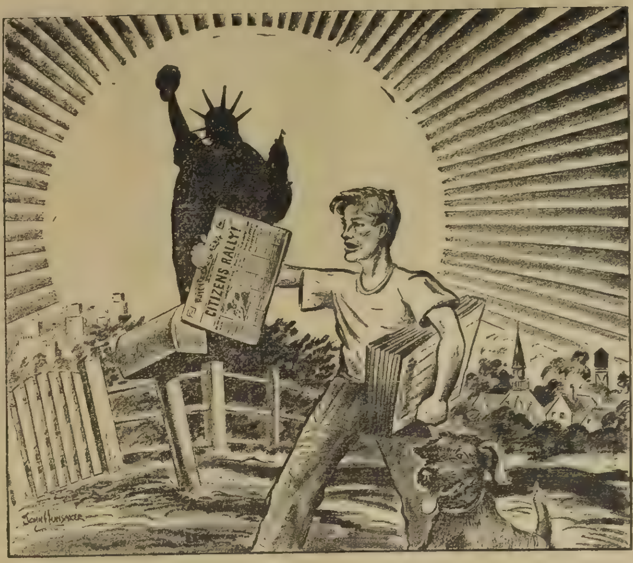
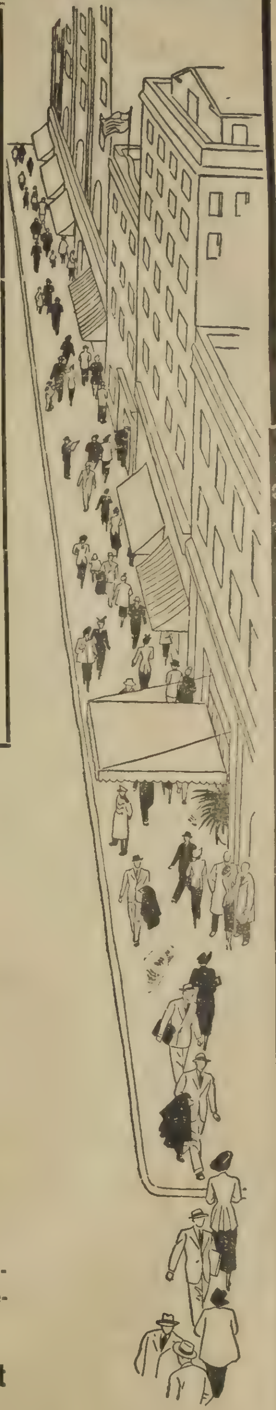
'FREEDOM GOES WHERE THE NEWSPAPER GOES'







THE HERITAGE OF A FREE PEOPLE

Do you want to see Democracy work? Go into any store in Chilton County! There, the customer is always right. . .and all customers have equal rights. Americans of every class or creed are privileged to pick and choose, to select or reject, whatever goods are offered for sale. Chilton County merchants dispense democracy with every commodity they sell. Through them the bounty of this great land is made available to all people.

Day in and day out you can see this great Democracy at work in every store. . . where variety and service, so important to your Democratic right to pick and choose, are at your beck and call. In the large selections of merchandise you find prices comparable to those found anywhere. It is the constant endeavor of sales people to help you choose what best suits your budget and your purpose.

Look anew at your Chilton County stores. Count the blessings that you enjoy under a free economy, and pay tribute to your merchants who serve the cause of freedom by serving you!

If Your Merchant Doesn't Have It- He Will Order It

Trade at Home! As Clanton Prospers, So Will Its People.

FREEDOM of CHOICE

is the Birthright of every American.
--- THE RIGHT to pick and choose

YES, that same FREEDOM gives you the privilege of trading anywhere you choose--

WHEN you spend your dollars at home you not only are displaying the faith you have in your HOME TOWN or COUNTY, you are also helping your hometown merchant to serve you more efficiently.

WHEN you show your faith in your hometown merchants by purchasing everything possible from them---then, those same merchants are going to show their faith in you by purchasing a wider variety of goods for you to choose from and at prices comparable to, or even lower than you will find away from home.

PUT your dollars to work AT HOME first-

DOLLARS spent away from home seldom ---if ever---return home.

DOLLARS spent at home will remain at home until it has exchanged hands at least 10 times (which is the average number of times your dollar is re-spent before it leaves your town or county.)

IF each of the estimated seven thousand (7,000) families in Chilton Co. spend an average of $100 per year away from home (and-that is a very conservative figure), they would be spending seven hundred thousand dollars ($700,000.00) away from home each year --- Yet, if that same amount were spent at home with a turnover of 10 times each year, it would mean that seven million ($7,000,000) more dollars would be at work at home than there is at present.

LET'S BUILD OUR TOWN AND COUNTY BY BUYING EVERYTHING POSSIBLE AT HOME.

Courtship, Wedding Materialize From Ad Placed in Newspaper

St. JOSEPH, MO.—A five-day courtship and marriage all of which resulted from a newspaper want ad had Charles Donelson, 21, marveling at the ad's pulling power and quick results.

"When things got going, they really went," he said.

Donelson was married to Irene Krebs, 18. It was a double ceremony which also united Donelson's business partner, Orville Mortimore, 20, and Miss Delores Haskey, 19.

Donelson specified in his ad, run on a Tuesday, that he wanted a bride by Saturday. He is an ex-soldier and former circus fire-eater.

It was fortunate, Donelson said, that love set in so soon after he met the blue-eyed, brown-haired Miss Krebs, when the deadline was so near.

It was Mortimore's suggestion that his roofing-business partner come along for a dual marriage ceremony.

Cupid scored a direct hit right after Donelson arranged a drugstore meeting at soon as the bride-to-be phoned him.

After that romance had tough competition from persons who took a fancy to the couple in love.

Donelson had the extra problem of dealing with some 300 wife applicants who took a fancy just to him. Too late, they learned his choice was Irene.

Phone calls, interviews, photographers' flash bulbs, and offers of gifts led the couple through four hectic days. Donelson lost seven pounds.

Once, rumblings of commercialism tainted the prenuptials. Donelson threatened to go off to near-by Troy, Kas., for the dual ceremony, which was the way he planned it with Mortimore in the first place.

Sincerity spread to those who wanted to help out. Cash came in for the license, and cars and drivers were available on a loan basis. A gown for the bride and a suit for the bridegroom, plus the ring, were given.

Frogs Blitz Two Streets As Mobilians Puzzled

MOBILE, ALA.—Thousands of dime-sized, mud-colored frogs, apparently all hopped up over something, recently blitzed two streets here and had residents rubbing their eyes in amazement.

J. M. Ramsey said he noticed all the frogs seemed westward bound from a nearby water hole and he figured they were "just migrating."

Paul English said his duck flock found the frogs at dawn and by 8 a. m. had eaten so many they couldn't stand up.

"They just sat on the ground and kept eating every frog that hopped close enough."

Where the frogs came from or why was a mystery.

Science

Big Things, Small Measure

PHILADELPHIA. — Some of the "biggest things" to be achieved in engineering in the next few years will be measured in millionths of an inch!

Dr. Haakon Styri, research director for SKF Industries, makes that prediction in giving this year's college engineering graduates a career tip. Gauges that can record accurately down to a millionth of an inch are needed more and more by virtually every type of industry today, he said, because today's mass-production techniques demand equipment that can make fast and accurate checks on the precise machining of thousands of mass-produced parts so they can fit where they are supposed to without individual cutting and fitting.

"New and better gauging equipment is in greater demand now than ever," said the SKF scientist. He noted that 40 years ago measurements of one ten-thousandth of an inch were considered the ultimate in perfection, whereas now it's possible to determine these to within a few millionths of an inch.

New Philippine Code Will Abolish Divorce For Any Reasons

MANILA, P. I.—This island government is stamping out divorce. Sometime in 1950 local laws will forbid divorce on any grounds.

The new Philippine code, enacted at a recent session of the congress, will become effective one year after its publication.

Even under existing laws, divorce in the Philippines is extremely difficult. The only grounds are infidelity on the part of the wife or husband—and the guilty spouse must be imprisoned before the divorce may be granted.

The new code allows legal separation both of body and property, but neither spouse may remarry. The new code also provides for legal separation when one spouse tries to kill the other.

Foreign divorces obtained by couples married in the Philippines are not recognized by Philippine courts.

Dr. Jorge Bocobo, former associate justice of the supreme court and for 17 years dean of the University of the Philippines law college, called the abolition of divorce here a "backward step." He was chairman of the code commission which prepared the new compilation of civil laws for enactment.

The new code provides, however, that the wife's consent is necessary before any sale of conjugal property is made by the husband. Under the old law, the husband could dispose of conjugal property without even telling his wife.

Until the Civil War took most of Alabama's male teachers into the Confederate Army, women did not figure in the state's public education system.

They are going to K.C. — Pictured above are the new Alabama state FFA officers. They will head a special train of FFA members next week going to their National Convention in Kansas City, Mo.

The Alabama delegation composed of FFA members and advisers will leave Sunday, October 9th, and return October 16th. In addition to attending their convention, they will visit the American Royal Livestock Exposition, also being held in Kansas City the same week.

Future Farmers going on the special train are from Alabama, Georgia, and Florida. On their return trip they will stop over in Nashville Saturday for "The rand Ole Opra."

45 WILL DRIVE NO MORE DUE TO JULY HIGHWAY MISHAPS IN STATE

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's death toll got an appalling boost when the 444 accidents investigated by the highway patrol during July snuffed out 45 more lives and inilicted injuries on 277 other persons.

These statistics were released by State Public Safety Director Bankhead Bates, who pointed out that traffic tragedies have already killed some 282 people during 1949.

Exactly one-fourth of the July accidents—111—happened when meeting vehicles sideswipped each other. Of the drivers involved in the 444 accidents, 717 were men and 43 were women. Bates said that almost half of the drivers claimed that they had been driving at least eleven years.

During July, 1948, the patrol records that 41 persons met death on Alabama's highways, with the total fatalities coming to 218 through that month.

GOVERNOR ORDERS CUT IN STATE CAR OPERATION COSTS

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor James E. Folsom has issued an executive order designed to cut down on the cost of operating state vehicles.

The order advised drivers of state vehicles to "use only regular grade gasoline." The governor said, "Premium prices will not be tolerated." There is usually a difference of three cents per gallon in the cost of high test gasoline and regular.

In addition, the order regulated oil changing in the state vehicles.

"Change oil not less than every 5,000 miles, or each spring and fall, whichever comes first. Stationary engines and tractors will be changed in proportion."

The Department of Finance was instructed to audit and enforce the governor's order.

GOVERNOR AFFIXES "JOHN HANCOCK" TO JUDGES' PAY HIKE BILL

Montgomery, Ala. — Some 51 circuit judges got their annual salaries boosted from $6,000 to $7,500 this week when Gov. James E. Folsom signed into law a bill recently passed by the Legislature.

Actually, several of the judges will get more than the $7,500 paid out by the state, for some of the countries also chip in on the salaries of the legal presiding officers.

An earlier bill provided the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh districts with additional judges.

Carrollton, the county seat of Pickens County, was named for Charles Carroll, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. One of Carrollton's most distinguished sons of history was General John Herbert Kelly of Confederate Army fame. General Kelly was killed at the Battle of Franklin, Tenn.

Bathing Was Once Held To Be Crime in America

RICHMOND, VA.—Bathing, a daily habit with most Americans, was once a crime in some parts of this country.

Just 200 years ago laws in certain sections prohibited bathing or bathtubs in houses. Modern Americans accustomed to bathing in luxurious bathrooms may find it hard to believe that a home owner in colonial Virginia had to pay a $30 annual "license" if he wanted a bathtub in his house or that jail sentences threatened . Philadelphians who took more than one bath a month.

As late as 1845 some communities were still enacting laws to protect the people from "the dangers of bathing," especially in cold weather. The Early American bathroom, drab forerunner of today's model gleaming with chromium, clay tile and mirrors, seldom had space for a tub.

Ben Franklin helped overcome opposition to the bath. He designed a portable copper tub, tailored to his dimensions and shaped like a shoe. Water was heated from a fire in an opening at the heel. About 40 years after Franklin's death, Philadelphia had more than 1,500 bathtubs.

CARD OF THANKS

Many thanks to the people of Mulberry Church for the many encouraging letters and cards, kind words and gifts received after our parting from Mulberry. We love you and our prayers are with you. We thank you for your kindness to us during the past year. — Rev. and Mrs. James R. Coleman and Jimmy.

Doctor Holds Persons Need Bed to Themselves

NEW YORK.—A room of one's own is one of the physical conditions most conductive to a restful night, according to Dr. Victor G. Heiser, well known medical advisor.

It is the relationships with other people that sap most of an individual's daily energy, explains Dr. Heiser.

"Sleep is designed to rest the conscious mind," he says. "There is little rest if it is kept near the threshold of our consciousness by our awareness of another person."

Complete solitude is necessary to relax from the contacts of the day, free from the need to attune oneself to the moods and needs of another. Only then can fatigue be eased so that one is refreshed and ready for the next day.

Unfortunately, it is not always possible—especially in the crowded living conditions and small homes of today—to have a room of one's own. But, even if a room must be shared, each person should have a comfortable bed to himself.

Absolute relaxation and perfect rest are never possible if a bed is shared.. Although both may sleep, each person is still aware of the presence of the other and this awareness affects the restfulness of their sleep.

Tests have shown that the average person turns and moves 20 to 45 times a night, but when the bed is shared these movements are necessarily restricted. The individual cannot move freely in such a way as to thoroughly rest each part of his body. Only in a bed of his own can he turn and toss at will, without disturbing or being disturbed by another.

A room of one's own is ideal—a bed of one's own is a necessity.

Thorsby News

(By MISS C. N. TURNQ UIST — Correspondent)

Thorsby Institute News—

Mr. H. M. Adair, a former teacher of Mathematics at Thorsby Institute, came to the Institute about eight years ago. He took the place vacated by Miss Onita Klingelhoefer, who had resigned to marry Mr. Volney Bucher. Mr. Adair was very much missed when he left Thorsby Institute to teach at Clanton High School, and we are very sorry to learn of his recent death. He gained his first experience in teaching at this school.

The Helen Keller Literary Society met Friday at 3:00 p.m., for the purpose of nominating and electing officers for the coming semester. Those elected were Sylvia Lambert, President; Bessie Plumlee, Vice-President; Ruby Gandy, Secretary.

Congregational Church News—

The Christian Endeavor class of the Congregational Church gave a social Saturday night at the dining hall. A nice time was had by all.

The program Sunday night was followed by an interesting talk by Miss Marguerite Davison, who brought all the news from our friends at Piedmont.

Personals—

Miss Marguerite Davison was welcomed back to Thorsby for a few days after a long absence. Her many friends here were happy to see her again. She is staying with Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Maddox.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lambert and son of Montgomery, Ala., visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Raybon, this past week end.

Mrs. H. R. Maddox has been on the sick list for several days, and while she is not able to be at work, she is improved and is up and about the house some now. We hope for her a rapid recovery.

Mrs. R. M. Woodward of Alabaster, Ala., was a Sunday guest of the N. C. Petersons.

Mrs. Ralph Brown (Mrs. Alpha Brown) of Lily, Pa., arrived last week for a visit with relatives and friends here. She was a dinner guest of Mrs. A. V. Fair on last Sunday.

Mrs. Ira Sorrell is in Birmingham with her mother who is seriously ill.

We were happy to see the Franklin Garage open for business again, after being closed for some weeks, due to the illness of "Rick" Franklin. We hope that Rick will soon be entirely well and able to serve his customers again. He is one of the best automobile mechanics we know of, and he is greatly missed when not at his place of business.

Little Judy Childress is confined to her home with fever. We hope she will soon be well again and able to be back at school. Judy is the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Childress.

Mrs. L. M. Jackson returned last week from Ft. Worth, Texas, where she spent several weeks with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Gibson. Mrs. Jackson returned from Texas with her daughter, Mrs. Dewey Robinson, and Rev. Robinson, who were en route back home from Mexico, where Rev. Robinson went to conduct evangelistic services.

Little John Gamble returned Sunday night from Birmingham where he went to visit with his daddy, Mr. Turner Gamble, and his grandmother. John says he had a wonderful time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiriam Hayes and children of Mobile, Ala., spent the past week end with the Bill Hayes family.

Miss Margaret Ward of Birmingham visited with friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. J. Archie Ogburn spent Monday in Montgomery on business.

Mr. Farrell Gibbons who has entered Birmingham-Southern College for his first year, spent the week-end at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Gibbons. Farrell says he likes school alright so far, but that he is of course a wee bit home-sick. We wish for Farrell much success as he enters his college career.

Mrs. Thomas Hayes, Mrs. Coy Gibbons and Mrs. Floyd Mims motored to Childersburg one day last week, and visited with Mrs. Ralph Pate.

The Ogburn family enjoyed a trip to Guntersville, Ala.. last Sunday where they went to attend the Golden Anniversary of Mr. Ogburn's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Waldrop. The affair was held at Union Grove near Guntersville at the home of the Waldrops. Relatives of this "young couple" who were entertained with a bountiful dinner, numbered some 200 people. In the afternoon a reception was held for friends. The guests were received in the living room, were ushered into the dining room to register, and where the many gifts were displayed and then were served refreshments. Mr. Ogburn says there were about 400 people who attended this anniversary celebration.

A number of people here attended the funeral service for Mr. Henry Adair, in Clanton last Sunday. Mr. Adair was a teacher at Thorsby Institute before going to Clanton, and he made many friends here who were shocked and deeply grieved over his sudden passing.

Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Kelling returned last week to their home in Waverly, Mo. after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Porter. Mrs. Kelling has been here for some time due to the illness of her father, but he is sufficiently recovered, where she was able to return to her home. We hope Mr. Porter will continue to improve.

Birthday Party—

It was a happy occasion for 31 little children last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. V. Rogers as she honored her little daughter, Linda Carol, on her 7th birthday with a lovely party.

The dining room was very beautifully and colorfully decorated in colors of pink and green, with pot flowers, ferns and cut flowers throughout the entire house. The long table covered with a beautiful white cloth, with individual baskets of pink and green, all the table decorations were of the same color, with the large birthday cake in the center. High School—

The Maplesville football squad will be going through some lengthy scrimmages this week in preparation for Friday night, October 7th—home game against the Isabella squad. This game will be the "Red Devils" first home game and their fans are expecting a very entertaining game.

The Isabella backs who try to gain ground through the Maplesville line when the two teams collide here Friday night are very likely to find their progress impeded by the rough and ready guards. The powerful line of the back field sparkle with offensive threats that make the "Red Devils" a potent foe for any high eleven in the county.

The Maplesville squad is expected by Coach Kelley and all who have watched them play to rate among the better teams by the end of the season.

Although Maplesville lost the game with West Blocton last Friday 13-21. That was not bad, for this was the first time the Maplesville team had scored against West Blocton.

A carload of the Maplesville football boys had a car wreck near Centreville Friday night. It seems that the brakes failed to function at an intersection.

Charlie Farley, son of Mr. Leige Farley of near Maplesville accidentally shot himself in the leg last Saturday. He was carried to Dr. Day's Clinic where the bullet of a .22 rifle was removed. He is only able to walk by use of crutches.

Alabama has unlimited deposits of limestone and dolomite rocks which are used for furnace flux and lime burning.

VARIETY MEATS VERSUS COSTLY MUSCLE MEATS

Many homemakers use variety meats to help stretch the meat dollar because they are less expensive than muscle meats.

Explaining this statement, Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutrionist, says that when meat with bone is bought for roasts, broiling, or frying, a serving for each adult is usually one-half pound and four to six ounces for children, depending upon their ages.

"On the other hand," says the nutricnist, "about one-half of these quantities is sufficient when boned roasts, cutlets, hamburgers, Swiss or cube steaks, liver, tongue, heart, or kidneys are served."

It was in Dadeville's old Dennis Hotel that Johnson Hooper, while solicitor of the circuit, prepared his notes for his famous book "Simon Suggs."

ASK FOR DIRECTIONS ON MAKING A COMPOST

The local county agent has detailed directions for building and using a compost pen.

"The compost," says J. C. Ford, A. P. I. Extension Service garden specialist, "is made mainly from waste material, a little manure or rich dirt, and 150 to 200 pounds of cotton fertilizer to a ton of compost."

POULTRY BY PRODUCT

Tests over a four-year period, show that [illegible] fertilizer greatly increases the yield of tomatoes, lima beans and other truck crops.

ONE-VARIETY COTTON IMPROVEMENT CONTEST

Auburn, Ala. — Prizes will soon be awarded Alabama's one-variety community cotton improvement contest winners, announces O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement contest winners, announces O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist.

A state prize will be awarded the leading one-variety community in the State. Also, a district prize will be awarded the leading one-variety community in each of the four Extension Service districts.

All prizes will be used for constructing or equipping a building or club house or for some project that will benefit all people in the community.

Andrews adds that any of the State's 375 one-variety community cotton improvement associations organized prior to June 1, 1949, are eligible to compete for awards. However, the state winner in the 1948 contest will not be eligible to compete. District winners for 1948 cannot compete for district awards but may try for the State prize.

All one-variety community presidents interested in competing for these awards are urged by Andrews to see the local county agent for complete details.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY PAYS REVENUE DEPARTMENT $522,284 FOR KILOWATT TAX

Alabama Power Company delivered to the State Department of Revenue today a check for $522,284 in payment of the 1949 kilowatt hour tax. This payment is $44,501 larger than the one made in 1948.

This tax is in addition to all other taxes of every kind and is levied as a license or privilege tax upon every public utility engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling hydro electric power in the State of Alabama for the privilege of engaging in such business. The entire amount of the tax goes into the special educational trust fund of the state. Out of the payment, elementary and high schools in the State will get $411,326 and institutions of higher learning will get $71,845.

All counties in the state participate in this tax. Those counties receiving more than $5,000.00 include: Baldwin, Calhoun, Chambers, Coffee, Colbert, Covington, Cullman, Dallas, DeKalb, Elmore, Escambia, Etowah, Houston, Jefferson, Limestone, Macon, Madison, Marengo, Marion, Marshall, Mobile, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Talladega, Tuscaloosa and Walker..

BOLL WEEVILS IN WINTER

Some farmers believe that boll weevils spend the winter in the forest. This is not true. They spend the winter at the base of cotton stalks, under rocks, in old scare crows, in hollow fence posts, under shingles, in decayed siding on machine sheds, and other places except timber stands.

In January, 1865, Union troopers entered Guntersville and burned all but seven of the town's buildings in the business district.

Salty soda crackers covered with a powdered sugar icing and a few nuts will save the contents of the cookie jar for mealtime serving.

State Welfare Department Appropriations are Reduced

Effects of reduced welfare appropriations made by the 1949 Alabama Legislature will be felt by public assistance recipients in Chilton County during October, Margaret Lee, Welfare Director said today. This information was made public September 29, following approval by the State Welfare Board of the statewide welfare budget for 1949-50. Individual payments in Chilton County will be cut more than 10 percent—from an August average of $22.76 to a budget average for next year of $21.40 per case per month. Cuts in old age payments will be from an average of $21.25 in August to $20.70 as a monthly average during the 1949-50 fiscal year.

The Chilton County budget of $326,201.97 is a part of the statewide budget calling for an expenditure of $30-597,619.35 during 1949-50. The county budget represents $224,614.74 Federal, $50,612.57 State, and $50,614.66 local (county and city) money.

Welfare Director Margaret Lee, pointed out that individual payments will have to be reduced because 1949 legislation reduced State and local welfare appropriations, and because the number of needy cases to be cared for during the coming year is expected to be greater. "Our 1949-50 Chilton County budget provides for a monthly average of 1,467 cases," the director said. This is 86 more than the number provided for under the 1948-49 budget. Miss Lee said under this new budget there is less money for each needy person in the county. She said also that the Federal Government now requires all people to be granted aid when found eligible for assistance, even if it calls for a further reduction in grants.

Miss Lee said less State and local (county and city) funds could be budgeted this year in Chilton County than were spent in 1948-49 because three sources of State and local welfare funds are expected to produce less money in 1949-50. First, welfare appropriations from the State General fund, both to the counties and to the State Department, were reducted by about 10 percent by the 1949 Legislature. Second, there is an estimated decrease in liquor profits which will reduce city revenues earmarked for welfare from this source, and third, an appropriation out of Confederate Pension residue for a moment at Vicksburg will decrease available State funds for old age assistance.

Of particular concern,. Miss Lee said, are the hardships that will be faced by needy people who have to manage on checks that already are too low to cover bare necessities. Miss Lee said, too, that the handicapped people not eligible for Federal aid will face the sharpest cut in payments—from $15.19 in August to a monthly average next year of only $12.14 per case.

CHOOSE RIGHT FABRIC FOR PLEASANT SEWING

Auburn, Ala. — To show individuality, details of a garment to be made at home can be varied from the original pattern.

"However," warns Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist, "the amount of time you have and sewing experience should guide you in your choice of both the material and pattern."

For instance she explains that sewing short cuts can be used easier on firmly woven, medium weight fabrics than on sheer, slippery rayons. Solids or small all-over designs are simpler to handle, need less detailed trimming, finishing, and perfect workmanship.

"Also," adds the specialist, 'buy the right amount of material not from a personal estimate, but from the chart on the back of the pattern. The chart gives the yardage for the different width fabrics, sizes and styles."

A&P, TOO, TAKES OFF ITS HAT TO MR. C. WHIT BLOUNT

OF WAYNESBORO, GEORGIA

-AND TO ALL OUR OTHER GOOD COMPETITORS WHO HAVE TAKEN A SIMILAR STAND

Competitor Denounces Suit Against A&P

THE BOLD three-column advertisement in the current issue of the Waynesboro True Citizen catches the reader's eye. We quote it in full.

To our notion that advertisement by C. Whit Blount states the economic and governmental aspects of the case against A&P with a clarity and forcefulness that most of the editorial comment has lacked.

Also it strikes us as a fine example of sportsmanship in business.

Incidentally, it is about as effective an advertisement as could have been written for Mr. Blount's "Groceteria".

Makes you sort of wish you were in Waynesboro to trade with him, doesn't it?

[An Advertisement From The
Waynesboro True Citizen]

A Word For Our Competitor The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

There has been a move by the anti-trust department of the Federal Government to destroy our leading competitor, the A&P Food Store.

It may seem odd, but we are opposed to this move.

The A&P Co., is definitely our strongest competitor - they keep us hopping. But, we are still in business - And Expanding. We do it by selling quality merchandise, buying at a close margin and selling at CLOSER margin.

The so called "trust-busters" charge that the A&P Co. control some of the production and processing ends of the food business. As a result, they hold the cost price down on foods.

WELL, WHAT'S WRONG WITH THIS??

If A&P holds the costs down, it makes our suppliers hold their costs down to the same competitive level. They can sell cheaper, AND SO CAN WE.

We intend to continue to try to sell better merchandise than A&P; We also will continue to have competitive prices.

BUT, We don't believe the government, or any individual should try to break up a firm that is doing a good, clean, efficient job of serving the people of this country.

Beggar Had Gem Fortune In Hand, Didn't Know It

CAIRO, EGYPT.—A ragged beggar who pleads for alms in the shadow of the pyramids had a fortune in stolen jewels. But he didn't know it. Police for months had been hunting $30,000 in gems taken last summer from Mrs. Nahas Pasha, wife of the Wafdist party leader.

Finally they caught the thieves. After holding out until the police fed them a chicken dinner, they admitted they had given many of the jewels to a beggar named Bahluk. The jewels were wrapped in a package and the beggar didn't know what they were, they said. He had been instructed to hide them.

After questioning, Bahluk was released. "I just never got around to looking inside that cloth," he admitted ruefully.

Stamps

'Possible Phenomenon'

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. — Marine Warrant Officer Rudolph R. Hendrick, postal officer of the Marine Corps recruit depot here, recently became the envy of the philatelic world when he discovered a "possible phenomenon" in the 1938 series of President James Monroe stamp.

While purchasing stamps for parcel post, Mr. Hendrick discovered a double overprint of two plate serial numbers. This unusual oddity is extremely scarce because the post office department destroys such errors in printing before the stamps are released for sale.

Only two full sheets with the double plate serial numbers remain in existence, one being in the possession of Mr. Hendrick. WO Hendrick's only comment was, "This sheet can be obtained at a price."

Kentucky Man Is 'Inventor' For Inventors

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Way out in a cornfield near Burlington, Ky., lives Frank Sinton Milburn, whose claim to distinction is that he operates one of the most unusual plants in all the Middle West. This is true for many reasons, but probably for the chief reason that Milburn is the sole worker in the plant.

The building which houses the industry has a puzzling collection of complex tools and machinery, dies, jigs and other items. It does practically no manufacturing, this strange industry—in fact the less production required, the better Mr. Milburn likes it.

It is difficult to describe the operation as a business; it is more like a profitable hobby.

Milburn likes engineering problems, so he has found his occupation in solving the problems of big and little people who want help.

Helps Other People

For 15 years now, Milburn has been wrestling with other people's problems. He has his shop at Burlington because he likes the solitude; he sympathizes with folks who have to work in downtown Cincinnati.

His business, essentially, is to take on the engineering of ideas of embryonic inventors.

His contact media are two-line classified ads in such magazines as Popular Mechanics. These bring in problems from all sorts of inventors. And they are interesting stories he gets.

"I have seen more rat traps and combination salt and pepper shakers than anybody in the world," he observed with a broad grin.

About 80 per cent of the inquiries are of questionable usefulness, but the other 20 per cent contains useful and potentially worth-while ideas for new products, or improvements of existing products.

He was in earnest when he pondered the sad plight of many worth-while items or gadgets. The inventor may have a practical idea; Milburn may be able to engineer the product satisfactorily for production; but the inventor generally is without the medium for bringing it before the public.

"If we could put across the ideas of these 20 per cent it would make jobs and generate business," he observed.

Needs Many Tools

Hence, the business is principally an engineering one. This requires a multitude of tools, dies, jigs and fixtures. But even in this field, the business is different from the engineering firms which function as service units to large business concerns.

Milburn is conscious of the limited resources of the people who come to him with ideas. So he uses all sorts of mechanical improvizations to hold costs to a minimum.

Yet, all his customers are not individual inventors. He has done some rare precision work for a watch company to facilitate that company's wartime production of precision measuring instruments. He has a rare assortment of watchmakers' tools and jigs. He did considerable engineering and production on a tiny item that went into aircraft engines built by Wright aeronautical corp. And he answers the call of many manufacturing companies around the country for special engineering work.

Boy Catches 3-Pound Bass With Bare Hands in Pool

CINCINNATI. — If angling were as easy as this, every fellow could . . . but the story speaks for itself:

Buddy Owens, 14-year-old Fort Thomas youth, has accomplished something that many anglers travel all over the country to do and often never succeed. Buddy caught a smallmouth bass that weighed more than three pounds —and he caught it with his bare hands!

The youth said he awakened early and left his home to caddy at the near-by Highland country club. Upon passing the Covington waterworks, which is adjacent to Alexandria pike in Fort Thomas, Buddy noticed something splashing in the water.

After scrambling over the fence, Buddy saw a large fish swimming in circles. He waded cautiously into the water, came upon the fish from behind and tossed it upon the bank.

The fish was more than 18 inches long and weighed more than three pounds, Mrs. Owens reported. It was impossible to check the evidence, however, since Mrs. Owens confessed that the family had eaten the fish for dinner.

The fish probably had come out of the Ohio river, been sucked up into the intake pipes and transported to the settling basin of the waterworks. Whether it had been brought in when smaller or had arrived recently was not determined.

At any rate, Owen Owens Jr., father of Buddy, said he had fished in Florida, Michigan and other good spots and had yet to catch a smallmouthed bass that large. He will check the waterworks basin from now on, he said.

ECONOMIC GLANCE

U.S. Future Looks Bright

NEW YORK. — Despite what appears to be a general air of gloom permeating most official and expert thinking on the probable future of the United States, one agency thinks everything's going to be all right.

That organization is the Twentieth Century Fund, a non-profit foundation established in 1919 by the late merchant prince and philanthropist, Edward A. Filene. Its purpose is to carry on scientific research and public education on economic problems.

And, amid all the reports of recessions, unemployment and declining trade, the fund has sounded a long-range note of optimism. In a statistical study of American development, past, present and future, the agency says that by 1960 the United States could be providing adequate food, housing, education and medical care for every living American.

"We now have the highest standard of living ever attained by man," said the study. "The average American earns more money, eats better food, has a better house, better clothes, schools, theaters, more conveniences than the average citizen of any other country, anywhere, at any time."

Dynamic Country

But that is nothing compared to what we can do. Right now we are just taking a little rest during the march along the road of progress. America is a dynamic country, always expanding, always going forward. Despite occasional setbacks, that is what the record shows as far back as comprehensive statistics are available.

"The whole secret of our constant advance is our ability to increase our productivity, our output per man-hour of work," says the fund.

"We have stepped this up from an average of 27c worth of goods and services turned out in an hour's work in 1850 to $1.15 in 1940 and to an expected $1.61 or more in 1960. (See chart in adjoining columns.)

"We have done this mostly by substituting the machine for human sweat and animal power. By 1960 we shall be using 100 times as much mechanical energy per man-hour of work as we did in 1850.

"This increased output per hour worked is the only way to make possible higher wages to workers, lower prices to consumers, greater returns to managers and owners, and greater leisure for all of us."

The report points to a crucial fact: "We have made our progress up to now because we have had an expanding system. We are constantly starting new businesses, turning out more goods, new products, we build new factories, schools, hospitals, museums. We provide new services, more leisure."

Can Keep It Up

But can we keep it up? The fund says we can. And we can do this despite the rigors of inflation and deflation.

Our system is strained by our tendency to go too far and too fast in boom, and to drop too swiftly and too deeply in bust," says the study. "But we are aware of the danger. We are making efforts to level out the ups and downs of our business activity.

"For the long pull we can see that both boom and bust are passing phases in the steady record of our long term advance."

Poor Highway Systems Costly to Car-Owners

WASHINGTON. — Poor highway systems over the country are the greatest obstacle to economical and low-cost automobile transportation, an analyst of the Brookings institution reported.

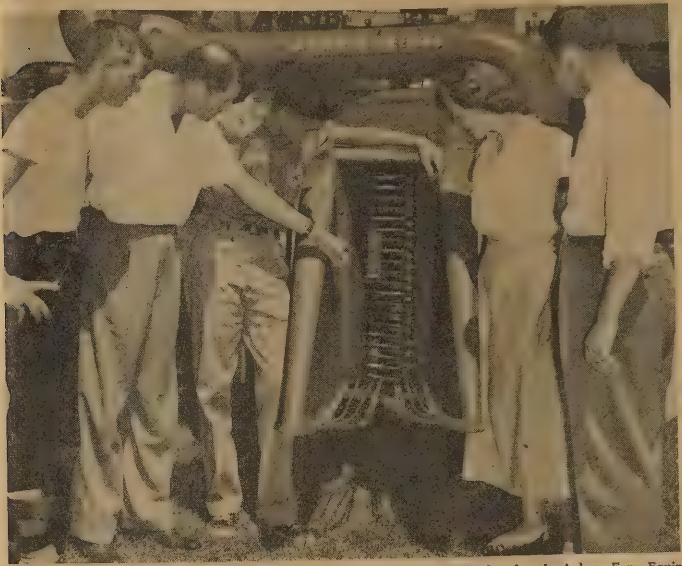
. . . . . . SECTION OF - CHILTON COUNTY NEWS - CLANTON, ALA. . . . . . .



NO BACK BENDING NEEDED. Looking over part of a big machine displayed at the Auburn Farm Equipment Show are 4-H Club youngsters from Talladega County and their leaders. The machine is a huge cotton picker—one of the many pieces of equipment designed to take hours of man labor out of Southern farming.

Horsepower Aplenty---No Mules Allowed

MACHINE-MINDED Alabama farmers saw in Auburn recently one of the most complete displays of farm equipment ever assembled in this part of the country.

When they watched the "Parade of Machines" on A.P.I.'s Bullard Field during the Farm Bureau convention, visitors saw a complete demonstration of how Southern agriculture can be handled mechanically.

The show, sponsored by A.P.I. agricultural engineers, was in Auburn for two weeks. Prior to the performance for farmers it was given for 4-H Club members at the State Camp and for equipment dealers attending an annual meeting there. In all, more than 4,000 people saw the demonstrations.

While the display remained in Auburn, the field was open to visitors. Representatives from leading manufacturing companies, along with college engineers, were on hand to explain details of operation to spectators.

Each company's machinery, marked with the colors of its trade mark, made a unit in the parade. The bright colors of red, orange, green, yellow, and gray made the exhibition of ton-weight machines a colorful event. A dusting demonstration by plane was added for the benefit of spectators during each show, and one plane was parked on the field for inspection.

Equipment for doing every job—from ground clearing to harvesting and storing—was demonstrated. Examples of how man labor is being removed from farming were shown in combines, loaders, cultivators, balers, corn and cotton pickers and all types of planting and cultivating equipment.

Not a mule was in sight.

Plant Oats Now!

OATS are one of our very best grain, grazing, and hay crops. They help increase livestock numbers. They make good green grazing for hogs. Oats should be planted by October 15. Use a variety tested by the Experiment Station, treat seed for smut, and fertilize when planting.

Protect The Corn Crop

WITH Alabama harvesting one of the biggest corn crops on record this year, wise handling of the grain can mean thousands of dollars to farmers. If the crop is to bring farmers a maximum income it must be protected from damage.

The best corn in storage is that which is harvested soon after it is matured and dried. Harvesting early cuts down on damage from both rot and weevils. This practice greatly reduces the number of weevils carried to the crib. It must be remembered, however, that cribs need cleaning before the new crop is stored.

Before treating, floors and walls not made of tongue-and-groove material should be covered with heavy kraft paper or tar paper. Another aid to control is to spray the inside of the crib with DDT before fumigating, says W. A. Ruffin, A.P.I. Extension entomologist.

Corn should be fumigated two weeks after it is placed in storage. There are a number of fumigants on the market for this purpose, asserts Ruffin, but farmers should buy one that contains 80 per cent carbon tetrachloride and 20 per cent carbon bisulphide or a mixture of 75 per cent ethylene dichloride and 25 per cent carbon tetrachloride. Both of these are preferred over carbon bisulphide, which is highly explosive, he adds.

There are other fumigants that can be satisfactorily used. Whichever one the farmer selects should be used according to recommendations on the package. In most cases one to two gallons of material is enough to treat 1,000 cubic feet of space.

The important thing is to remember the three main steps in harvesting and storing—harvest corn early; store in a tight crib; and fumigate two weeks after storing.

HORSEPOWER HERE TOO. Farmers "took to the air" during their Farmer's Day program in Montgomery County recently. The purpose of the airplane tours was to observe agriculture of that section.

Here, examining one of the planes used in farm tours, are, left to right, W. C. Jackson, Montgomery, Route 2; Ed C. Hall, Montgomery, Route 2; C. H. Warner, Sr., Montgomery, Route 2; and Murray Wingard, granddaughter of Mr. Jackson.

Farmer A. G. Harrell, Melvin, Alabama, is proud of the fifty-bushel-per-acre corn he produced this year. The Choctaw county farmer, a retired county agent, is carrying out his farming with a minimum of man labor. His fifty-bushel corn, left, was planted and cultivated with six furrows to the row. He is harvesting the crop with hogs.

At right, farmer Harrell is shown with County Agent Mathew Sexton on the banks of his farm pond where he spends many a leisure hour.

Former County Agent Enjoys Life And Farming

LAZY acres have no place on the farm of A. G. Harrell, Melvin, Alabama. He makes every field produce two crops a year.

With the exception of 60 acres of woodland pasture which he plans to improve, the 590 acres operated by this Choctaw County farmer are doing double duty—and the soil is getting better every season.

Practicing what he preached for years, Harrell, a retired county agent, is proving that the recommendations he taught are sound and profitable.

"I did not come to the farm to make money but to enjoy life," he explains. "However, I am finding that good practices pay big dividends. I know that land can be called on for higher yields and at the same time be improved."

To demonstrate his point the farmer tells about his use of pasture legumes and grasses. He also points to the row crops he produced this year using high fertilizer applications with legumes.

Minimum Of Man Hours

Harrell planted and cultivated 50-bushel-per-acre corn this year with only six furrows of ploughing to the row. As soon as his hogs finish harvesting the crop he will chop stalks and weeds with a stalk cutter and turn the field over to Caley peas planted in the corn at laying-by time. He planted his corn behind Caley peas, fertilized it with 400 pounds of 6-8-4, and side dressed with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda. For hogging corn, he planted N. C. 1032 hybrid, but other fields were planted to open-pollinated varieties. He planted all corn with thick spacing and cultivated it no more than was absolutely necessary.

Using electric fences to control hogs, the farmer easily shifts them from one section to another. He keeps kudzu grazing available for shoats on corn at all times.

Farmer Harrell keeps an accurate record on all livestock gains. When he turned 14 hogs on a patch of corn this Fall he first took them across the scales. At selling time he will know exactly what they have made for him. In one project last year he made $480 in hogging four acres of corn.

A Livestock Lover

While he is breaking records with his corn production, this lover of good livestock makes pastures his long suit. Among the grazing crops he uses are Kobe lespedeza, Kentucky 31 fescue, Caley peas, Johnson grass, white Dutch, and Dallis grass. He is increasing white Dutch plantings as rapidly as his one-acre seed patch can make seed. And he is planting Dallis grass by spreading hay cuttings over new areas.

Making profitable use of the abundant grazing on this place is a herd of beef cattle. Mr. Harrell has 50 Hereford brood cows, two registered bulls, and seven heifers.

In his hog production program he uses four sows and breeds Duroc-Poland China cross hogs for market. Besides hogs and beef cattle he has a small herd of sheep and some goats.

Still true to his intention of enjoying life, Farmer Harrell has at the back of his farm a fish pond well stocked with bass and bream. He even grows his own fishing canes for harvesting the crop.

Latest Dope On Hogs

RAISING Good Pigs is the title of a new publication for Alabama hog growers. The publication is a brief summary by G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist, on how to raise big litters of big pigs.

Free copies are available at the offices of all county agents.

Better To Burn Buildings

A better way to control boll weevils than to burn forests would be to burn cotton houses and fences. It would be less expensive and more effective than the practice of destroying timber.

It has been established that more boll weevils spend the Winter around field houses and along fence rows than stay in deep woods. Actual tests indicate that practically no weevils winter more than 15 to 20 feet from the edge of cotton fields, declares I. R. Martin, A.P.I. Extension forester.

Martin also reminds would-be wood burners that there are laws against starting fires. The Alabama Forest Fire Law provides a penalty of up to $1000 fine and 12 months in jail for persons starting fires through negligence or carelessness.

Any landowner or tenant who fails to plough around areas to be burned, or who does not notify the county forester or patrolman of his intent to burn, may be prosecuted, the forester warns.

'Grand Old Man' Speaks

AT a recent radio broadcast in Auburn, Edward A. O'Neal, III, told the story of development of Alabama agriculture and that of the nation. The Lauderdale County farmer, who for 16 years was president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, emphasized the importance of a sound organization for farmers. He also praised highly the work of America's land grant colleges.

Below are excerpts from his talk recorded for posterity by Radio Station WAPI:

"A major decision for me was a choice between law and land. I decided in favor of the land, or of farming. And I've spent the remainder of my life as a farmer, near Florence, Alabama, and in agricultural leadership in my home county of Lauderdale, my state of Alabama, and my country. . .

ED O'NEAL

"As a young farmer I soon discovered many handicaps, first of which was a lack of adequate scientific information about farming. Science had not come to farming to the extent that it had come into other occupations and professions. . .

"It was there as a young farmer, struggling to succeed, that I came to grips with the realization that farming needed more brains. . .

"It was those pioneer county agents who helped start American farmers on the way to becoming the most efficient producers of farm products in all the world. They did it by bringing science to us on our farms. . .

"Basically, the Farm Bureau to me is an organized expression of scientific information from the land-grant college in each state. A cardinal principle of the Farm Bureau is to stick to, work with, and support vigorously the land-grant college. . .

We Now Have. . .

"And so we now have in this country the best and most efficient system of farming in all the world. We have also laws for a sound economic balance between groups and interests, provided we keep our laws and our economic forces in proper balance as intended.

"Our standard of living is second to no other nation. Our social and economic life are at a new high level; and we still believe profoundly in the Divine. . .

"Now, as heretofore, the challenge to leaders in agriculture, in business, in industry, in finance, in education, and in government is in behalf of a sound and prosperous nation in a sound and prosperous world at peace.

"Here in the United States, as elsewhere, there is a right and there is a left in viewpoint, in ideology, and in philosophy. But there is also in between these two extremes the big middle group—the great balancing group—the group that includes most farmers and their associates; all of whom believe in and work for a sound national economy with economic justice and full opportunity for all.

"We seek not favors but opportunity—the kind of opportunity that is both fair and wholesome to one and to all.

Hens With Good Care, Housing Lay More -- Make More Money

JUST as the contented cow gives more milk contented young hens make better layers. If they are to have happy hearts and healthy bodies they need good care, especially in Winter.

Below are nine tips to the poultryman by John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension poultryman. They outline details on the care of laying flocks in Winter.

1. If pullets are not in Winter quarters, they should be moved there now.
2. The floor should be covered with six to eight inches of good litter.
3. Have an automatic fountain, or two three-gallon water containers for each 100 pullets.
4. Provide three five-foot feed hoppers and a special hopper of oyster shells for pullets.
5. Each pullet will need nine inches of roost-pole space. Twenty individual nests, or 20 square feet of community nest space, will be needed for each 100 pullets.
6. Provide lights in the house. If possible, keep lights on to lengthen the day to 13 hours.
7. Cull the flock rigidly and sell all low quality pullets.
8. All pullet flocks are recommended, but if both pullets and old hens are to be kept on the same farm, they should be housed separately if possible.
9. Keep a close check on the body weights of pullets. If they are light, increase the amount of grain being fed.

Talk About Terracing

THE winding gullies and sweeping layers of sand that move down across unprotected fields not only make eye sores on the farm, they sap strength from the soil and drain dollars from the farmer's pocket.

Such unsightly wounds are most common on cultivated areas that are poorly terraced. Although these fields are fewer in Alabama than in the past, many farmers still need to improve or rebuild terraces.

A.P.I. Extension engineers remind farmers that now is the time to do something about terraces. The program may include construction of new terraces, conversion of ridge terraces to channel terraces, or maintenance of old terraces now serving their purpose.

In reminding farmers that row cropping on rolling land requires terracing, the engineers say power farming requires Nichols terraces. They add that all terraces must be laid out and constructed so as to control runoff water. Terrace channels need to be built with a capacity of 10 to 12 feet; otherwise settling and silting may make them too small.

Farm tractors and tractor plows can be used to build terraces of the required capacity if the operator knows how to do the job. Terraces may also be converted by simply plowing-out the width of channel needed for the slope of land.

Maintenance of terraces should be done as a part of the soil preparation job. In doing this task, channel width should get special emphasis. Many good channel terraces are lost because of narrow channel maintenance.

Building Better Beef Herds Is Aim Of Alabama Cattlemen

WITH a steady increase taking place in Alabama's acres of abundant grazing the number of beef animals going to market is also climbing. And livestock experts say more cattle are sold in October than in any other month.

Wise cattlemen in all counties are now selecting heifers to keep in the breeding herd. Although it may be hard to hold high-priced calves, enough of the best heifers to replace 10 per cent of the old cows should be kept.

The Black Belt Substation at Marion Junction kept heifers for replacements that would have brought $150 each as beef. The Substation has been keeping its best heifers every year, and the quality of the present herd is credited to this practice.

Leading Alabama cattlemen are also remembering to cull old and barren cows out of their herd. They are selling these animals before any Winter expense is put on them. Usually they are as fat in October as they will ever be.

County farmer committeemen who direct the Production and Marketing Administration in Alabama recently honored W. B. Crawley, second from left, former state PMA committeeman and now a national official in the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In a state-wide meeting, held in Auburn, the group above, representing the committeemen, presented Crawley with a watch and a statement commending his outstanding service to Alabama agriculture. The statement was signed by the State's 211 county committeemen.

Home demonstration club women in Dallas County are making $75 hooked rugs for $5. One of these is being displayed here by Mrs. J. C. Moore, left, Marion Junction Club, who just completed her second rug.

Holding the rug with Mrs. Moore is Miss Dorothy Hixson, Dallas County home demonstration agent. They are showing the rug to other members of the organization who attended their recent county rally. The home agent says 60 other rugs are being made by different club women.

Next Year's Cotton

By O. N. ANDREWS, Cotton Improvement Specialist
A.P.I. Extension Service

THIS Fall many good farmers will save a two-year supply of cotton seed one year from the breeder. These growers will have good seed next Spring, but others will likely find seed of their favorite variety scarce.

Farmers of that first group must remember that cotton seed saved for planting needs special care. Turning them to prevent heating for example is very important. The best way of doing this is to sack the seed and restack sacks at regular intervals. Bad stands next year may result if seed go through a heat after ginning.

Farmers who save seed should send samples to the state seed laboratory for a germination test before next planting season. If they want to produce certified cotton seed in 1950, they should begin now to arrange for breeder seed.

Know What You Have

Members of one-variety cotton improvement associations must continue to have samples sent in for classification if their seed are to remain pure. When you see the correct grade, staple length, and gin preparation of cotton on the green classing cards you know what you have.

If classing cards show cotton is not uniform in staple length, then it has become mixed. Ginning just after a bale of short staple cotton may be the cause, and the only answer is to get the neighbor who ginned before you to grow cotton of the community's adopted variety.

It is well for all growers to remember that the best way to market cotton is on the basis of grade and staple length. Check the loan value of your cotton before selling. Sell where you can get the most for it. Market reports give you quotations by grade and staple length to help you determine this value.

The Toll Of Farm Fires

FARM fires exact staggering tolls in human lives every year. With 3,500 dying on farms from this cause, they are second only to falls in accidental deaths.

In addition to the destruction of farm property and human lives, more than 175,000 fires each year burn over 25,000,000 acres of irreplaceable forest land—an area as large as the state of Virginia. Millions of dollars worth of critically-needed lumber is sacrificed by careless smokers and campers. Fires also burn vegetation off the topsoil needed to prevent erosion and floods; they damage water supplies and destroy wildlife.

Nearly all farm building fires can be traced to two basic causes—faulty building construction and lack of knowledge. Realizing the importance of the fire menace, leaders in municipal, county, state and federal governments are now waging war on two fronts—prevention and protection.

In recent years most states have authorized fire-fighting services in rural areas. The need for community fire protection has been emphasized by agricultural organizations, schools, civic groups, and fire departments which are cooperating in a nation-wide educational program.

Fire Prevention Week

THE week of October 3-9 is Fire Prevention Week.

According to the National Fire Protection Association, fire is attacking American homes at the rate of 1,000 a day or one every 90 seconds. Every 15 minutes, fire attacks a farm somewhere in the United States. Every year, 10,000 persons burn to death, and approximately 17,000 others are burned or disfigured.

Play your part in the prevention of disaster. Make this a fire prevention year on your farm.

To be safe, test rubber rings to be used for canning. Stretch them to twice their length.

"Papa Lets Me Play With Matches"

Matches And Cigarettes Lead As Causes Of Hazardous Fires

MATCHES and smoking caused nearly one-third of all fires reported to the National Board of Fire Underwriters over a ten-year period. This means that careless smokers and reckless campers are responsible for thousands of disasters annually.

The following table lists the other known causes of fires. It was compiled from a study of several million fires for which the causes could be determined.

Cause	Per Cent
Matches—Smoking	28.88
Faulty Chimneys, Stoves, Furnaces, etc.	21.11
Misuse of Flammable Fluids	15.19
Misuse of Electricity	10.86
Fires Originating off Premises	8.26
Lightning	6.97
Spontaneous Combustion	1.94
Gas, Natural or Artificial	1.40
Miscellaneous (Cause known but not classified)	1.16

FARM LEADERS NAMED. Smiling calmly over the outcome of their recent election, these leaders of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation discuss the big job confronting them as state officers of the organization.

Walter L. Randolph, left, Montgomery, was re-elected president of the State Farm Bureau at this year's annual meeting of the organization in Auburn. J. D. (Jimmy) Hays, second from left, of Huntsville, was re-elected to the first vice-president's post.

Other executive officers elected were H. H. Knowles, Headland, second from right, second vice-president, and Dewey Doughty, Reform, third vice-president. Elected as fourth vice-president in the state was M. C. Stallworth, Vinegar Bend (not shown in picture).

This Month on the Farm

SWEETPOTATO growers who plan to produce seed or plants for sale should make hill selections in order to keep up the color and quality of their stock. The Porto Rico sweetpotato is inclined to run out, and only by careful seed selection can good seed be maintained.

SERICEA areas should be planted in reseeding crimson clover or Caley peas immediately after frost when competition from sericea ceases. Once established and properly managed, this combination of sericea and a Winter legume will provide nine to 10 months grazing.

COTTON and corn stalks and other crop residues should be cut or disced down on the land as soon as harvesting is completed. This helps protect the land from erosion and enables stalks to decay.

BROKEN terraces should be repaired and all terraces plowed out after crops are harvested. The outlets should also be put in good order before Winter rains set in.

CORN is too hard to make in Alabama to feed to sorry hogs. It takes too much time and too much feed to get low quality hogs to market. It's not too early to give thought to breeding for the Spring litter. Every sow on every Alabama farm should be bred to a purebred boar of the intermediate type.

HOW much corn did you make on your demonstration? Farmers and 4-H members, measure yields of corn on your demonstrations. Use a simple formula method furnished by the county agent.

GRAIN sorghum acreage in the state is increasing from year to year. It is becoming one of our most important grain and grazing crops. It is time to drill oats or oats and vetch between grain sorghum rows if this has not already been done.

FARMERS with stands of bicolor lespedeza should make plans to harvest these seed for possible sale and distribution after the first heavy frost. Bicolor seed should bring an excellent price this year because of the heavy demand and short supply.

IN peanut-producing counties, hogs will glean peanut fields this month and next. Hogs on peanuts get plenty of protein, but they'll put on twice as much gain if they get a simple mineral mixture. A good one is two pounds of basic slag and one pound of common salt.

NO garden planting chart is given for October. Fall and Winter vegetables of all kinds should have been planted before October in every part of the state. However, if they are needed, plantings of turnips, mustard, Siberian kale, radishes, and onion sets may be made in October.

SIDE dressings of extra nitrogen should be made to young vegetables within 20 to 30 days after the plants are up. Root crops should have one-half pint of nitrate of soda or its equivalent for each 100 feet of row. Other Fall and Winter growing vegetables need a quart of nitrate of soda to 100 feet of row.

Feed Saved-Money Made

By JOHN WEEKS, Poultryman
A.P.I. Extension Service

FEED costs make up two-thirds of the expense in producing broilers and eggs. Small feed losses which go unnoticed oftentimes mean the difference between profit and loss to a poultryman.

An example of how this can happen is shown in two broiler records on my desk. Two producers had 2,000 birds each in the same type house. They used the same brand of feed and bought chicks from the same hatchery. While one used 3.16 pounds of feed making a pound of broiler meat, the second used 3.97 pounds of feed. In other words, the first feeder bought 4,000 pounds less feed than the second. He made $300 on his birds—the second grower, who wasted two tons of feed, made only $100.

That example shows how small wastes in the broiler house can reach large proportions over a feeding period. In a house of 3,000 birds if each chick wastes one ounce of feed per week, the waste over a ten-week period for the whole flock amounts to 1,875 pounds of feed valued at $90.

What can we do to prevent this waste? First, control rats. Rats are one of our greatest causes of feed waste around poultry houses. Not only do they waste feed but they destroy chickens as well. They may also spread disease.

Handling Of Hoppers

The over-filling of feed hoppers also causes great loss of feed. Birds need feed before them at all times, but the troughs should be filled more often and not too full. They should never be filled to more than one-half or two-thirds their capacity. Good feed hoppers, of the proper size and type, should be used. If a grower does not have good waste-free feeders, it is economical to buy them.

The proper size feeder is just as important as the kind. Small feeders should not be used too long in the broiler house.

One of the simplest methods of saving feed on the poultry farm is to be certain that chicks receive plenty of good fresh water at all times. The use of feed by poultry is closely tied to their supply of water. No chicken can make efficient use of its feed unless it has plenty of water to aid in digestion. Water is the cheapest feed on the poultry farm.

Consideration must also be given the chicken that is using the feed. No poultryman can get efficient use of feed with a poor type of bird.

RURAL YOUTH LEADERS. The smiles on the faces of these young people show their pride in the positions they hold. They were recently elected to head Alabama's organization of 122,000 4-H Club members. The boys and girls were elected by popular vote at a business session on the A.P.I. campus during a week's stay in Auburn for the annual State Camp and Short Course.

Elected as president of the state organization was Mary Jane Smith, seated at top of steps. This pretty young miss has been a leader in 4-H Club work in her county for several years. Her magnetic personality won for her many friends and the loyalty of all members attending the state event from 67 counties. A member of the Northport 4-H Club, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith.

Other newly-elected officers are, left to right, Charlie Britnell, Franklin County, vice-president; Ann Mattke, Mobile County, vice-president; John Jacobs, Chambers County, vice-president; Hilda Hardy, Coosa County, secretary; Raymond Burt, Butler County, treasurer; Bobby Jean Artis, Lauderdale County, reporter, and Mona Black, St. Clair County, song leader.

Legumes For Gardens

"A cover crop of Winter legumes planted now in areas where tomatoes or other vegetables will be planted next Spring may mean the difference between a good crop and a poor one," says John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension marketing specialist. He adds that most Alabama soils need additional organic matter.

Bagby emphasizes the fact that organic matter from Winter legumes will help hold moisture in the soil as well as commercial fertilizers applied next Spring. All this is in addition to the much needed nitrogen it adds.

MONEY-MAKING MACHINES. This display of farm equipment scattered over Bullard Field on the A.P.I. campus is only part of that which was demonstrated for farmers attending the Farm Bureau meeting in Auburn recently.

Every type of equipment from ground clearing tools to harvesting and processing machines was exhibited at the machinery show given for visiting farmers and others.

A.P.I. agricultural engineers, with cooperation from manufacturing companies, gave a performance with rumbling, rolling machines that will not soon be equaled in the Southland. Every make and design of mechanical farming equipment—varying in weight from a few pounds to several tons—was demonstrated at the event.

Fire Ants Burn South Alabama

THE pesky and destructive fire ant is becoming an economical problem in many areas of Southwest Alabama.

The reddish brown invaders from South America, not too different from our native ants in appearance, interfere with soil surfaces in fields and sting severely when disturbed. Although of medium size these insects multiply their efforts to become a serious menace.

"At this season of the year a normal colony may have only a slight bed or pile of soil thrown up above the level of the ground," states W. A. Ruffin, Extension entomologist, at Auburn. But during the Winter and early Spring they will make a mound knee high and three feet in diameter.

"The ants do this trying to get away from excessive soil moisture. The enormous number of ants found in the colony at that time of the year also causes them to want more room in the bed."

In research last Spring, Drs. Arant and Eden, of the A.P.I. Experiment Station, did considerable work on the control of these ants. They found that five per cent chlordane gives effective results. They recommended that the mound be well disturbed with a hoe or shovel and two to four heaping tablespoonsful of chlordane dust be sprinkled on and around the beds.

There's Room For Chickens In The Black Belt

BROILER production is filling gaps in the agricultural program of Lowndes County.

In this Black Belt County, where grass and cattle rule on large farms, many farmers are finding broiler production profitable. During the last 12 months 150,000 broilers were sold there by small farmers. They are proving that in this business high returns are not limited to large acreages.

Broiler production is relatively new in Lowndes County; it started after the processing plant was built in Montgomery. This plant now reports Lowndes as the leading county in sales.

They Organized

Most of the producers had no experience in managing birds when they built houses last year but they are doing what County Agent Jimmy Mathews calls an excellent job. They are turning out top quality hot-house broilers that weigh 2½ pounds to 2¾ pounds at nine to 10 weeks old. The broilers are drawing praise from housewives and other consumers wherever they are sold.

The Lowndes County producers have formed a county organization which holds regular meetings to discuss their problems and keep up with the lastest information. At these meetings producers and prospective producers along with County Agent Mathews emphasize the following seven principles of good broiler production.

1. Provide a comfortable house, with proper ventilation, allowing ¾ square foot of floor space per bird in Winter and one square foot per bird in Summer. (Practically all producers have followed the Auburn plan in building poultry houses.)

2. Select quality chicks that are pullorum free, broiler type, rapid feathering and fast growing.

3., Use deep litter on floors.

4. Provide an adequate supply of water and a labor-saving water system.

5. Use plenty of waste-free, reel-type feeders of the proper size. One thousand chicks need 30 four-foot feeders after six weeks of age.

6. Feed a good broiler ration from the time chicks are received until sold.

7. Follow a sound sanitation and disease control program.

In Lowndes County, where 150,000 broilers were sold during the last 12 months, small farm operators boast a capacity of approximately 40,000 broilers per feeding period. These growers, who have been in business only a little more than a year, are following recommendations in building houses and in handling and feeding of birds.

The scene at upper right is in the 3,000-capacity broiler house on the farm of Jimmy Dudley near Benton. Jimmy handles 25,000 broilers annually. At lower right, he shows Lowndes County Agent Jimmy Mathews how his automatic waterer works to keep fresh water before his broilers at all times.

Lower left, Frazier Black of Ft. Deposit is weighing some of his broilers before carrying them to market. Several of the birds in his 1000-capacity house weighed three pounds at ten weeks old.

Legumes And Champions

HE used lots of fertilizer and good seed. He planted at the right time in the right way. He used wise practices in cultivating. And nine times out of 10 he planted following a good crop of Winter legumes.

This fellow is one of the champion farmers found in all sections of the state—the farmer who sets new production records for his county or section.

Alabama farmers who have seen this champion at work and noted the results are now busy with the job of planting Winter legumes to fertilize 1950 crops. Their work will result in a green blanket over most of the fields this Winter.

In most parts of the state preparation can still be made for planting legumes this Fall but, according to A.P.I. Extension agronomists, all plantings should be in the ground by the last of October.

In passing on this information, the agronomists remind farmers that Winter legumes need phosphate and potash. They recommend the use of basic slag, superphosphate and potash, or 0-14-10 commercial mixture for this purpose.

Some other things called to farmers' attention are the importance of using good certified seed, inoculating seed well before planting, and adapting the crop to the soil type and crop conditions where it is used.

Along the Way

with

P. O. DAVIS

DIRECTOR, API EXTENSION SERVICE

THERE are five major reasons why more and better livestock are needed on Alabama farms. They are:

1) Livestock farming is profitable farming when done properly. This includes poultry.

2) Land is improved by livestock.

3) Diet is improved. People are made healthier, stronger, and more resistant to disease by eating meat and eggs and drinking milk.

4) Farm life is improved.

5) Urban life around farms prospers.

And I know of no good reason for not improving our livestock and increasing their numbers in Alabama provided, of course, we produce on our land the feed needed.

Nature endowed Alabama for livestock farming by giving us a land that will produce lots of feed, both grazing and grain. And nature gave us also rainfall and climate for this feed production. We can get high production per acre each year in terms of meat or milk.

So, nature has done her part. It's up to us, the people, to do our part.

An Economic Change

In addition to these facts about nature, we must recognize that economic conditions created by farmers in this and other states are forcing a reduction in Alabama's big money crops: cotton and peanuts.

Unless we can produce something in lieu of these reductions, the inevitable will be lower income for farm people. And our income is already entirely too low.

Day after day and year after year I have studied Alabama agriculture. I have talked with many others who have done likewise.

All of us get around to the conclusion that our major hope for improving farming, enriching our land, and improving living for everybody in Alabama is a stronger livestock arm of Alabama agriculture.

The crop arm—as already stated—is becoming weaker. The livestock arm is being enlarged and strengthened; but far more can be done; and must be done.

With proper treatment our land will make good grazing at least ten months each year.

There is also the very important fact that we now have millions of acres of unproductive land in Alabama. These acres challenge the owners to put them into the production of grazing and grain for livestock. Much of it is producing either nothing or very little.

The Needs of Waste Land

As I view this land I say to myself that it needs the following:

1) The application of scientific information about fertilizers, plants, livestock.

2) This calls for mechanical treatment in the form of terracing or drainage or "face lifting" which includes leveling or smoothing as is done by heavy equipment.

3) Planting, fertilizing, maintenance.

4) Enough money for equipment, for seeding, and for livestock. Livestock farming requires money and enough of it.

One of the money examples is that of farm equipment. A two-horse farmer who changes from mule power and equipment to tractor power and equipment must increase his capital investment in power and equipment by three-fold or four-fold. And his annual operation for power and equipment jumps by 50 or 60 per cent or more.

These, of course, are wise expenditures, but they call for cash. Unless a farmer has this money he must borrow it. Herein is a challenge to Alabama bankers and others who finance agricultural operations.

Lawrence Farmer Sells Corn On The Hoof

A farmer who wraps up his corn crop in slick, top hogs gets the big dollar.

This is exactly what J. P. Letson does on his 210-acre Lawrence County farm.

This year Letson has sold 42 top hogs straight from the corn fields. He topped out 12 that weighed 200 pounds when five months old, and only 12 bushels of corn were eaten by each.

There's no big secret in Letson's program of letting hogs gather his corn—and pay him almost twice the market price for it.

"But there is a reason for my success," says Letson. He then points to a 10-acre field of lush alfalfa.

Legume Grazing Added

"The corn needed to put hogs up to 200 pounds was cut at least in half by having alfalfa to graze. It would be almost impossible to finish a hog at five months without legume grazing—and a lot more expensive," he added.

Mr. Letson also has 10 acres of sericea and seven acres of reseeding crimson clover. He plans to use these crops in hogging some of his 55-acre corn crop this Fall.

Although he is trying new hybrid varieties, and this year has several acres of Dixie 17, Letson is continuing to grow an old strain of Thompson's Prolific, which is open-pollinated. This particular strain is unusual in that there are two to six ears on each stalk. It is a dwarf variety and the ears tend to turn down as they reach maturity. This makes it ideal for hogging, says Letson, an Extension TVA unit test demonstrator.

Lawrence County farmer J. T. Letson has what he calls "the answer" to topping out good market hogs and getting the maximum gain for every bushel of corn fed.

Left above, he is shown with five of the high-quality hogs he is grazing on corn and alfalfa. The farmer has sold 42 of these since January.

Lower left, Letson is shown standing in his 10-acre field of sericea lespedeza, also used for grazing. Explaining that sericea lespedeza must be mowed for best grazing results the farmer, left, demonstrates how growth gets away from his livestock. Standing in the mowed section of the pasture is Raymond D. Jones, Lawrence County assistant agent.

At right the UTD farmer is shown in his 18-acre field of Thompson's Prolific corn—an open-pollinated variety.

More Storage Facilities Needed On Most Alabama Farms

By WM. H. MOORE
Production and Marketing Administration

FARMERS who expect to get top prices for crops such as corn, soybeans, and cotton seed should be giving serious consideration to the storage space needed on their farms.

It has become more and more noticeable during recent years that the period in which most crops are harvested and placed on the market is getting shorter. This has resulted mainly from improved harvesting methods and faster transportation.

When more crops go to market in a shorter time, terminal markets and commercial storage facilities become flooded and prices begin to drop. This can happen even in years when production is below normal because commercial storage space is not adequate to handle the supply. It would not be economical for the government and private business to build sufficient storage. If they did the buildings would be empty except during the harvest season.

Government Helps Build Space

Generally, it is during these peak periods of movement from farm to market that prices drop and the government is called on to support them. It is also during these periods that the government, because of storage problems, has the most difficulty in operating price support programs. For this reason, it has become necessary for the government to place more emphasis on price supports for farm stored commodities.

To emphasize the need for farm storage facilities and to assist farmers in building them the government, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, recently announced a loan program. Farmers may borrow up to 85 per cent of cost to build additional storage facilities. These loans carry four per cent interest and are payable over a period not to exceed five years. Information regarding them may be obtained at county PMA offices.

In most years orderly marketing is necessary to obtain top prices. And to have orderly marketing farm storage is becoming more and more important. Farmers should give careful consideration to this matter now. Adequate farm storage may prove to be one of the best investments on the farm.

Marketing Reminders

By A. W. JONES, Marketing Specialist
A.P.I. Extension Service

IN selling many farm products it is important that producers keep a steady supply moving to market at all times. This is especially true with poultry and dairy products, meats, and other foods that consumers need regularly.

By spreading the market season over more of the year growers keep a steady market and know what to expect when produce is ready to sell. One example of this type of marketing may be noted in the sale of turkeys this Fall and Winter. Poultrymen are making turkeys more than a holiday bird. Wise growers will begin by selling in October the birds that top out first.

The marketing of corn, hay and other feeds through livestock, insofar as possible, is also a wise practice. Producers know the market for most livestock products is better than the market for most crops and they will take advantage of that fact.

Harvesting and Storing

Farmers who sell the best corn this year will be those who are sure it is dry before gathering. High grade corn is stored in a dry crib that is tight enough to keep rats out and allow treating for weevils.

Most local markets for corn are limited and the price there is low. Satisfactory corn marketing in the future will depend on grading and inspection as do most other products.

The farmer who continues to sell for good profits will be sure he knows what the government support price is for cotton, peanuts, soybeans, cottonseed, corn, and possibly other crops before selling.

He will not sell young cattle that he could better use for breeding stock. (We need far more cattle on more acres on more farms to get more farm income.) And he will not put excess fat on hogs that he carries to market. Twelve and one-half cent lard does not help sell 19-cent hogs.

AN ANNUAL MEETING for farm women, held at Auburn last month, was climaxed with the election of new leaders for their state organization.

Newly-elected officers in the group, chosen at a recent annual meeting of the organization, are Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. McCullars, and Mrs. Reimer.

Farmers Using Better Bulls Through Artificial Breeding

MORE than 4,000 Alabama dairy cows have been bred artificially this year. At the present rate of service by artificial inseminators in county organizations the figure will reach a record 6,000 before the end of the year.

What's more, the conception rate in the state will far exceed the national average. In a recent report to farmers, Pete Turnham, A.P.I. Extension assistant dairyman, said the conception rate will average more than 60 per cent if the present rate holds.

Turnham cited several examples of artificial breeding progress in his report. Among them was the case of Jimmy Farnell, Mobile County dairyman, who had 35 cows conceive on first service this Summer.

Another example of good work in the Mobile County Artificial Breeding Association was one in which 14 of 15 cows bred by T. H. Antoine conceived on first service.

With a start like this, Turnham declares, Mobile should become one of the leading counties in artificial breeding.

The dairyman continued by stating that all counties now carrying this program are finding its services valuable.

The biggest weakness in the program, he believes, is the failure of dairymen to participate faithfully.

Hogs For Sale

THE Dale County Purebred Hog Association will hold its first show and sale Saturday, October 29, at Ozark. Some of the highest quality hogs and pigs in the county will be for sale.

President Cecil Knowles, of the county association, makes this announcement and invites breeders who want to buy good hogs to be present.

Screw Worms At Work

HOG growers throughout the state are warned by G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist, to guard against screw worms.

These pests work in live tissues of the animal after gaining entrance through small scratches or other breaks in the skin. If a close watch is not kept, screw worms get out of control because they work under the skin. Damage does not always show from the outside.

Phillips says screw worms are particularly dangerous to new-born pigs. This should be kept in mind since the pests are usually more prevalent at this time of year than at any other time.

"This year damage has been widespread, particularly in South Alabama," reveals the specialist. "The screw worms can be controlled, but it is absolutely necessary that hog raisers check their hogs every day for breaks in the skin where eggs may be laid to develop worms."

County agents can give full directions on treatment for screw worms.

Hunting Restrictions Pay Off

WATERFOWL numbers are increasing, according to reports from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Experts credit the increase to strict hunting regulations placed on waterfowl shooting the past two years.

Earl F. Kennamer, A.P.I. Extension fish and wildlife specialist, says this is an encouraging fact. He also notes other interesting facts from the report. Among them is some dope on migration. For example mallards made up one-third of all waterfowl wintering in the continental United States this year. The ducks were observed in greatest abundance along the Mississippi River.

Following the mallards in number were pintails. Other species observed during the Winter were bufflehead, swan, American brant, black brant, and bluewing teal. Increases were noticed in snow goose, black duck, and a few other species.

Research Results

in brief from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

PEACH AND PLUM TREE BORERS can be controlled in October by treating the trees with either paradichlorobenzene or ethylene dichloride emulsion. Caution! Do not use paradichlorobenzene on trees under four years of age. Remove mounds from the trees four to six weeks after treatment. Ethylene dichloride emulsion may be used on any age tree, and mounds do not have to be removed. In mixing and applying either material, follow directions of the manufacturer.

NEWLY-HARVESTED SEED should be cleaned before they are stored in order to remove very wet seed and stems. Mold occurs much faster on wet seed than it does on relatively dry seed.

FERTILIZER PAYS ON PASTURE CROPS as well as it does on cotton and corn, experiments show. The practice on the Experiment Station farm is to fertilize all pastures annually with 400 pounds per acre of 0-14-10 or its equivalent. A small amount of borax is added for alfalfa and some of the clovers. This practice is paying good dividends in the form of more meat and milk per acre.

GREEN VEGETATION IS DRYING UP in the woodlot. A fire in the woods will damage and kill many trees. Dead trees do not grow. Damaged trees grow slowly and produce low quality products. Keep fire out of the woods.

SUBTERRANEAN CLOVER is a very promising Winter clover for upland pasture, according to tests at the Tuskegee and Alexandria Experimental Fields. Subterranean clover can usually be grazed from October 15 to May 1. The best varieties used in these tests are Tallrook, Mount Barker and Baccus Marsh. These varieties have made good growth and have reseeded each Fall since 1945.

FISH PONDS CONSTRUCTED during late Summer or Fall should not be stocked with a few adult bluegills and bass. Usually this method requires at least three to four years, or longer, to produce good fishing. Excellent fishing has been produced more quickly by stocking such ponds with 1,000 to 1,500 bluegill fingerlings per acre in the Fall or Winter. Bass fry are added the next Spring at the rate of 100 per acre. Fishing should be delayed until the bass have spawned the following Spring.

PONDS STOCKED with as few as eight adult bream per acre will cause over-crowding by bluegills the following year.

FARMERS SELLING MILK to a condensary operated 11 more acres per farm in 1947 than those farmers not selling, according to a study of 95 farms in east and central Alabama. Farmers selling to the condensary averaged 18 acres more in crops, five acres more in open pasture, 31 acres more in woods pastured and 43 acres less in woods unpastured.

EARLY PLANTED LUPINE makes the best yield but lupine planted between October 1 and 15 at the Brewton and Monroeville Experiment fields for the last six years has produced growth enough to supply nitrogen equivalent to more than 400 pounds of nitrate of soda when turned by March 15.

It's Horrible, It's Vital, And It May Also Save Your Life

Whatever your plans may be for Saturday afternoon, be sure they include seeing the parade that will be staged in Clanton. Theme of the parade will be, "Drive Carefully, It May Save Your Life," and is a vital message to every man, woman and child in the county.

Thousands and thousands of lives are lost yearly in America through careless driving and the Chilton County Safety Council will endeavor to bring this grim fact to mind when the parade passes in review Saturday.

The parade will start promptly at one o'clock and immediately following will be a speaking at the courthouse. Major N. W. Kimbrough of Montgomery, will be the speaker. Major Kimbrough has spent years in this line of work and can bring you startling facts in regard to the yearly cost in lives and money of our careless drivers.

SINGING AT COOPER

Woman to Get Back Ring She Lost Fifty Years Ago

ESCANABA, MICH.—Mrs. Oscar Hornblad, Escanaba, will soon receive the gold wedding ring she lost as a bride in Sweden 50 years ago.

Word was received from Sweden that a farmer who bought the old family farm in Sweden had found the ring on a prong of his harrowing machine. It was as shiny as the day it left the jeweler's shop, the honest finder reported. He identified the ring and is sending it forthwith.

Mrs. Hornblad said she lost the ring shortly after her wedding while helping her parents in the fields. The ring was never replaced. Mrs. Hornblad said she just had a feeling it would be found some day.

Strange Beast Frightens Connecticut Villagers

EAST GRANBY, CONN. — The beast that has no name but which is often heard here—what is it?

Uneasy residents in the Lake Basile section of this town were asking those questions after reports that there was a strange animal in the neighborhood. The best description given was that the "whatever-it-was" gallops like a horse and has the claws of a bear.

No one had seen it. Some had heard it. But there for all to see were its clawprints on the soft dirt road.

Morgan J. Horne was among those who reported hearing it—at 10 minutes past midnight.

"It was nothing like I have ever heard before," he said. "My wife had a horrified look on her face."

The animal's breathing, he reported, was "terrific, almost unbelievable" and a lot heavier than that of a horse.

"When we heard this galloping noise and the heavy breathing, our English shepherd dog, Buddy, went crazy," said Horne. "He almost went through the screen."

Sportsman Ronald L. Miller opined:

"Must be either a bear or a gorilla."

He used to do a lot of hunting when he lived in Maine.

If it's a bear, said Miller, it's a big one—more than 6 feet tall

Milk Among U.S. Top Five In Popular Drink Tests

NEW YORK.—People who think the average U.S. citizen is a hard-drinking man-about-town have another think coming, on the basis of figures that show just what he drinks each year.

Milk, beer, soft drinks, coffee and canned fruit and vegetable juices are the nation's five most popular beverages, according to an American Can Company analysis of government and industry figures.

On a per capita basis, the average inhabitant of this country last year consumed some 180.5 quarts of milk, 71.2 quarts of beer, 48 quarts of soft and carbonated drinks, 38.7 quarts of coffee and 8.3 quarts of canned fruit and vegetable juices, as compared with 4.7 quarts of hard liquors. Cans are used in some form in the packing and distribution of all five of the favorites, the study showed.

An almost five-fold increase in per capita consumption of canned fruit and vegetable juices during the past 10 years was noted in the analysis. New methods and processes for canning fresh-flavored orange, tomato and grapefruit juices were given credit for a major part of the increases.

No figures were available on consumption of the world's number one drink—plain water.

Yo-yo Staging Comeback In Several Universities

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—A University of Michigan philosophy professor had to stop a class because of a disturbance in the last row. Upon investigation he found the student trying a difficult "loop-the-loop" with a yo-yo, the latest college fad.

Once apparently buried with raccoon coats, goldfish - swallowing, crew haircuts, and midget golf, stores at Ann Arbor report a huge sale of the spinning disks to Michigan students.

CLANTON PLAYS VERBENA FRIDAY NIGHT ON LOCAL FIELD

The Chilton County Tigers will be shooting for the county football championship Friday night when they meet the strong team from the Verbena High School. To date Clanton has had only fair success in football this season. It is true that she ran up a good score against Williams in the opening game, but Starke took her measure in the next game 6 to 0, Montevallo put up a good fight be fore yielding only in the last quarter. Last Friday night Clanton managed to squeeze by Columbiana by one point, the score being 7 to 6.

Verbena has swept all opposition before her this season, each game being easier to win than the one before. She has won four straights and word comes from down that way that the one Friday night will be her fifth one this season.

For the first time in several years Clanton finds itself the underdog when it comes to meeting another Chilton County football team. The dope sheet has the visitors to win by one to two touch downs.

Anyway the spectators should see an interesting game. The kick-off is 7:30.

Tickets are on sale at three places up town—Alreds, Calloways and Upchurch Drug Stores.

Takes Guts

We have a lot of respect for our football team at Chilton County High School.

Let us tell you a little story. Last week we wrote a short article in this column telling of the rudeness of the players while attending the Wadesonian the previous week. We wrote the article because we thought the boys needed reminding that their conduct was a little rowdy at this occasion. They are a fine lot of young men and every one will be a credit to his high school we are sure. But like all boys of their age they were thoughtless.

Friday morning the whole kit and caboodle came to the News office and apologized for their thoughtlessness. Not only to us but to the theatre patrons in general. They said from now on they would be a little more careful when visiting in a body to make the people of their community proud of them.

They visited Mr. Charles Wade, who owns the Wadesonian, and apologized to him, if they had been rude or caused any undue inconveniences to his customers.

It was a manly thing to do. It takes guts to go to a fellow and apologize. We admire every man on the team tremendously.

The Dixiecrat Fallacy

(An Editorial in Our Southern Home, Livingston, Ala.)

Several readers of the Home have recently asked the editor to clarify his stand in opposition to the Dixiecrat, or so-called States Rights, movement. In view of the fact that we have taken a number of potshots at the Dixiecrat citadel during the past few weeks, that request is eminently fair and reasonable, and we are glad to comply with it. Let it be said at the outset that we have deep respect for the opinions of our friends who are of Dixiecrat persuasion, but in all candor and sincerity we cannot agree with them.

Our objections to the Dixicrat movement fall chiefly within the following categories:

As a political expedient, it is the sheerest nonsense and stupidity.

As a political philosophy, it is a gross and crude anachronism.

FIRST, CONSIDER POLITICAL EXPEDIENCY:

If the purpose of the Dixicrats were that of having unwanted legislation forced on the South, they could choose no more effective way of doing it than their present program. The only place that an effective fight can be made against undesirable federal legislation is on the floor of the United States Senate and in certain key committees of both houses. Committee appointments will not be made forever by the Democratic Party to Southern senators and congressmen who are forced into disloyalty by scatter-brained splinter-parties at home.

CONSIDER, NOW, Dixocracy as a political anachronism: The Dixiecrats might have made a convincing show in the period, 1861-1876. It happens, however, that this is 1949. They were born about 90 years too late. The Civil War has been fought; the era of reconstruction is over and done with; the South has come into its own as a vital region of the United States. There is no further need for embattled warriors mounting shibboleths that have long since lost all meaning, or teaching these empty phases to those who will not or cannot think for themselves. This is the day of the New South, marching forward with the rest of the country, demanding a better life for all its peoples—a New South which deserves leaders with vision, understanding, and courage.

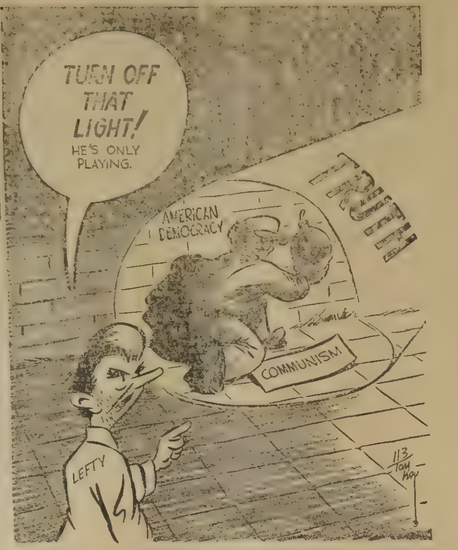
THE DIXIECRATS DO MUCH crying and breast-beating about the principle of states' rights. They apparently have no objection, however, to federal subsidies to agriculture which—by Dixiecrat standards—are pure socialism and a clear invasion of states' rights. The Dixiecrats call themselves the only true believers in the United States Constitution. Yet they are strangely silent on the subject of individual, human rights which make up the vital decalogue, the first 10 amendments to that constitution.

Finally, there is the question of party loyalty. We do not for a moment think that there is anything sacred about the Democratic Party, or any other party; but the Democratic Party is still a useful political instrument for the South.

DIXIECRAT BOLTERS, of course, try to maintain the pleasant fiction that the Democratic Party left them. The facts do not bear out this contention. (Back in [illegible] and 1930 many of the same gentlemen sang a different tune on the same subject). They had every right [illegible]t a new party of their own, but they chose to usurp the machinery of the Democratic Party in the Summer of 1948 with a neat example of political legerdemain which 90 per cent of the voters probably never understood. The Dixiecrats worked hard for Dewey in 1948—whether they intended it or not—and now they seem to be confused, bewildered, without a home.

A happy home for them, we submit, is the Republican Party for which they labored so diligently and from which they can draw spiritual sustenance. It, too, revolves in a vacuum.

THE AMERICAN WAY



Caught In The Act

Henry Adair

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold. (Prov. 22:1). Again, "A good name is better than precious ointment." (Ecc. 7:1). These verses of Scripture tell us the value of a good name. To have a good name is far better than to have great riches of silver and gold. Such is better than precious ointment. When people with good names are taken from among us, we miss them. David was a man after God's own heart. He behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul; so that his name was much set by. It is said of the parents of John the Baptist, that they were both righteous before God, and walked in all the commandments of the Lord blameless. Barnabas was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith. Dorcas was a good woman, full of good works and almsdeeds which she did among her friends. These lived unselfish lives, and behaved themselves wisely and got for themselves a good name, which is better than great riches.

A. T. HICKMAN

Such was our friend, Henry Adair. he was taken from among us only a few days ago. We who knew Henry, know that he had gotten for himself a good name. He was a good Christian man. He had faith in God, and confessed his faith before men. He was a good citizen who took an interest in his community and in his fellowman. He spent his life enriching the lives of others. We all know that we are richer by having known him, and by having been associated with him. He was a great teacher in the Chilton County High School. He not only taught from what was written in the text book, but taught his students by example. His ideals were high, his character noble, his life above reproach. Henry was a good Kiwanian; a good sportsman, a good friend to all humanity. His good name will be remembered by the people of Chilton County. The boys and girls whose lives he enriched will never forget him.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

DYSPEPSIA

"I have dyspepsia and I don't know what causes it." The doctor knows, for there are tens of thousands of persons suffering from nervous indigestion, much of it brought on by a state of mind at the time of eating.

Common complaints are fullness, upper abdominal distress, belching, nausea, vomiting, and difficulty in swallowing. The appetite is poor in most cases, although some are given to overloading their stomachs in the hope that the cure lies in forcing themselves to eat.

Distressed people sometimes choose instead a process of elimination, removing from their diet one article after another, in an attempt to discover and discard the food that offends. These unfortunates bring themselves to a state of semi-starvation and are worse off than they were before.

During the last war, soldiers complained of nervous indigestion and it became a major military medical problem, with doctors finding most cases to be suffering a psychoneurosis.

Generally, in treating nervous indigestion physicians try to influence their patients to give in to circumstances against which it is futile to struggle. Patients are encouraged to avoid stirring themselves up over life's annoyances. Nervous stomach usually appears in individuals who are intensely worried, frustrated, or who consider themselves victims of injustice.

Treatment often calls for physical rest and the development of peace of mind. See your physician to learn your trouble and then follow his instructions, even though this, to a person who is inclined to be nervous, may be extremely hard to do.

Local Couple Goes To South America To Study

(Taken From The B'ham Post)

When a young couple gets back to our town the world is going to know a lot more about the Chilean Mind.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin M. Lande left Birmingham last week for Santiago, Chile, where Mr. Lande will do some mighty weighty studying.

He will do research on intellectual developments during the period of the Chilean struggle for independence.

The Landes are making the trip as a result of a fellowship grant of $5,000 given by the Boherty Foundation of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University.

They will visit 10 South American countries while on the continent, spending several weeks in Argentina and Brazil.

The research period is for one year.

The Landes will return at the end of the 12 month period to Evanston, Ill., where he is assistant professor and instructor in history at Northwestern University.

Mr. and Mrs. Lande left Birmingham last week for Miami, wheer they board a plane for Santiago.

Mrs. Lande is the former Catherine Jean Kulpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Kulpe, of 1121 11th Avenue So.

Mr. Lande is the son of Mrs. Sadie Lande of Clanton and is widely known in Chilton County.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL WORKERS HELP SPEED PATIENT RECOVERY

Red Cross hospital workers assist medical officers with welfare and recreation programs for military patients.

The job of rebuilding sick bodies and minds of servicemen in military hospitals and restoring them to useful life is carried forward by a team—doctors, nurses, and Red Cross workers. The Red Cross worker may be a medical or psychiatric social worker, a recreation specialist, or a combination of them assisted by a Gray Lady.

Military physicians and nurses find that restoring the health of a sick man requires much more than medicine and food. The will to live and the will to do things must be revived before medical treatment can get in its beneficial work. That's where the Red Cross enters the picture.

A young soldier, only 23, was injured in an accident at a munitions proving ground. Half of his face and neck were blown away. Painracked and frightened, he had little taste for ordinary hospital recreation. He loved music, though, so the recreation worker brought to his bedside a radio phonograph and then, by mere chance, found she could satisfy a greater longing. The boy revealed that he wanted to write to his young wife those tender, personal things that he hesitated to dictate.

A recording machine was bought to his bedside, and he found the words to tell his longings to his distant wife. It wasn't easy because his injury had damaged his vocal chords and articulation was difficult. But after patient practice with the hospital worker, he finally poured out his heart to the record and sent it off to his wife.

To the arthritic, the tubercular, the rheumatic heart sufferer, doomed to long periods of bed care, the recreational services provided by Red Cross ease their burden of restlessness and discouragement. Nearby chapters in cooperation with other local agencies bring into the hospitals young people from the nearby communities, women who serve as hostesses for parties, young people who dance and play games, all reminding the sick soldier that he is not forgotten by those he served.

Under federal statute and regulations of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the American Red Cross furnishes volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and acts in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces.

TELEPHONE FOLKS

are setting a New Record

DOWN ON THE FARM

Southern Bell is putting in farm telephones five times as fast as before the war. Total telephone installations in Southern rural areas this year will set an all-time record!

Linking farms scattered over the South to markets and friends in town is a tremendous job that calls for thousands of poles and thousands of miles of telephone wire. It also calls for the know-how, experience, and the kind of equipment that has made America's telephone service the best in the world. Since the war approximately sixty million dollars have been spent to expand and improve telephone service in rural sections.

Telephone folks are working hard to extend service as rapidly as possible to all the farmers who want it. And we're making outstanding progress!

ANNOUNCEMENT BY GORDON PERSONS

"I will be a candidate for Governor next year. Between now and election day I will visit every section of the State.

Gordon Persons

You can rest assured that it will be an active and aggressive campaign. As always, I'll be glad to see and hear from my friends at any time."

Gordon Persons of Montgomery is 47 years old. He attended the public schools and later to Auburn where he studied electrical engineering.

Persons first became active in Alabama politics when he was appointed chairman of the State Rural Electrification Authority by Governor Bibb Graves. He is co-author with Senator Lister Hill of the Rural Telephone Bill.

In 1946, he was an unsuccessful candidate for Governor. In 1948, Persons again offered for re-election to the Commission, was elected and is now serving as President of that body.

CONNOR TO MAKE RACE FOR GOVERNOR

When asked last week if he had made his financial arrangements for the Governor's race next year, Commissioner Connor replied, "I am not looking for money. I am looking for votes."

The political career of Commissioner Connor has been marked by his willingness to serve all the people alike and to meet problems and issues with fair and strong decisions. Those decisions have been straight across the table top regardless of the consequences.

Connor was born in Selma in 1897 and was reared on a farm in the northern part of Dallas County at Plantersville. His parents died when he was quite young and he was reared by a widowed aunt. In early youth he learned to operate a telegraph key and after completing his education served as a telegraph operator. He moved to Birmingham in 1921 and worked as an operator.

Later he associated himself with a large business firm and then took up radio broadcasting. His personality and willingness to work paved his way into politics. In 1934 he was elected to the Legislature from Jefferson County in a field of sixty-seven candidates. He was the second highest candidate when the votes were compiled.

"BULL" CONNOR

He served in three sessions of the late Governor Graves' second administration. He voted against all tax measures with the exception of a tax on alcoholic beverages. During one of the sessions "Bull" was dubbed by newspapers as "The snuff dipper's friend of Alabama." This resulted from his vigorous fight against a tax on snuff.

In 1937 he ran for City Commissioner in Birmingham in a field of eight candidates. He was overwhelmingly elected and has been elected three times since. This is the first time in the history of Birmingham that a man has been elected four consecutive times as a police commissioner without a runoff.

In 1948 "Bull" Connor was elected as delegate-at-large to the National Democratic Convention and won without a runoff. He made only one speech during that campaign and that was at Florence, Alabama.

The Commissioner did not sit idle during the recent World War. With the assistance of the Birmingham Parent-Teacher organization he worked out numerous recreation plans for soldiers and high school students. City firemen aided him in working out athletic programs for younger boys and girls in his city.

Squirrel Season is Changed Again In Nat. Forest Areas

Montgomery, Ala. — The season on squirrel hunting in three Alabama National Forest areas will open October 15, instead of November 1, as previously announced, according to Conservation Director Bert E. Thomas.

The national park areas in which hunting will be permitted October 15-November 15 are the Black Warrior Wildlife Management Area of the William B. Bankhead National Forest and the Choccolocco and Oakmulgee Wildlife Management areas of the Talladega National Forest.

Director Thomas' decision to change the opening date to October 15 followed a discussion with Alabama National Forest Supervisor Paul A. Swarthout. They agreed that due to the uncertainty of the deer season in these national forest areas opening as scheduled on November 20, hunters would be given a longer season in which to hunt squirrels. In recent months, the carcasses of more than a hundred deer —victims of a mysterious disease—have been found in these three areas.

No changes will be made in the squirrel season outside of the state's national forest areas. North of U. S. Highway 80 it will open October 15 and close January 1. South of U.S. Highway 80, the season will be November 1 through January 15.

SOYBEAN STORAGE FACITILITIES READY

Auburn, Ala. — The U. S. Navy has released hangars at Barrin Field, Elberta, Alabama, for storage of soybeans.

"This should be good news to growers of soybeans in that area," says B. L. Collins, executive officer of the Production and Marketing Administration, "since this action should assure farmers of full Government support for their 1949 crop of beans."

Permission for the use of these storage facilities was obtained through the efforts of the Baldwin County ACA Committee and the State PMA. They were released to the Baldwin County ACA and will be operated under the direction of that committee by L. Irwin and Son, Foley, Alabama.

"Prior to securing this storage space," adds Mr. Collins, "it had appeared that the operation of the Soybean Price Support Program would be limited because of the amount of storage space available. Now, however, every producer in the area should be in position to take advantage of the program.

In addition to L. Irwin and Son, other warehousemen who have signed storage agreements are H. Kennedy, Summerdale, Bill Reimer, Elberta and Atmore Truckers Association, Atmore, Ala.

CONTROL WEEVILS IN DRY BEANS AND PEAS

Auburn, Ala. — The great loss of dried beans and peas caused by weevils each year can be reduced to practically nothing, according to W. A. Ruffin, Extension Service entomologist.

The trick is fumigation, but, first, farmers are urged to harvest beans and peas as soon as the hulls are dry. This will reduce weevil damage in the field.

When beans or peas are thoroughly dry, they are ready to be fumigated. Ruffin points out that carbon disulphide, often called "high life," is a very effective fumigant. However, it is highly flammable and must be handled with care.

"When ready to fumigate," says the entomogolist, "fill quart jars, syrup buckets, or lard cans with seed to be treated, pour in the proper amount of carbon disulphide, and close container."

Ruffin recommends the use of one teaspoonful of carbon disulphide for a quart jar, two teaspoonsful for a half-gallon jar, two tablespoonsful for a gallon syrup bucket, and about one-half teacupful, for a five-gallon lard can. Leave container closed tightly for at least two days during warm weather. If the weather is cool, leave seed in fumigating container longer. After all insects have been killed, seed should be removed and aired thoroughly until all trace of odor of carbon disulphide has disappeared.

After this has been done, store seed in tight cloth or paper bags. If they were thoroughly dried before fumigation, they are ready for human consumption or planting next spring.

HOW TO PUT BUTTONS ON CLOTHING TO STAY

Auburn, Ala. — To save clothing, mending, time, and temper, put buttons on clothing to stay.

"If put on right in the first place," asserts Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist, "neither ordinary wear nor washing and ironing should loosen buttons."

Pointing out how to put on buttons so they won't budge, she says to use thread strong enough for the weight of the button; use tape or other reenforcement underneath; and perhaps most important, arrange for a shank of thread which gives room for the buttonhold to slide under the button without pull on the fabric.

"When sewing on a button," says the specialist, "lay a pin or darning needle over the top and sew over it. Then withdraw the pin and wind thread around the shank underneath. Fasten the thread on the wrong side of the garment, first with a buttonhole stitch, then with a couple of over-and-over stitches."

Extra glasses of jelly made in the early fall and wrapped at Christmas time with a sprig of holly make attractive and welcome gifts.

DIVIDE FLOCK

If slow developing pullets are separated from faster maturing birds and put into a pen to themselves, they will develop much faster.

RE-BREEDING SOW

A healthy sow that is well-fed will usually come in heat within three to seven days after separation from the pigs. Heat periods recur every 19 to 22 days, and sows remain in heat two to three days.

CONTROL PEACH TREE BORERS IN OCTOBER

Unless control measures are taken in October, farmers find that the peach tree borer can be a very destructive pest.

John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension Service horticulturist, recommends the use of paradichlorobenzene or ethylene dichloride emulsion for their control. The local county agent has complete information on the use of these materials.

WISE MARKETING

Many farmers increase the prices they receive by studying seasonal price trends of the products they produce. After making the study, they arrange for their heaviest production to come to market at the time of year when the demand is greatest.

GARDEN TONIC

Sow winter legumes this fall on land that will be planted to garden or truck crops next spring.

SELL HOGS EARLY

It's normal for hog prices to go down in the fall. In view of this fact, G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension Service hog production specialist, urges farmers to rush hogs to market at the earliest possible time and sell them at top weights of not more than about 225 pounds.

Tractor Gas Refund Bill Now In Effect

The long awaited Tractor Gas Refund Bill is now in effect and to safeguard the program for agriculture, farmers must be careful in using the gas and making claims.

The use of dye-colored gasoline will cause them little or no concern, but some farmers may find the paper work a little more trouble.

Each farmer is responsible for registering his tractor or tractors with his county tax assessor. In that office he receives a registration certificate and other necessary forms for making claims.

R. L. Hungerford, State Department of Revenue, Montgomery, explains the use of the forms as necessary in checking on claims made. He says each tractor must be separately registered.

When a farmer receives his certificate he will fill out an appleiation for permit. He will send it, along with a copy of his certificate, to the State Department of Revenue which, in turn, will send him a permit authorizing him to buy refund gas. The owner will also be given purchase invoice forms to fill out each time he buys gasoline.

Claim sheets for turning in gasoline purchases must be filled out by each operator and sent to the Department of Revenue, with invoices, within six months after gas is purchased. These sheets will be supplied by the state office. Refund checks will be mailed from there also.

Hungerford says first payments will be made about the middle of Nov

The Nebraska system of determining fuel consumption for different tractors will be used, points out the state office representative. These tests plus information given on application forms will be applied in every case. Information on using the Nebraska tests was supplied by Fred Kummer, head, Agricultural Engineering Department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

Violation of the Tractor Gas Refund law carries up to $1,000 fine and six months imprisonment.

LISTER HILL'S HOSPITAL AND RURAL PHONE BILLS ENACTED

Senator Lister Hill announced the passage of two Federal bills of vital importance to Alabama farmers and rural people.

The Senate gave final approval to the Rural Telephone Bill through which REA can bring telephones to farm homes, rural businesses, schools and churches as REA has provided rural electricity.

The House enacted Hill's amendments to the Hill-Burton Hospital and Health Center Construction Act which will give Alabama $[illegible] a year for hospital construction instead of the present $3,000,000. Of major interest to farmers and rural communities is another Hill amendment giving a bigger percentage of Federal aid to each individual project. Some rural communities have had difficulty raising their share of the hospital construction costs and the Hill amendment gives each project two-thirds of the cost in Federal funds.

Passage of the Rural Telephone Bill climaxes a five-year fight by Senator Hill for farm telephones. Hill introduced the first rural telephone bill in Congress in 1944. He pressed his bill through the years and steadily built up support for the measure among farm people and operators of small independent telehone systems.

Hill took personal charge of the bill when it reached the Senate floor last week. He held the floor almost four hours single-handed and fought off amendments which would have hampered the rural telephone program. When the bill finally came to a vote, he had rallied support to pass it by a big majority.

The REA can move promptly with the rural telephone program as Senator Hill had $25,000,000 for rural telephone loans added to the Supplemental Appropriation bill.

Goings and Comings—

We are very happy to report that Mrs. Daisy Littlejohn, who has been away all summer at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, and for several weeks has been very ill, is now able to return to her home here. She is slowly recovering, and her many friends are hoping to see her out soon.

Mrs. Sam Shoults of Lawley Route 1, was visiting relatives here last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Shoults plan to leave this week to go to West Palm Beach, Fla., to spend the winter with Mrs. Shoult's sisters, Mrs. Lettie Seeley and Mrs. Clara Allie Boie.

Mr. and Mrs. Raynard Hale (Beth Stone) and two children from Spring Hill, La., arrived here last Friday to visit his sister, Mrs. Ruth Hubbard. Mr. Hale a few days before coming here was stricken with rheumatic fever. Dr. Day was called to Mrs. Hubbard's home to treat him. Dr. Day very soon saw that he was seriously ill and called an ambulance to carry him to the Veterans' Hospital in Montgomery last Saturday. Latest news from the hospital is that he is much improved, for which his friends are very grateful

Miss Lucy Walker of Marion was visiting relatives here last week end.

This writer wishes to make a correction in the names of the children who attended the birthday party of Linda Rogers in last week's News. They were Brenda and Butch Higginbotham, instead of Daniels — and Nancy and Frank Daniels did attend. We are very sorry of this mistake, but we imagine everyone is subject to mistakes some time in life.

Mrs. Bettie Jeffcoat, who has been in Columbiana for several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Tucker, and has been under treatment of a physician there, returned home last Friday. She is much improved, for which her friends will be glad to learn.

Some who attended the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham last week were: Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hayes, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix, Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glass, Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, Mr. S. B. Rogers and his Sunday School class; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davenport and Miss Joyce Rife.

Mrs. Garland Smith carried her son, Leslie Earl, to Birmingham last Friday to an eye specialist, and while there they attended the Fair and visited relatives. They returned home Sunday afternoon.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ed Clapp, Jr., one day last week from Tuscaloosa were Mr. Clapp's mother, Mrs. E. T. Clapp, Sr., and his sister, Mrs. Thomas Nicol.

Mrs. Frankie Seals spent last week end at Argo, Ala., visiting her brother-in-law and family.

Mrs. A. T. Dawson and Mrs. Eugene Hathcock spent Monday in Selma shopping.

Because of the strike of the T.C.I. Company in Birmingham Mr. and Mrs. Rotha Davis and two children are visiting here with relatives. Probably there are others we failed to get their names.

Mrs. W. E. Cobern spent last week end in Birmingham with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie James Hayes, Jr.

Mrs. [illegible] Roper [illegible] a few days visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. "Sharp" Atcheson of Montgomery spent last week end here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Atcheson.

High School News—

Each year Maplesville School honors two students as the best representatives of the school. To be eligible for this title of the best representatives, a student must hold at least a "B" average; must be liked by the student body and always ready to take part in all the school activities. They were chosen last week by secret ballot by the entire student body. Winning this honor were Mr. George Smith, son of Mrs. Audrey Smith Atcheson, and Miss Eva Jo Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Walker, both residents of Maplesville. They are now "Mr. and Miss Maplesville School." Both are very deserving of this honor, and we do appreciate and congratulate them. Retiring last year's representatives were Mr. Charles Chapman and Miss Johnnie Fae Green.

In last week's News we stated that the football game played against West Blocton was the first time the Maplesville team had scored against this team. We were quickly reminded by some of the football team of the late 30's that they had scored against West Blocton in the years that the Brown brothers, Hicks brothers, Latham, Baisden, Cook, Williams, Tucker, Nix, Hayes and some others played for Maplesville High. We well remember what a great team they were. We are very sorry boys, and are glad to correct this. Guess the boys who gave this information were just too young to remember. They probably meant in [illegible] recent years.

Isabella defeated Maplesville last Friday night in a hard fought football game. Isabella took the [illegible] and on the first play passed [illegible] yards, the play carried within striking distance; a few plays they had six points. The fine passing of Ousley of Isabella seemed to be a blow from which Maplesville could not recover during the first half. Isabella tallied again in the first quarter to run the score 13-0 for the first half.

The last half opened with Maplesville taking the kick-off and going the length of the field on line bucks. Maplesville made it then 13-7 with another line buck for the extra point.

In the last quarter Maplesville marched down to the 4-yard line, only to be penalized 15 yards. It was a hard played game between two rivals and a very big crowd attended the game. The comment after the game was it was a thrilling game.

The football fans are expecting another thrilling game next Friday night here, October 14th, when Maplesville will play Plantersville High team. If it isn't the best, it won't be because Coach Kelley hasn't been working hard with his team.

The cheer leaders are also doing their best. So every one remember to come to this game.

The F.F.A. and the F.H.A. of Maplesville School finished selling chances on an electric stove and a ham last Friday night. Mr. Harry Higginbotham, Maplesville Dairyman, was the happy winner of the stove, and the winner of the ham was J[illegible] Ran[illegible] of Stanton.

PLENTIFUL FRUITS LISTED FOR MONTH

Three fruits — apples, grapes and pears — lead the list of plentiful foods for October.

According to Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist, these fresh fruits deserve generous use in budget meals and school children's lunch boxes while they are at their peak of supply and reasonable in price.

"For a lunch-box confection," adds the specialist, "remove pits from prunes, stuff with pecans or other nuts, and roll in sugar."

Drop-cookies are more likely to be round if dropped from a well-filled bouillon spoon rather than an ordinary spoon.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Some people got mad, I believe, about something I said in my last column about the band. Don't get sore, keeds, I'm afraid you all did not catch on to what I was talking about. I was not meaning to sound sarcastic.

I believe the Fair, last week, took up a bit of our students' time, didn't it, teachers? Oh well, I wouldn't worry, you know the Fair comes only once a year and we have to have a LITTLE fun.

You know, people are the funniest monkeys. Last Tuesday we went on a biology field trip and boy, did Bobby Shaw have fun. Say, come to think of it, he's not the only one that had fun. Joe Douglas Grooms and Myron Levine had a pretty good time, didn't you, Myron?

The game Friday night was almost a close one, wasn't it, football fans? You know it's not every game that comes to a score like 7 to 6 in our favor. But there's one thing about a game like that, it is interesting.

Looks like the new Senior teacher is going to fit into the groove nicely here at school, doesn't it, kids? Well, here's hoping we all enjoy her and that she enjoys us.

From what I hear some of the boys at practice every evening are a little lazy about, uh, practice, we'll say. And it's not the older boys, it's those smaller one's that don't care whether they play or not. Come on, fellas, you know you can't ever play if you don't try HARD.

Well, looks like the Fair was a success after all, and from the stories some of the kids told me, they had a lot of fun; I think!

I guess you heard about the one where the little boy passed the Army Camp with a donkey and two soldiers decided to have some fun with him.

One soldier said, "What are you holding on to your brother so tightly for, sonny?"

"So he won't join the Army," the boy said without hesitation.

And there's another one that goes like this: Telephone operator: "Is this 1749?"

Colored Maid: "Yassum."

Telephone Operator: "Is this Mrs. Blott's residence "

Colored Maid: "Yassum."

Telephone Operator: "Long distance from Washington."

Colored Maid: "Yassum, sho' is."

Looks like we are going to see some games at home after all, doesn't it, football fans? For at least two or three games, anyhow.

Mrs. DuBose was talking about someone cheating the other day which reminded me of the joke about the teacher and the small boy: "Were you copying his paper?"

No Sir, I was only looking to see if he had mine right." That's common sense, isn't it, kids?

Thorsby News

(By MISS C. N. TURNQ UIST — Correspondent)

Thorsby Institute News—

Robert Holley of Jemison, who is a Junior at Thorsby Institute, had charge of chapel recently. As he is much interested in working with the Royal Ambassadors in Jemison, he gave a very interesting talk about them.

At a business meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society Friday, October 7th, the Standing Rules for 1949-50 were adopted.

Miss Vida Mae Kelly, Commercial and English teacher at T. I., gave a very helpful talk in chapel Wednesday, October 5th.

Farrell Gibbons, who graduated last year, recently gave a nice enlarged picture (8x10) of the school building to Thorsby Institute. It hangs in the hall of the building. We appreciate his gift very much.

Baptist News—

Saturday, October 15, at 10:00 a.m., our Associational Young People's Rally will be held at Maple Springs. We would like for all of our young people to go and as many adults as possible. Please carry picnic lunch.

Three County Associational leaders of W.M.U. were chosen from our church and were installed last Wednesday at the meeting at Mulberry Church. They are: Mrs. W. R. Kendrick, President; Mrs. F. I. Dixon, Vice President; and Mrs. Charles Cleckler, Sec.-Treas.

Thorsby Baptists invite you to attend any of the church services.

School News—

Collins Chapel School, sponsored by the P.-T.A., is making plans for a Halowe'en Party at the school on October 28th. (Friday night at 7:30 p.m.) Already each room has chosen a Harvest King and Queen. This contest is expected to create much interest, as is the case already. It is 1c per vote. The winners will be crowned at the party.

The P.-T.A. president, Mrs. Weston Smith, and her capable helpers are much at work in trying to make this Halolwe'en Party the very best one yet.

On Friday a group of happy youngsters left school with this principal (Mr. Marion Smith) to see the State Fair. We know they had an enjoyable day.

Further information concerning our Hallowe'en Party will be given next week.

Surprise Birthday Party—

The family of Mr. W. J. Patrick came from all the four corners on last Sunday and gave him a big surprise birthday dinner. Also included in the surprise, they honored his mother, Mrs. T. L. Patrick, of Billingsley, Ala., on her 75th birthday; a sister, Mrs. Ida Davis. All three had birthdays within two or three days of one another, and so the big party was held for all.

Mr. Patrick attended church and on his return to his home, found the place teeming with relatives. He walked in and at first could not imagine what was taking place, but when he saw a hugh birthday cake on the dining table, flowers everywhere, he suddenly realized it was all on account of his birthday.

There were lovely Fall flowers everywhere, the dining table was lovely, with a hand made cloth of Queen Ann's lace, centered with a huge white birthday cake, made in the shape of a heart and heavily embossed with pink rosebuds, flanked with pink tapers in white candle holders.

Members of the Patrick family who attended this delightful affair were: Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Nichols and children, Sandra and Gary, of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. Zack Pennington, of Northport, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patrick and son, Bill, Miss Maudie Lee Patrick and Miss Bell Cox, of Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. T. L. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Patrick, Mrs. K. F. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Davis, of Billingsley, Ala.; Miss Emma Patrick, of Prattville, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott, of Clanton, Ala., besides Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strickland.

Mr. Patrick received a large number of gifts, and he was forced to go on a treasure hunt to get them. The family had a jolly reunion and "His Ornery the Mayor" as they called him, had a day that he will never forget.

Mrs. Jim Collins enjoyed having her sister visit with her last week. She is Mrs. M. Reed of Black Creek, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Archie Ogburn and children made a trip to Birmingham last Wednesday and took in the Fair. They had a wonderful time.

Mrs. Ralph Brown (Alpha Brown) returned Tuesday to her home in Lily, Pa., after visiting here for several days with relatives.

Among some of those who attended the State Fair last week were Mr. S. M. Pate and grandsons, Leonard Bosworth, Sara Nell Williams and many others. All reported a good time and a splendid Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Nichols and children, Sandra & Gary, spent the week end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patrick, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strickland.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bosworth, Mrs. John Brothers and Leonard Bosworth spent Sunday in Selma, Ala., with Mrs. Burt Bosworth and family.

Miss Alma Lefstead attended the reception at Isabella High School on Monday night, which was given by the P.-T.A. for their new principal, Mr. J. C. White.

Miss Arlene Petersen of New York arrived last week for a month's visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Marie Petersen, and other relatives.

Mrs. J. O. Johnson has been sort of on the puny list for several days, suffering with a back ailment. We hope that she will soon be her old jolly self again.

The many friends of Mr. Fred Howard regret that he is quite seriously ill at his home here. Mr. Fred has been in declining health now for some time, but has always been able to be up and around until the last few days when he was forced to go to bed. We hope that he will improve.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Bentley are vacationing in the Virginias and are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Robinson.

Our one and only Ernie "Jiggs" Hanson left early Tuesday morning for Bells, Tenn., in the interest of the frozen foods plant which is under consideration for Chilton County. Mr. Hanson made the trip with Mr. Reedie Taylor and "Red" Glasscock of Clanton, and Mr. Harry Daring, Agricultural Agent for the T.C.I. Company, Birmingham, Ala. They will visit the Winter Garden, Commercial Frozen Foods Co., owned and operated by Mr. Joe Tankersly, who will have everything in readiness for the group and will show them through the plant. Mr. Tankersly was at one time Chief Engineer for the building of the T.V.A. Plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Peterson spent the week end here with relatives. Mrs. Peterson's mother, Mrs. W. H. Goodgame, returned with them to Birmingham for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marcus entertained at a supper party on Sunday night Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McBee of Birmingham and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mims, and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goodgame of Columbus, Ga., spent Thursday and Friday of last week here visiting with his mother, Mrs. Bob Goodgame, the occasion being Mrs. Goodgame's 57th birthday.

Mrs. S. E. Sims and two young sons, Sammy and Johnny, arrived Monday afternoon from Atlanta. Mrs. Sims was called home on account of the serious illness of her father, Mr. Fred Howard.

Quite a number of friends called on Mrs. Bob Goodgame last Friday to help her celebrate her birthday. She received a lot of gifts and flowers, and though she is quite ill, she was able to enjoy having them come to see her.

MRS. IDA WILLIAMS

Mrs. Ida Williams, age 72, of Billingsley Route 1, died Saturday at 4:15 p.m. Funeral was held at 2:00 p.m. Monday from Shiloh Church, conducted by the Rev. J. I. Bice; interment was made in the church cemetery

Try this when making baking-powder biscuits. Roll them thinner than usual, butter one biscuit and place an unbuttered one on top. Then bake. They separately easily and are richer than the usual variety.

Paper cups make excellent containers for melted fat. When the fat is needed, the paper may be peeled off or slices of the desired size can be cut right through the cup. No fat is wasted, and no greasy containers have to be washed.

To use leftover veal, beef, or pork, slice it and dip each slice in catsup. Then roll them in bread crumbs and fry. Thus Sunday leftovers become a new dish on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Thompson returned on Monday night of last week, from a delightful trip to New Orleans, where they went to visit with their nephew, Mr. Conway Thornburgh, and Mrs. Thornburgh. They stayed here only long enough to pack up and leave for their home in Sebring, Fla., after having spent the summer here. We enjoyed having Mr. and Mrs. "Fix It" with us and hope that after wintering in Florida, they will be ready to come back to us again next summer.

In visiting with Mrs. Inga Anderson last Sunday, we found her in excellent spirits and feeling much better. Though she was resting in bed when we arrived, she informed us that she had been up and even been downstairs for a visit with the Littlefields, who occupy the downstairs apartment. We trust that Mrs. Anderson will continue to regain her health.

Mr. Ed Sims of Atlanta arrived Saturday to be at the bedside of his father-in-law, Mr. Fred Howard, who lies critically ill at his home here. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth O'Barr and children of Decatur, Ala., also arrived to be with him. Mrs. O'Barr is a daughter of Mr. Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Anderton and two children of Greenville, Ala., visited last week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam F. Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chaple and little daughter of Opelika, Ala., spent the week end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raybon.

Mr. H. C. Williams, Sr., is in Birmingham with his father, who is seriously ill.

Rev. and Mrs. Dewey Robinson left Monday morning for Alberquerque, N. M., where Rev. Robinson will pastor a Baptist Church. The Robinsons have been visiting with relatives here for some weeks. Their many friends here wish them much success and happiness in their new field.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ogburn enjoyed the company of his mother, Mrs. Lulu Willis, and his aunt, Mrs. Lewis Kennedy, for several days last week. Mr. Ogburn had not seen his aunt, who lives in Winter Garden, Fla., for thirty years. On last Sunday they left for Alexander City, accompanied by Mr. Ogburn, and there they visited with a lot of other relatives. They all had a most happy time together.

Mrs. C. McCain is reported to be a little better, but is still confined to the South Highland Infirmary, where she was taken last week. We trust that she wil continue to improve.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Collins are proud grandparents. Their daughter, Mrs. Earl Wilson, gave birth to a fine 8¼-pound boy on last Sunday in a Birmingham hospital. They have named him William Lynn. In telling about the first glimpse of the little fellow, Mr. Collins said, "You know, when they brought the baby into the nursery and put him in front of this large window, all the grandparents were standing there anxiously waiting to see him, and said when they put him in his little bassinet, all sweet and clean, and oh, such a fat little fellow, he suddenly looked up and caught sight of his grandparents and burst out and squawled to the top of his voice." He better get used to them, for we imagine he is going to see a lot of Grandpa Delbert and Grandma Alley. Congratulations to the happy family.

Mrs. Anna Phalin arrived Sunday morning from Chicago, Ill., where she went to join her son for a visit before he had to leave for Korea. Mrs. Phalin had been away for a month and intended staying for a longer visit with her many relatives in the North, but she was recalled to her home here on account of the serious illness of her brother, Mr. Fred Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howard arrived Monday p.m. from Charleston, S. C., to be at the bedside of their uncle, Mr. Fred Howard, also to be with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reynolds, of Jemison, who are both ill.

We visited with Mrs. Chas. Peterson this week and are glad to report that she seems very much improved. She is able to be up and around a good deal of the time now. We hope that she will continue to improve.

Mrs. Estelle Hayes and Paula Margaret, Mrs. Susie Benson, Mrs. Paul Davis and Mrs. Askew Davis shopped in Birmingham last Monday.

The Ladies Guild will hold its next regular meeting on October 27th, at the home of Mrs. S. F. Higdon. All members and friends interested in Thorsby Institute are urged to attend.

Ex-Latvian Knows CROP Food Value

Displaced from her home in Latvia to a camp for the homeless in Germany, Miss Jan Vitans, above, knows from bitter personal experience the desperate plight of refugees around the world

Now living in Ohio, Miss Vitans, who wants to live in America "forever," has become an eager booster of the Christian Rural Overseas program (CROP). This is the cooperative church project through which 3500 railroad carloads of bulk farm commodities are sought in this and 32 other states for the needy overseas. CROP is sponsored by Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service (22 Protestant denominations) and Lutheran World Relief.

"Help through CROP is urgently needed—I know," Miss Vitans says. "The unfortunate refugees and other starving people over there can't get anything. They are human beings just like we are, except they are without hope. CROP food means life and a future to them."

A Good Thing

Ran into Gov. James E. Folsom on the street in Clanton the other day. He was just passing through, but in conversation he told us of his plans to have his Cabinet meet with him at several designated points over the state. He feels that this would be of help to the citizens of the state and give them an opportunity to meet and talk with their State Department heads.

Gov. Folsom thinks in terms of the "average man," which of course is the secret of his popularity. He thinks of things that would benefit you, and you, and you. His plan to have his cabinet meet in the various courthouses and bring them closer to the people is a fine example of his thoughtfulness along that line.

Personally we think it a good idea. Never before has the little man had the opportunity to meet men and see the workings of the state department. That is, unless he is in trouble and there on business.

It's Life

We're going through that stage in life when we are prone to pull the little "boners" habitual to men with too many matters on their mind at one time. When this happens the young bucks smile behind our back and think: "Poor old thing." It seems so funny to us because it's been such a short time since we were smiling behind the backs of our elders and thinking: "Poor old thing."

Inviting Law Violations

The Alabama legislature has passed a law providing farmers with a five cents a gallon rebate on gasoline used by tractors.

The State Commissioner of Revenue promptly ordered that gas, to be used in tractors, had to be colored mahogany red. By coloring tractor gas, the state tax collectors hoped to prohibit widespread use of tax rebate fuel in passenger cars.

A Troy legislator has gone to court and secured a temporary injunction voiding the revenue department ruling. Unless there is a reversal by the court, the same gas purchased for a passenger car can be put into a tractor and the five cents a gallon kickback secured.

Without some striking differentation between tractor gas and petrol that is put in a passenger type vehicle, the State of Alabama is going to invite violations of the law on a scale that we have not known since the days of prohibition.—Andalusia Star News.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

The ladies of the Methodist W.S.C.S. want it known that they are co-sponsors of the Rodeo to be held at the City Park Saturday night. The other week we stated the Lions would sponsor the affair. Our error; we know well enough, one should never ignore the ladies.

Checking back through the old files of Chilton County News we find that this Fall Folks & Things is ten years old. We also learned that the column haw been written more than 500 times and if the column was laid end to end it would fill a newspaper of more than fifty pages. That's a lot of hot air—if you know what we mean.

Speaking of hot air, all indications point to the fact that old man winter is right around the corner. That Thanksgiving is only a short month away and in about nine weeks you will be helping old Saint Nick down the chimney. Which gets us around to what we wanted to say in the first place: We have some of the most beautiful Christmas Cards at the News office for a buck a box. And several assortments to select from.

Farrell Williamson tells the Girl Friday the reason his nose is in the air now-a-days isn't because he drives that big Buick. It's because he's trying to see over the dash-board.

The new Baptist parsonage is nearing completion. It will certainly be a credit to Clanton and to the Baptist Church. It is located on Fourth Street and Third Avenue, North.

Legally, the husband is the head of the house and the pedestrain has the right of way. Both husband and pedestrain are fairly safe unless they try to exercise their rights.

A young astronomer told his friend: "Why, my friend, science is doing wonderful things out in the world. On a high mountain in the West, we have a telescope that is so powerful that we can look 3,000 miles away and see the eyelashes of a beautiful girl!" Friend: "That's pretty good, but who wants to see a pretty girl so far away?"

With some folks "no" is like a comma—it doesn't mean a complete stop.

Milton Barth is the new president of Clanton Country Club. The Club has enjoyed the greatest progress since it's organization, the past year. Mr. Barth will make a progressive president and with the cooperation of the members the Country Club should advance still farther towards the ultimate goal. We congratulate him and wish him well. R. C. Williams is immediate past president.

Clyde Mims' home out on Selma Road is fast becoming a reality. Folks in South Clanton will hate to give the Mims up after all these years, but we understand Clyde is building the kind of a house they want—plenty of room, inside and out. One thing, they are going into a group of wonderful neighbors as well as leave wonderful neighbors.

A resident owned a goat. His next door neighbor was the tax assessor, and did not like the idea of having a goat so close to him. So he taxed his neighbor's goat $4. The owner of the goat demanded to know by what right. "That is strictly in accordance with the law,' said the tax assessor. "Give me proof, said the neighbor. The assessor thereupon read from the official records: "All property abutting on the public street shall be taxed at the rate of $2 per front foot.

The Lord's Day

Te first day of the week is known to Christians as "The Lord's Day." It is the day on which Jesus arose from the dead. And the resurrection of Jesus Christ was an all-important event; it was the greatest event of the New Testament history. The resurrection proved the Sonship of Jesus; and it assured them of the needed power for service, and for living victorious lives over the devil. The resurrection also assures every Christian of a bodily resurrection and immortality of the soul. On this Lord's Day the power of death and hell was broken; and Jesus appeared to his disciples. On this day of the week Jesus commissioned the Church to preach the Gospel to all nations. The glad tidings of his Resurrection was first proclaimed on the Lord's Day. It was on this day of the week that the Holy Spirit was poured out on the church, and the followers of Christ received power from on high to carry on the work of the Kingdom.

A. T. HICKMAN

This Lord's Day is a day of rest and worship is a physical necessity to man. Man needs a day of rest and relaxation. France tried a system of giving one day out of ten, but found that would not work to the physicial condition of man; that man needed a rest day oftener than one day out of ten. They had to go back to God's original arrangement, one day out of seven. The Lord's Day is a mental necessity to man. Think of the appalling increase of mental breakdowns in this country. It is because people are living abnormal lives, ignoring the law ot God regarding a Sabbath. The superintendent of a state institution for the insane was asked what was the main cause of the present day insanity, he replied, "Seven days work without Sunday rests." The work of the week if you are never free from it, shakes the nerves, dulls the senses, attacks the brain, and transform man into a cipher.

The Lord's Day is a National necessity. Good character is a force in economics. Observance of the Lord's Day is not simply a religious rite, but an economic need. Quietness and relaxation from the vortex of daily affairs is necessary for people in business as the sunshine is for all plant life. Meditation in God's Word, vision, faith and worship offer the greatest source of physical, mental and spiritual power. Friends, remember the Lord's Day, and keep it holy.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

DON'T DO IT

How often have you stated that you have an ailment and had a friend offer you a dose of medicine that was prescribed for the same trouble? A prescription is a personal matter. After the physician has made a careful study of the patient's illness and his needs, he writes a prescription for a definite person with a definite ailment. Only through its proper use will the patient derive full benefit from it.

Some patients do not follow the directions either as to size or frequency of the dose, and they sometimes use the same prescription for various ailments. The foolish decide for themselves that if one dose makes them feel better, then two doses at once should be twice as beneficial. This is a dangerous decision, for a double dose or doses taken more frequently than indicated may nullify the benefits —even cause serious reaction.

The prescription is written by the physician for the treatment of a given disease or for relief of a given symtom in a certain individual. Drugs act differently in difficent people. Children are usually more sensitive to drugs than adults, and women are more susceptible to certain drugs than men. The dose of a given drug may be satisfactory for one and not for another. In fact it may cause grave trouble.

Misuse of a prescription can lead to trouble. Just don't do it. Follow your physician's instructions and remember that the prescription and instructions for its use were for you and no one else.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS BIBLE WEEK IN STATE FOR OCTOBER 17th-23rd

MONTGOMERY — Saying that, "Oneof the brightest guiding lights of mankind down through the ages has been his faith in the existance of some spiritual power greater than his own", Governor James E. Folsom has proclaimed Oct. 17-23 as Bible Week in Alabama.

In issuing the executive proclamation, the Governor said, "The laws by which we live and work and have remained free were derived to a large extent from the teachings and principles embodied in the Bible.

"All the peoples of the world are looking as never before to their own particular spiritual faith to lead them out of the dark days with which they are faced at the present time".

In urging the observance, the governor called on all Alabamians "to devote an added amount of time in studying their individual faiths and the teachings of the Holy Bible".

VETS ARE STILL EXEMPT FROM BUSINESS LICENSES FOR LACK OF TREATY

MONTGOMERY—Even if you were just discharged from service yesterday you can still come under the law that exempts veterans in Alabama from buying business licenses

This was the recent ruling handed down by Attorney General A. A. Carmichael. The attorney general said that all ex-servicemen who put in at least 90 days in the armed forces, are entitled to the exemption since no formal treaty of peace has been signed ending World War II

The law, Carmichael said, provided for the exemptions for those who served between Sept.. 16, 1940, and the date that the formal treaty of peace is adopted

The request for an opinion was rendered by Probate Judge J. S. Burch of Russell County.

During the Civil War, employees of mills, foundries, and factories in Alabama supplying the Confederacy with war materials were exempt from military service.

Increase in Business and Efficiency Given as Cause

MONGOMERY—Alabama taxpayers paid in more taxes during the 1948-49 operational year than in any other single year during the history of the state.

In announcing that his department collected a total of $94,828,175 during this period, State Revenue Commissioner Phillip J. Hamm said that this amount represents an increase of more than $6,700,000 over the amount taken in during the previous year.

Hamm said that the increase was due to a large extent to an upsweep in business over the state and the increasing of the department's efficiency in making collections. The commissioner said that in one field—the state income tax—the department humped collections from $6,000,000 in 1946 to $14,000,000 last year.

Hamm said that a portion of the increased collection of the income tax was caused by the department's practice of photostating federal returns. This practice was begun during the present administration in an attempt to plug loop holes in the collections of the state's income levy.

All of the main revenue producing levies showed an increase over the preceding fiscal year with the exception of the tobacco tax which hit a $33,488 slump. The greatest increase was registered by the gasoline tax which rose $2,029,356 over the 1947-48 figure. Next in line was the income tax with an increase of $1,683,683 while the sales tax jumped $233,349 over the amount collected during the last fiscal year.

The previous high for collections was registered during the 1947-48 period when the department took in more than $88,000,000.

State Senator Langan Accepts Mobile Post

MONTGOMERY — State Senator Joseph Langan has been chosen by Gov. Folsom to fill a vacancy which recently occured on Mobile County's Board of Revenue.

The new board member's term will run until November, 1950.

The vacancy was brought about by the resignation October 1, of J. R. Mitternight. Mitternight was recently elected as a city commissioner.

NUMBER OF WEDDINGS IN STATE CONTINUE TO DROP

MONTGOMERY—The number of couples taking marital vows in Alabama decreased by 1,043 during the first six months of this year from that of the same period during 1948.

During the first half of last year some 9,755 couples were married in the state, as compared to 8,713 for the period ending June, 1949.

Alabama's marriage rate during both of these periods combined is considerably lower than the 21,824 recorded for the first six months of 1947.

These figures were released by the State Health Department.

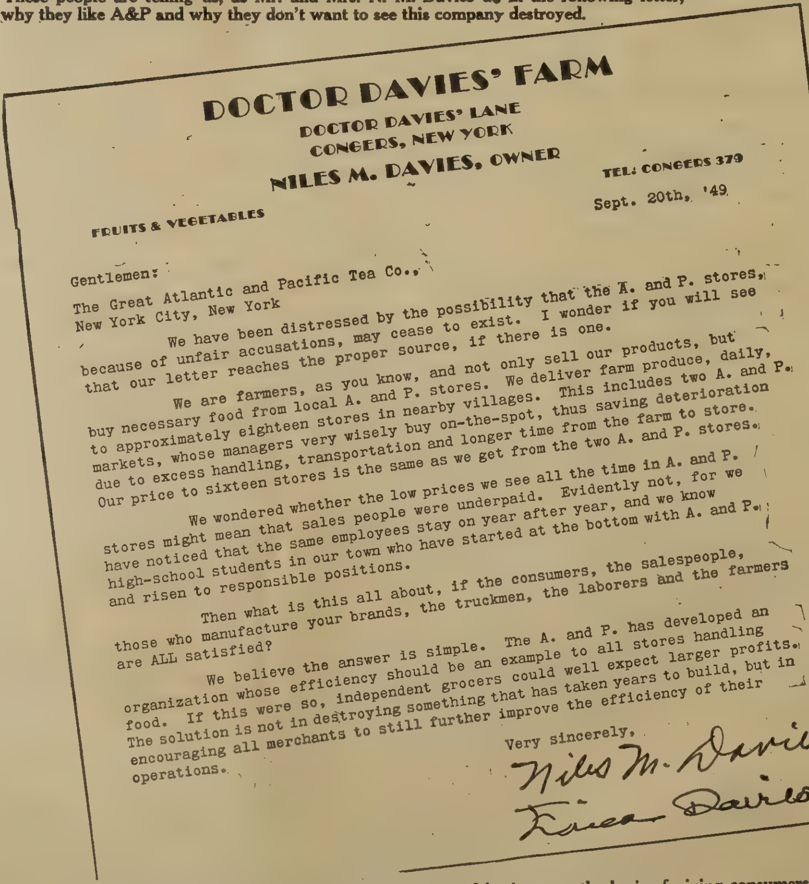
OF CONGERS, NEW YORK

We're Sure that Millions of Farmers and Consumers Feel Just as You Do!

One of the wonderful things about Americans is their great sense of fair play.

Ever since the anti-trust lawyers announced their intention of putting A&P out of business, tremendous numbers of people like Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Davies of Congers, New York, have deluged us with letters, wires and phone calls.

These people are telling us, as Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Davies do in the following letter, why they like A&P and why they don't want to see this company destroyed.



DOCTOR DAVIES' FARM

Sept. 20th, '49

Gentlemen:

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.,
New York City, New York

We have been distressed by the possibility that the A. and P. stores, because of unfair accusations, may cease to exist. I wonder if you will see that our letter reaches the proper source, if there is one.

We are farmers, as you know, and not only sell our products, but buy necessary food from local A. and P. stores. We deliver farm produce, daily, to approximately eighteen stores in nearby villages. This includes two A. and P. markets, whose managers very wisely buy on-the-spot, thus saving deterioration due to excess handling, transportation and longer time from the farm to store. Our price to sixteen stores is the same as we get from the two A. and P. stores.

We wondered whether the low prices we see all the time in A. and P. stores might mean that sales people were underpaid. Evidently not, for we have noticed that the same employees stay on year after year, and we know high-school students in our town who have started at the bottom with A. and P. and risen to responsible positions.

Then what is this all about, if the consumers, the salespeople, those who manufacture your brands, the truckmen, the laborers and the farmers are ALL satisfied?

We believe the answer is simple. The A. and P. has developed an organization whose efficiency should be an example to all stores handling food. If this were so, independent grocers could well expect larger profits. The solution is not in destroying something that has taken years to build, but in encouraging all merchants to still further improve the efficiency of their operations.

Very sincerely,

Niles M. Davies

Erica Davies

For 90 years this company has tried to build a sound business on the basis of giving consumers more good food for their money and giving farmers better markets for their products.

It is heartening to know that the public approves of the job we have done . . . to know that our policy of fair, honest dealing has won us the friendship of millions of consumers and farmers.

We will always be grateful to all our good friends who have offered us their help.

We are proud to live in a country where such things can happen.

Here's The Way To Receive What Your Cotton Is Worth

As the cotton harvesting and marketing season advances, several interesting trends appear.

Those who are interested in cotton, are familiar with the smaller size of this year's crop. However, not so well known is the fact that the staple length is longer than last year's. In fact, the report on Alabama ginnings thru Sept. 15, shows 86 percent to be 1 1-32 inch long or longer. At this time last year the percentage was 73 percent.

On the other hand, the specialist says that cotton grade is lower so far this year than for the same period in 1948. But, Alabama does have the highest percentage of Middling of any Southeastern state.

These are the reasons Jones advises cotton growers to learn the grade and staple length of each bale of cotton before selling. Warehousemen will assist growers in obtaining this service by forwarding samples to the government classing office serving their areas.

1949 COTTON PICTURE IS SOMEWHAT DULLED

Reports show that Alabama's average cotton yield in 1939 was 182 pounds of lint per acre and the average price was 9.4 cents per pound. After comparing this yield with the 246 pounds estimated for 1949 and realizing that the loan value of all grades and staples should average 29 cents or better, it would seem that this is a good cotton year.

"On the other hand," reveals O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist, "this year's crop is among the most expensive ever produced. The yield is lower than it has been since 1941; and the price is lower than it has been since 1945. These are the facts that dull the 1949 cotton picture.

CASTRATING PIGS

Early fall pigs should be castrated at about six weeks of age so they will get over the shock and be ready to make fastest possible gains when they go into the feed lot or the corn field.

Custards fail because they are cooked at too high a temperature or because they are cooked too long.

A Good Sportsman Is Safety-Minded

Auburn, Ala. — Every good sportsman is safety-minded, believes Earl F. Kennamer, A.P.I. Extension Service fish and wildlife specialist.

He says that now is the time to review all safety rules. They are nothing more than acts of courtesy, but failure to observe them may result in injury or death.

The National Safety Council has determined the main causes for two-thirds of hunting accidents. The first cause is the human being in the line of fire; second, mistaking human beings for game; and third, hunting with the safety catch off.

"Every gun should be considered loaded whether it is or not," adds Kennamer. "Carelessness can mean the loss of an eye, limb, or life."

STORING SWEET POTATOES

The first job is to thoroughly clean storage house by removing all dirt and rubbish. Then the house should be made air tight before fumigating.

WINTER GREEN

Blankets of green on our fields in winter put folds of green in farmer's pockets.

POULTRY MANAGEMENT

Automatic water fountains in poultry houses reduce labor about one-half.

Protect Your Soil And You Will Harvest Better Corn

SELECT ONE PLACE TO DO ALL SEWING

Auburn, Ala. — Most women find that sewing is much easier when all supplies and equipment are in one part of the house.

Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist, suggests that the end of an upstair's hall or a corner anywhere with proper storage space for sewing supplies be used to make a nice sewing room.

She adds that a cutting table, drawers to hold patterns and other small supplies, ironing board, full length mirror, good lights, sewing machine, and a comfortable chair are the permanent fixtures of the sewing corner

"Few homes have a table large enough for cutting an adult size garment;" agrees Miss Ellis, "however, a cutting table, size 40" x 72," built to drop down against the hall when not in use may be made of lightweight plyboard."

HENS UNDER LIGHTS

During the period from October 1, 1948, to February 28, 1949, experimental work at one state experiment station shows that hens under all-night lights produced 17 more eggs each than hens not under lights.

[illegible] time for [illegible] farmers to [illegible] ear's corn [illegible] A.P.I. [illegible] agronomist.

He points out that the very first thing to do is plant a winter cover crop now if this has not been done. It will protect the land against erosion and leaching during the winter. When it is turned under in the spring, valuable nitrogen and organic matter will be added to the soil.

Lowery emphasizes the fact that when a winter cover crop is put on corn land yearly, it will help boost corn yields up to 40 or 50 bushels per acre in most cases.

USE HONEY WHILE IT IS PLENTIFUL

A product in abundant supply this year—one for the sweet tooth—is honey.

"The Government, through the price support program, has purchased large supplies of honey in heavy producing areas," discloses A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist. "Much of this is being distributed through the school lunch program; however, a plentiful supply for consumers is available."

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT DISCUSSES CURRENT SCHOOL SITUATION

A new school year finds us still facing a serious situation regarding school facilities and equipment.

Each year sincere efforts are made to improve the teaching standards and each year brings gratifying results along this line. The number of teachers with little or no college training has been reduced from 37 last year to 23 this year, all of which have attended college. The average training has increased more than one-half year per teacher since last year. This is real progress that parents and pupils alike appreciate.

This improvement in teaching personnel, like all types of improvement, has cost money. The State's appropriation for education increased considerably this year, but almost the entire increase is required to take care of the improved teaching staffs. This means, of course, that money for other purposes is limited to about the same as last year while the need has grown rapidly. Our old buildings, buses, and other equipment take quite an amount to maintain and keep in condition. All of this means that there will be a very limited amount of new building or purchase of new equipment this year.

Many communities are meeting this crisis by putting forth greater local efforts. This shows a wonderful school spirit, and is necessary until some better, more adequate system of public financing is developed. The Board greatly appreciates this effort on the part of local communities.

A trip to the booths will be exciting. Everyone likes to "fish" at the fishpond, "bob" for apples, visit the fortune teller, and join in the cake walk.

A cake will be awarded to the prettiest girl and ugliest man. Two prizes will be given for the most clever costumes.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Looks like the band's improving as it goes along, isn't it, kids? Maybe we kinda underestimated them. Could it be?

Someone told me the other day that Joe Blair says he can't get close to girls nowadays, he says they make him sneeze. In other words, girls, he's allergic to you. (Say, Joe, you're fixed up just fine, it's the other way around with me. I'm not allergic to them. Seems more like they're allergic to me. Oh well, can't have everything, dadgummit).

Boy, did we wipe up Verbena last Friday night? You know, we don't do that all the time. But we have got to say this for Verbena (and you can't say it about every school), they were good, clean sports all through the game, and they gave us a pretty good fight, but, anyhow, we won.

From the looks of the guys and gals faces, I'd say the Drive-in Theatre is a big success, and I do mean big. Seems that Saturday night there were quite a few of our high school students who attended the show and were pleased with what they saw and did. Well, here's hoping it keeps on the road to successful business because if it don't there's going to be a lot of boys disappointed.

Well, kids, how did you like the Chit-Chatter? Not bad for the first time, was it? But of course, it will get better as it goes along. Anyhow, if it doesn't it will be the students' fault, not the editor or printer, or anyone else, remember?

The animal show we had last week proved that animals are smarter than some people. Brother, when they say "The world's most versatile trained pony," they aren't just fooling. Man, that pony could do almost anything but talk (and I'm not exaggerating).

Say, speaking of animals, those Siberian sleigh dogs really know what they are doing, don't they, students? They really put on a swell act and I do believe there wasn't a person there who didn't enjoy every minute of it.

I believe the girls in school are trying to take over the doggone place. It's getting to where you can't even get run into by one of them that they don't fly off of the handle, and it isn't even your fault. Oh well, boys, there's going to be women and you can't expect much more.

I hear we're supposed to have a homecoming dance at the high school the night of the Sylacauga game. Listen to this, will you? Boy and girl $1.00.

Boy—stag, $1.00.

Girl, by herself, nothing! See, fellas' what did I tell you about women?

IN MEMORY

In memory of our precious husband and father who passed away October 1, 1949:

Someone we loved was called away,
The call was short, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
And only those who have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
A sweet, loving life that came to an end.
He died as he lived,
Everybody's friend.

Sadly missed by his wife and children.—Mrs. Sam Mitchell and children.

COTTON REFERENDUM ON MARKETING QUOTA

The Secretary of Agriculture has proclaimed a national marketing quota of 11,733,750 bales (standard bales of 500 gross weight) for the 1950 cotton crop and announced a national acreage allotment of 21,000,000 acres.

At the same time he announced a national referendum to be held Dec. 15, 1949, in which farmers will vote for or against the marketing quota.

B. L. Collins, executive officer of the Production and Marketing Administration says that state and county committees are now compiling acreage data upon which to base farm acreage allotments. Each cotton farm operator should receive his individual farm allotment before the referendum date.

RE-PLANT VEGETABLES THAT DID NOT COME UP

Auburn, Ala.— Those who have fall gardens that failed to come up because of dry weather still have time to plant.

J. C.. Ford, API Extension Service garden specialist, suggests that onion sets, turnips, mustard, Siberian kale, radishes, lettuce, cabbage, and collards be planted.

"The place to plant," says the specialist, "is on a protected spot on the south side of a building, a hedge row, or a hill. Garden-fresh vegetables are worth the risk of 25 or 50 cents for seed and a dollar for fertilizer."

WHAT TO DO WITH LEG BANDS ON GAME BIRDS

More than 100,000 water fowl and nearly 5,000 mourning doves were banded thruout the continent during the past year. And it is likely that Alabama sportsmen will take some of these birds. .

"Whenever a band is discovered," says Earl F. Kennamer, API Extension Service fish and wildlife specialist, "the hunter should flatten the band and send it along with information concerning the bird to the Bird Banding Office, Patuxent Research Refuge, Laurel, Maryland. This information should include the tag number, and when, where and how the bird was taken.

"Every hunter who sends in this information with the leg band can consider himself a part of the conservation machinery designed to develop better hunting for all sportsmen and to increase the information now on hand concerning migratory habits of valuable game species."

SWEETPOTATOES FOR HOGS

Many Alabama farmers find that the most profitable method of utilizing cull sweetpotatoes is to let hogs gather them.

SMOOTHING LAND

A log or board drag behind the disc harrow will smooth the land. Smooth land insures proper penetration of planting equipment, uniform depth of planting, or, in other words, best operation of cultivating and harvesting equipment.

SELL NON-LAYERS

Non-layers may be detected by their small, rough, pale comb and the dull, shrunken appearance of the eyes.

SELECT BEST PLACE FOR HOME FREEZER

Auburn, Ala.— When a family seeks the best place for a freezer, usual prospects are the kitchen, utility room, basement or garage. In some localities, a back porch or shed or other outhouse may provide suitable temperature, dryness, and flooring.

"While the kitchen often seems the handiest place for a home freezer," says Lavada Curtis, food preservation specialist, "convenience can usually play second fiddle to good operating conditions because the freezer need be opened only once or twice a day. A point to consider is that a kitchen or utility room is likely to be warm, and operation of a freezer will add heat."

She suggests that if a basement location is considered, keep the freezer well apart from the furnace, and don't put a freezer in a basement if there is a chance of flooding. Last but not least, if a freezer is to be carried thru doorways or up and down stairs, it is a wise family that takes measurements before the freezer is brought home.

Remove window screens before winter. This will save the screens, and at the same time the rain will help keep windows clean

You Tell Us The Answer

Several weeks ago a small group of local men got together and decided to get something done about the accident record of Chilton County. Chilton County hasn't such an awful record as judged by other places, but that does not lessen the responsibility that is on all of us to try to save lives, the suffering, and the money that is lost annually in our county through careless driving and handling of motor vehicles.

There was a small parade in Clanton on Saturday, two weeks ago, organized by the local citizens with the hope of bringing to mind the vital necessity of careful driving. A dozen or more men put a lot of time and energy into getting that thought over to the driving public. They also put their cash into the undertaking when they furnished their wreckers, and their ambulances.

And then we wonder if the work, the trouble, and the money you spend is worthwhile. The speaker who comes from Montgomery to talk to you on public safety, and what it means to each of you, gets practically no one to listen to him.

The following week more wrecks occur on our highways than in several months—within a given time. Motorists are killed within a very few miles of where a half dozen wrecked automobiles were drawn through our streets in which some had been killed, some maimed, some only "cut and bruised."

None are so blind as those who will not see.
What is the answer?

* * * *

It's Hallowe'en Again

When Hallowe'en night rolls around next week you boys and girls have a good time, but let's not be destructive. It's possible.

There are many games and harmless pranks you can play on your friends and playmates. Anyway, a lot of those tall tales you have heard from the older generation of what they did when they were kids, is probably more fiction than truth. And then if it was truth, that doesn't make it right to do things that cause other people a lot of trouble and worry.

When some of the "gang" wants to put Mr. Brown's cow on Mr. Green's barn, and thinks it's funny, you put a stop to it. You get a lot more pleasure out of doing good things for people than you ever will doing mean things.

Low Down

The juveniles or the grown-ups with juvenile minds, who threw the red paint on the newly finished home of Cobern Bradley the past week should be apprehended and dealt with as he (or she) deserves.

What the trouble may be, or what prompted the vandals to such lawlessness, we do not know, but we do know it was a low-down, mean, dirty, trick, and our local officers should take no rest until the guilty party is caught and punished.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Hobson Searcy is wondering what goes on. For days a little dog has followed Hobson around his mail route (he's a City Carrier), sticking close to his heels, day after day. One day last week when he got over in West End the little dog stopped at the home of the Rev. Burke, and there he stayed. When Hobson came along next day, again the little dog joined him and followed along at his heels the complete distance of his mail route—and has each day since. What it's all about Hobson doesn't know, but he's wondering.

That yellow paint on the curb stone on the east side of Seventh Street doesn't mean "welcome" motorists. It means park elsewhere you all. According to Ed Littlejohn the city officer who has been checking the parking meters they are just about ready to start enforcing the parking ordinances. Don't be surprised to find that expensive little calling card on your windshield any day now. That is, if you are parking law violator.

The little boy was studying his spelling. He spelled a word several times for his older sister and each time it was wrong. Finally she told him to add "ed." He looked around at his sister and in a disgusted voice, said: "I'm spelling; I ain't adding.

So many candidates popping up all over the state for this office and that, and so many local names coming into the limelight in regards local offices to be filled next spring, reminds us of the fellow who told his candidate friend that he made a mighty good speech but he couldn't tell which side of the question he favored. "I know," said the candidate, "it took me five hours to write it that way."

Time To Apply Borer Control Measures To Peach Trees

Timely peach tree management tips include "Peach Tree Borer" control measurers and "Phony Peach" control measurers.

BORER CONTROL

It is now time to apply Borer Control measures to peach trees. It is safe to assume that all trees -young and old- need to be treated.

Parascalecide, Ethylene Dichloride emulsion, or for trees three years old Paradichlorobenzine are still the effective borer control materials. A number of growers have the idea that DDT is the number one recommendation now. This is not true. DDT has been effectively used in experimental trials by spraying three DDT formulations, beginning in June and continuing at 30 day intervals thru August. This practice needs more study and trial. For October treatment use one of the above tried and proven methods in the concentration and amount recommended by the manufacturer.

As a general rule parascalecide (commonly called liquid gas) is mixed one part Parascalecide to seven parts water and applied at the rate of 1-2 pint per tree for trees under 3 years old and one pint per tree for trees over three years in age. This is applied with measuring cup or dipper by pouring material on lower scaffold limbs and crotches and allowing it to run down the trunk of the trees and puddle around the cleaned base. It is covered with a few shovelfuls of dirt. Pack dirt to form rather tight mound The mounds should be torn down in 4 to six weeks.

Paradichlorobenzine (commonly called Chrystal gas) is applied in similiar fashion except that a small band of this material is placed approximately 1 inch from the base of the tree. This material is not safe to use on trees under four years old.

It is important to treat trees for "Borers" now. Materials used later when the average daily temperature is below 70 degrees is practically money wasted.

PHONY PEACH CONTROL

Experimental workers attempting to find cause and cure of this disease have found that leaf hopper insects are spreading "Phony." The number of leaf hoppers are very heavy in the late growing season. To prevent spread of "Phony" they recommended complete removal of diseased trees. This is to reduce the possibility of leaf hoppers feeding on diseased wood and spreading the disease to the healthy trees. Peach producers that have infected trees standing should make a special effort to remove them immediately.

FOLSOM NAMES REGIONAL EDUCATIONAL BOARD REPRESENTATIVES FOR ALA.

Governor James E. Folsom has appointed Alabama's three members to the Southern Regional Education Program's Board of Control.

Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute. Cardon was appointed to serve a four-year term, while Drs. Caldwell and Patterson were appointed for a three and a two-year term respectively.

The program is sponsored by the Southern Governors' Conference and may be participated in by both white and Negro students.

THE COMMON COLD

The common cold—medically known as coryza—plays no favorites. It attacks almost anyone and is the most important single cause of absenteeism in industry. Caused by a virus, colds are most prevalent during October and November, the holiday season of December and early January and March and April. The virus phase of a cold is most contagious in the first twenty-four hours.

The best way to "treat" a cold is to prevent it, for the only real cure is the body's ability to overcome the infection.

There are, for the purpose, a few simple rules to be observed. First: Keep dry. Keep out of drafts and hot, dry, stuffy rooms. Dress according to the weather. Eat a well-balanced diet. Be clean. Wash the hands frequently and keep them away from the nose and mouth as much as possible. Get plenty of rest. See your doctor if symptoms appear.

Next, many persons who are exposed to colds do not contract them because they are in generally good physical condition. The opposite state is illustrated by the person who is so susceptible that he appears to have one constantly. The lesson is obvious: Take good care of yourself and your system may resist the infection successfully.

Third and of great importance, the cold virus is spread from person to person by droplets in the air, distributed by the coughing, sneezing, talking or spitting of patients. Avoid them! If you can, persuade such people to stay at home. If you can't mention to them that they should use a handerchief. Better hurt their feelings than let them spread virus. If they won't do that, get away from them.

Rest in bed is the first essential in the treatment of the common cold. It reduces the threat of complications and the isolation prevents spread of the disease. The room should have plenty of fresh air. Take care of that cold, and don't spread it to others.

GREEN COVER GUARDS SOIL AGAINST RAINS

Auburn, Ala. — Green fields are appearing throughout Alabama. They are covered with small grains, winter legumes, and other winter crops.

"It's hard to over-emphasize the erosion-prevention value of this cover when it is used," declares J. C. Lowery, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist.

He explains that the blasting of soil particles by rain drops is usually the first step in erosion. Once the soil particles are detached from the surface by splattering, they can be carried away readily by run-off water. Therefore, any kind of cover that will break up the force of rain drops is better than no cover.

Lowery adds that those who live in south Alabama still have time to plant vetch, crimson clover, Caley peas, Austrain peas, and blue lupine.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Well, looks kinda like we got beat again, doesn't it, football fans? You know, it's like I said, you can't win every time. Anyhow we were saving our energy for next week's game.

Don't seem like criticizing these girls helps much around here. I turned a corner in the hall the other day and bumped into one of them, and before I could get a word in edgewise she says, "Why dontcha' watch where you're going?" (Nice lady-like manner of telling one where to get off, don't you think?)

Oh well, I guess there are still some ladies, but I haven't run into one yet!

Boy, when you walk to school with a new girl in this town it's like you were deformed or something, people stare holes through you. (I don't imagine it'll kill me though.)

Didja' hear about the one where the college student and the professor were discussing the student's grade? Well, the student said, "I don't believe I deserve this zero on my report card, professor."

So the professor says, "I don't believe it either, but it's the lowest mark I'm allowed to give in this school." Boy, that's strictly putting your foot in, isn't it, kids? I'll bet some of the teachers at the school feel the same way sometimes.

I hear there was some weeping and wailing last week end on account of the bad grades. Say, students, these parents just don't understand, do they? Sometimes they act like they never went to school.

I saw a little girl coming from the store kind of late the other day, so I thought I would stop and see what happened. When she got about half way between the busses and the store, it seemed her bus pulled off without waiting for her. So instead of running to catch it she just sat down and cried right there in the middle of the sidewalk. Well, it turned out that it wasn't her bus that had lef after all and her's was still parked out front.

I'm sure everyone (including Barbara Ann Davidson) is glad to see James Pyron back in school; we thought for a while we were going to lose a good ball player to aonther school, but we didn't after all. We're sure glad to hear it, Pyron, and we hope you stick with us for a long time yet.

Richard Easterling was sitting in Elgebra the other day thinking he was unnoticed while making all kinds of grotesque faces around the room. Well, you can guess the rest, the teacher walked up and you know, I kinda believe that cured Richard's face-making, because I haven't seen another one yet.

Myron Levine was in the office the other morning and was chewing something that looked almost like chewing gum the way he was going. Before Mrs. Mullins could say anything Myron said, "It's Aspyrgum." You know, the funny thing about it is that it really was Aspyrgum.

FRED C. HOWARD

Mr. Fred Conrad Howard, age 74, died at his home in Thorsby Wednesday, October 19th, after an illness of several months. Funeral services were held Thursday at the Congregational Church in Thorsby, conducted by the Rev. Garolyn Welch. Interment was made in the Thorsby Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Mable Grace Sims, of Harpersville, Ga., and Mrs. Lucile E. O'Barr, of Decatur, Ga.; four grandsons and three granddaughters; one brother, Mr. Charlie Howard, Thorsby, and one sister, Mrs. Anna Phalin, of Thorsby.

Pallbearers were: Roy Raybon, John and David Childress, James Nelson, Vernon Carlson, Leonard Bosworth.

Flower girls were: Mrs. Charles Cleckler, Mrs. Fril Boockhalter, Mrs. Mable Thompson, Mrs. Erle Ellis, Mrs. James Nelson and Mrs. Herman Robinson.

Martin & Sons Funeral Home in charge.

VESTER E. MARTIN DIED AT DECATUR, GA.

Vester Eugene Martin, age 42, died at Decatur, Ga., recently. Services were held on Wednesday, October 19, at 3 o'clock, at Pleasant Hill, conducted by Rev. J. R. Cost. Burial was in Blow Graveyard; Martin directing.

Besides the wife, Nellie Crawford Martin, surviving are three brothers—D. J., Willie and Alonza Martin, all of Atlanta; one sister, Mrs. Emma Davenport, of Atlanta; mother, Mrs. Lucinda Martin, of Atlanta.

NEWS FROM COLLIN'S CHAPEL SCHOOL

Remember this date! On Friday night, October 28th, beginning at 7:30 p.m., a Hallowe'en Party will be held at Collin's Chapel School. Activities to be enjoyed will be a "Pie and cake walk," a bingo party, snack bar service, and an auction sale taken up at the door for admission fee.

The crowning of the winning king and queen will take place, cakes for the ugliest man and prettiest girl will be raffled off. This is a Hallowe'en Costume Party. Everyone invited.

At our last regular meeting of the P.-T.A. (Oct. 14th) we had Rev. Carolyn Welch of the United Protestant Church of Thorsby as our guest speaker. We are endebted to Rev. Welch for her splendid lecture on "The Various Uses of the Hand."

CONCORD 4-H CLUB

Concord School held its second meeting on October 20. The meeting was called to order. The song leader lead one song. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. She also took the names of the new members. We have 12 new members. Then the meeting was turned over to Miss Barber. She talked to us about (sewing) how to buy and read the directions on a pattern.

The next meeting she is going to talk to us about how to keep the patterns straight, and how to cut the patterns on your cloth. Our next meeting will be held in November.— Reporter, Gloria Robinson.

First Hill-Burton Hospital To Be Dedicated November 16th

The first hospital in the entire nation to be completed under the Hill-Burton Act will be dedicated at Langdale Nov. 16.

The 90-bed hospital, called by authorities one of the most modernly equipped in the country, was built at a cost of $2,100,000. Named in honor of George H. Lanier, it will serve the six textile towns of the Chattahoochee Valley and the adjoining areas in east Alabama and west Georgia.

The principal speakers at the dedication ceremony will be Alabama's Senator Lister Hill, co-author of the Hill-Burton Bill, and Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele, of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Other dignitaries attending the ceremony will be the governors of Alabama and Georgia, James E. Folsom and Herman Talmadge. In addition, there will be other federal, state and local representatives.

The Hill-Burton Act provides for joint federal, state and local financial participation for the construction of hospitals over the nation.

There are approximately 35,000 persons living in the Chattahoochee Valley.

Wash or clean all summer clothes or household articles before putting them in storage.. If allowed to stand too long, spots that seem insignificant now may become difficult or impossible to remove.

IT IS PROFITABLE TO SAVE LESPEDEZA SERICEA SEED

Farmers busy harvesting lespedeza sericea seed-yield encouraging.

A number of combine operators are busy harvesting sericea seed from standing stalks of sericea. The reported yields are fair to very good. Operators report per acre yields of seed in the hull of 300 to over 700 pounds per acre.

B. F. Rasberry, C. J. Childress, Leo M. Headley, W. A. Williams, Sam Johnson, Marcus Bolton, and others are busy insuring Chilton County of an adequate supply of 1950 planting seed of this important forage legume. Farmers that have sericea that is heavily seeded might contact one of the above mentioned or other combine operators for assistance in saving seed.

If sericea land is too rough or otherwise undesirable for combining, seed can be saved by mowing and hauling to stationary thrasher or combine. A limited acreage increase can be made by mowing sericea, raking it while dew is on it to prevent seed shattering, and applying it to other acres as a mulch.

Regardless of the method used in saving seed, it is certainly advisable and profitable to make some provision for saving this valuable seed crop and apply it to additional Chilton County acres in 1950.

APSC HITS AT ATTEMPT TO BOOST FREIGHT RATES IN STATE

Montgomery, Ala. — The Alabama Public Service Commission gave the axe to an attempt by Alabama railroads to hike their freight rates an average of 25 per cent in the state.

CARMICHAEL RULES ON VIADUCT REPAIRS

Montgomery, Ala. — If a utility builds an overpass in a city, that concern is responsible for the repairs and maintenance of the overpass.

This advisory ruling was handed down by Attorney General A. A. Carmichael at the request of State Highway Director Ward McFarland.

In giving the opinion, Carmichael held that the law passed by the 1949 Legislature, making the upkeep of connecting link roads within a city the responsibility of the highway department, does not include viaducts constructed by the various utilities.

McFarland, in a letter to the attorney general, said, "There are many highway overpasses that were built by the railroads years ago that are being maintained by the railroads."

The highway director's letter went on to say that the state has existing agreements with the railroads "providing for the maintenance" of these overpasses.

In interpreting the purposes of the 1949 act, the attorney general said that it was not designed to change these agreements between the state and the utilities regarding the maintenance of utility-built overpasses.

Sure You Haven't A "Blind Spot"?

As I was driving down Main Street last Saturday, another car swung out right in front of me. It turned out to be Buck Blake. He wasn't going fast. It was just that he had something else on his mind at that particular moment.

Buck's really one of the nicest fellows I've ever known. But, sometimes he gets to day-dreaming on the road. He sort of gets a "blind spot" to what's going on about him!

Now, lots of normally considerate folks have their "blind spots." It could be anything from day-dreaming while driving a car to humming out loud at the movies.

From where I sit, it's mighty important to be on guard against your own "blind spots." The other fellow has a right to his "share of the road," too—whether it's having a taste for a temperate glass of sparkling beer or a desire to listen to some classical music if he wants to.

HAMM CITES GAS TAX REFUND REGULATIONS

Montgomery, Ala. — Unless the gas you use in your tractors in producing farm products is colored a mahogany red, you can't get any rebate under the state's newly enacted tractor gas refund bill.

In making this announcement, Revenue Commissioner Phillip J. Hamm said that the gasoline must be treated by the seller, or his agent, when it is delivered to the farmer or immediately after it is delivered.

At the same time, Hamm called attention to the regulation that "The gasoline must be burned in a tractor or tractors used exclusively in plowing, planting, harvesting or processing agricultural products on a farm or farms, owned, leased or operated by the farmer making claim for refund."

The gasoline for which the tax refund is sought must have already been burned by that time.

IF THERE WERE FLYING BATHTUBS

Even if manufactured, probably no one would have any use for a flying bath tub. But a bath tub (non-flying) is a "must" in every new home built, and every old one remodeled. Did you know that the manufacture of bath tubs, as well as other bath room fixtures, is becoming an important industry in Alabama? And that Alabama is one of the leading centers for the manufacture of the pipe to which bath rooms and kitchens are connected? And that in Alabama are located some of the country's largest manufacturers of pipe fittings?

Bath room fixtures and pipe and fittings are just a few of the thousands of different items already made in Alabama —ranging from food products to heavy machinery.

Alabama Power Company's Industrial Development Department, in cooperation with others, is constantly trying to bring about an increase in the number of kinds of products made in Alabama.

One of a series of advertisements published by Alabama Power Company to publicize the diversity of manufacture in Alabama. Names of manufacturers of products mentioned will be supplied upon request to the Advertising Department, Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, Alabama.

ELBERT BOOZER THROWS HAT IN GUBERNATORIAL RING

Elbert Boozer, Anniston business man, said in a formal statement this week that he would be a candidate for governor next year and that he would qualify and make his formal announcement soon after the State Democratic Executive Committee meets and sets qualifications early in January.

"While it seems to me a bit premature to make the announcement at this time," Boozer said, "Many of my friends are urging me to do so at once because of like announcements by others who plan to be candidates."

Mr. Boozer was a candidate in 1946. He was only a few thousand votes behind Joe Poole in third place and Handy Ellis in Second place. He polled close to 70,000 votes in his first attempt to win governorship.

"I believe the people of Alabama are ready for a sound business administration of their affairs and are ready to elect governor someone who will use the same proven and successful business methods practiced by former governors Thos. E. Kilby, B. B. Comer and other fine governors of this state who practiced business methods in conducting the vast business affairs of Alabama."

"During recent months," Mr. Boozer continued, "I have visited more than three quarters of the counties of Alabama, I have been exceedingly encouraged in every county I have visited and have set up strong organizations. I have been a farmer and business man all my adult life and believe that I understand the problems of agriculture and industry.."

Mr. Boozer said when the campaign gets underway he plans to visit every city, town and hamlet in Alabama and tell the people of this state his plans and platform and discuss their problems with them first hand.

CABINET MEETINGS TAKEN TO PEOPLE BY GOV. FOLSOM

The first of seven regional cabinet meetings as previously announced by Gov. James E. Folsom will be held in Huntsville, October 31.

In addition, an open forum will take place at the county court house at 2:00 p.m. on the same day.

At the Huntsville meeting, the Governor will give a brief talk to the people, explaining the purpose of the meetings. He will be followed by brief discussions by Henry W. Sweet, Director, State Docks and Terminals in Mobile; Bert E. Thomas, Conservation Director; and Ward McFarland, Highway Director.

Sweet will discuss the possibilities of constructing a state docks on the Tennessee River. Thomas will tell of plans to develop state parks at Guntersville and Joe Wheeler Reservation; and McFarland will discuss hiway development in North Alabama.

They will be followed by a keynote talk by Rep. John Snodgrass, Scottsboro, welcoming the Governor and his cabinet to the Tennessee Valley Region.

Following this open session, in which questions will be asked by the public with Sen. Rankin Fite of Hamilton serving as chairman, the people will be invited to make appointments with any of the cabinet members they might have business to transact with.

The private appointments will be held at the Russell Erskine Hotel while the public meetings will be held at the court house.

In making the announcement, Gov. Folsom said he hoped that everyone who possibly could would attend the various discussions.

$3,500 ALLOCATED TO LANDSCAPE NEW CAPITOL STEPS

Montgomery, The State Capitol Building Commission has set aside $3,500 to landscape the new marble steps just recently completed at the main approach to Alabama's state capitol building.

At the same time, Secretary of the State Sibyl Pool was selected to head a four-member committee chosen to decide on the proper plants and their arrangement. The three other committee members are State Agriculture Commissioner Haygood Paterson, W. Cleve Stokes, local nurseryman; and an unnamed member of the architectural firm that designed the steps.

In addition, Maxwell Peacock, chief of the division of service, was requested to make a survey of the capitol itself in order to determine whether or not complete air conditioning would be practical.

FINE HIKED FOR BREAKING GAME LAWS IN STATE

If you get caught hunting out of season or at night in Alabama, you can expect the whole book to be thrown at you.

Along with the rise in the cost of living, the price for breaking the state's game laws has also gone up as a result of legislation passed by the 1947 Legislature.

Conservation Director Bert Thomas has pointed out last week that under the new fine scale you can be clipped for not less than $50 or more than $500 the first time you're hauled in for hunting out of season. The second time you get caught for the same offense it's $100 to $500. The third time you might have to dole out anywhere from $250 to $500. On top of the fines, the law also gives the judge the power to present you with a six-month jail stretch if he sees fit.

Under the old law providing penalties for hunting out of season, the worst you could get stuck was $50 with a minimum of $20.

If you get caught illegally at night, you may be fined from $50 to $500. A six-month jail sentence may also be hung on you for this offense. Under the old statute, the minimum and maximum fine was the same as for hunting out of season.

Thomas pointed out that the night hunting provision does not prohibit you from hunting raccoons and o'possums in season.

The conservation director said he wanted to remind all hunters that the game wardens over the state had been instructed to crack down on persons hunting without the proper license. You can get your hunting license at your county courthouse.

FARMERS ON MILK ROUTE ENCOURAGED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT

According to summary report from Dadeville milk condensery, 44 Chilton County farmers shipped 32,724 pounds of milk during the September 16 to 30 period.

This was an average per producer shipment of 744 pounds of milk. At this rate Chilton County producers are averaging approximately $50.00 per month income from milk produces from an average of less than three milk producers per farm. Although the extended drouth has seriously reduced pasture forage supplies and resulted in decreased milk sales, producers are well pleased with this source of steady income. Producers are busy expanding pasture acreage and plan to add additional cattle as feed crop supplies will permit.

Farmers not located on a milk route are encouraged to continue to build pastures and develop dairy heifers for future milk producers. Also, when a commercial volume of milk is available contact your local county agent's office and an effort will be made to get your milk to the route.

The many friends of Mr. C. B. Blickensderfer of Brooksville, Fla., formerly with the S. C. S. Nursery here, were glad to have him visit here for a short while last week. He was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Maddox on Friday night.

Friends and relatives of Mr. Askew Davis surprised him on his birthday last Sunday and a big dinner was enjoyed. About forty people were present and they all really had a big time.

Miss Peggy Bean was a house guest of Miss Paula Margaret Hayes this past week-end.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Richard Collins is quite ill at his home here. We trust that he will soon be on the road to good health again.

Mrs. Susie Benson and Mrs. Estelle Hayes entertained at dinner last Monday, Mrs. Carrie Shaw of Birmingham, also Mesdames Jack Benson, Arthur Davis and Askew Davis.

Don't forget the Hallowe'en Festival at the Junior High School on next Saturday night at 7:15. There will be lots of fun as well as lots of good eats so don't miss this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Carter returned to Columbia, S. C. last Saturday morning after having been here to attend the funeral of their uncle, Mr. Fred Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bailey of Birmingham spent the week-end here with her mother, Mrs. Charles Peterson, and the Roy Raybon family. Mrs. Peterson returned to Birmingham with them for a visit with her daughters and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sims and two sons of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth O'Barr and children of Decatur, Ala. and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Howard of Charleston, S. C. have all returned to their respective homes after attending funeral services of Mr. Fred Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Rogers of Atlanta, Ga., were the week-end visitors of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Berlin.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Petersen and daughter, Shirley, visited with friends in Alabaster last Sunday .

Mr. Albert Anderson returned to his home in Sylvia, N. C. after spending several days here with his mother, Mrs. Inga Anderson.

Mrs. W. C. Childress and twin daughters of Selma are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Childress.

Mrs. Fred Larkins of Cincinatti, O., and Miss Rosalie Forsman of Selma, Ala. visited here this week-end with their sister, Mrs. Anna Larson.

Mr. Sidney Bosworth of Birmingham (with some friends) stopped here for awhile Sunday for a visit with the James Bosworths.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Bentley have returned from a delightful visit with the Tom Robinsons in New Bern, N. C. They also went to Williamsburg, Norfolk, and New Port News, Va. and Ashville, N. C.

Mrs. J. G. Heida entertained the Rev. Carolyn Welch and Miss Veeda Kelley at dinner last Sunday. It was a birthday dinner in honor of Mr. Heida.

Mr. Robert Owen, student at Thorsby Institute, spent the week-end in Moulton, Ala., with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Roswell Owens.

Mrs. Irene Peterson spent the week end in Birmingham with her daughter.

Miss Helen Jenkins, Mrs. Sarah Jenkins, Miss Grace Stanley and Miss V. Kelley spent Saturday in Birmingham.

Rev. Coleman and family visited here with Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Heida last Saturday. Rev. Coleman is pastor of the Baptist Church at Isabella community and plans to move to Thorsby to live. He will probably rent the Goddard home.

Mr. and Mrs. Horn, who have occupied the Goddard home, plan to move to the Fred Howard home in the very near future. Mrs. Howard plans to live with her daughters.

News has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wilson who were teachers at Thorsby Institute last year. Mr. and Mrs. Heida received a nice letter from the Wilsons. They are both teaching school in a Connecticut city, we did not learn the name of the place.

They are doing very nicely. They state that they want to come to Thorsby for a visit and will probably come for Christmas or later in the Spring.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Chester McClain is resting quite comfortable after undergoing a very serious operation at the South Highlands Infirmary last week. We hope that she will continue to improve.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Tapscott of Birmingham spent the week-end with Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Morgan of Opelika visited her mother, Mrs. B. T. Franklin, and other relatives this past week-end.

Mrs. Sam Mims and sons, Harold and Earl, spent Sunday in Tuscaloosa with Mrs. Mims father, Mr. Clements, and Mrs. Clements.

Rev. and Mrs. Jones have recently moved into their new home which has just been completed and which is one of the nicest homes in the town. These people have lived in Thorsby before, when Rev. Jones was pastor of the Baptist Church here, and they have many friends here who are glad to welcome them back in our midst.

A few friends called on Nell Werness last Monday afternoon to help her celebrate her birthday. Her birthday really was on Sunday, but since she and her friends wanted to attend services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday afternoon, they celebrated on Monday instead. Those who called on her brought cake, cookies, sandwiches etc., and this was served with hot coffee. They all had a jolly time.

Two of our business houses changed hands this week— that of Thorsby Cash Store is being taken over by Mr. Sam Mims and the Childress Auto Supply took on new management. It has been sold to a Mr. Oates and Mr. Cleckler- at present writing we do not have the details of this deal. We are sorry to have these two young men go out of business, but wish them the best of luck in whatever else they undertake. Mr. Sam Mims who takes over the Cash Store needs no introduction to the people of Thorsby. They know him to be a man who has been successful in his every undertaking, and we feel sure that he will serve his customers well, and that the Cash Store will be ever popular.

The Bank of Thorsby had a birthday last Monday. Yes, it was 30 years old on that day. It has been interesting to note the progress of this institution as time has passed along. When this bank was first organized, it took only one man to run it, today there are six employees. We wish for the continued success of this home owned bank.

Don't forget the Ladies' Guild, which meets today at the home of Mrs. S. F. Higdon. Remember, Mrs. Higdon expects you, so don't dissappoint her.

THIS Town OF OURS

Sure... we've got a great town. Fine people, pretty churches, good schools, paved streets—and a lot of other things we can brag about.

But there's a lot of things this community—like many others—could have to make it much better.

Making this town nice enough to keep our young people from moving to other towns or cities is Target No. One for the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

We've got a lot of big ideas about what we can do as a non-partisan, non-sectarian group of citizens for the welfare of our community. We can do a better job—and do it quicker—if all overseas veterans will give us their help as active members.

Once you join up and hear about our plans, we know you're going to say—

"THE V.F.W. IS A GOOD OUTFIT"

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

The Clanton Music Appreciation Club studied the Negro in Southern Culture at its October 13 meeting. This was the second of three programs dealing with music of the South.

Mrs. Luther Little introduced the program consisting of well-known Negro spirituals sung by Mrs. Erle Ellis, Mrs. Raymond Mims, Misses Barbara Fain and Pat Huddleston, and Jon Will Pitts. The club chorus concluded the program with "Out in the Fields with God."

Mrs. R. C. Williams and Mrs. Claud Craig were hostesses for the meeting. Guests of the club included Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Mrs. Julius Burnette, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Sam Johnson, and the three young people serving on the program: Barbara Fain, Pat Huddleston, and Jon Will Pitts.

FOLSOM APPOINTS SNODGRASS TO JUDGESHIP

Jackson County's Rep. John M. Snodgrass has been appointed judge of the Ninth Judicial Circuit by Gov. Folsom.

The ninth circuit was created by an act of the 1949 Legislature during which Snodgrass served as the administration's floor leader in the lower house.

Governor Names Three To Important Post

Montgomery, Ala. — State Senator Tom Blake Howle and Rep. Chester M. Black are Governor Folsom's latest choices for membership on the State Welfare Board. Almost simultaneously, the governor appointed F. R. Daugette, of Birmingham, to the State Board of Education.

Howle and Black replace Judge Will O. Walton, of LaFayette and Mrs. James A. Simpson, Birmingham, on the Welfare Board, while Daugette assumes the educational post vacated by Donald Comer whose term expired recently.

All three of the new appointees will serve six-year terms which expire in October, 1955.

Since the beginning of the present administration, Governor Folsom has made seven appointments to the education board.

STATE'S POLIO CASES ALREADY OVER 200-MARK

Montgomery, Ala. — Although 1949 is not over, there have been 201 cases of polio reported to the State Health Department so far this year.

STATE IN FOR SHORT COTTON CROP THIS SEASON

Montgomery, Ala. — On the basis of conditions existing October 1, the Alabama Co-op Crop Reporting Service has estimated that Alabama farmers will make only 865,000 bales of cotton this season.

Should this estimate hold up, the 1949 crop will be the shortest since 1946 and far below the number of bales produced last year when 1,197,000 were ginned in the state. The estimated yield this year is also considerably less than the average posted for the 10-year period 1938-47 of 901,000 bales.

In issuing its weekly report, the co-op service said that September weather over the state was generally favorable for picking and ginning and harvest is now ahead of schedule in many areas.

Ginnings this season before October 1, as reported by the Bureau of the Census, totaled 398,000 running bales compared with 501,000 for the same date last year.

GAS COLORING REGULATION HITS SNAG

Montgomery, Ala. — A Montgomery Circuit Court judge has granted an injunction against the State Revenue Department's recently installed regulation requiring Alabama farmers to use colored gasoline in their tractors if they expect to cash in on the tractor gas tax refund bill that passed the 1949 Legislature.

The injunction was granted by Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones upon the request of Pike County's Rep. Ira Thompson.

In hitting Revenue Commissioner Phillip J. Hamm's coloring regulation, Thompson said that the coloration would prove harmful to the farm machinery in which the gas was used. In addition, the Pike legislator charged that Hamm did not have the authority to install the coloring regulation as a requirement for the six-cent-a-gallon refund.

Until the injunction is lifted, the Revenue Department cannot enforce the order calling for all gasoline used in farm tractors to be colored mahogany.

The tractor gas refund bill was one of the most controversial of the 1949 legislative session.

PATROL NABS 2,281 FOR SEPTEMBER VIOLATIONS

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama's State Highway Patrol had a busy month during September when it arrested 2,281 persons for violations of the state's traffic regulations.

Of the total number of persons arrested, Assistant Public Safety Director William Lyerly said that 594 were guilty of driving without a license.

Ranking in number two spot as a cause for September arrests was reckless driving with a total of 393. Driving drunk held down third place with 312 arrests being made on this charge. In fourth place was improper lights with 254. Number five was speeding trucks with 152 arrests.

In releasing these figures, Lyerly pointed out that the arrests last month were slightly less than the number posted in September of last year when 2,351 pinches were made.

In River Bluff Cemetery at Claiborne is the grave of Arthur Bagby, Governor of Alabama and U. S. Ambassador to Russia.

LAWMAKER'S COUNTY SALARY WILL GO FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

Mobile — State Senator Joseph Langan's $3,000-annual salary as a member of the Mobile County Commission will go toward providing scholarships for study at Mobile's Spring Hill College.

Langan was appointed to the commission by Governor James E. Folsom to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of a former member.

The lawmaker, whose term as a commission member expires next year, said that his donation should make three scholarships available to the Mobile educational institution.

LANKFORD CHOSEN FOR MEMBERSHIP ON VETERANS BOARD

Montgomery, Ala. — Rounding out the appointment of the 12-member State Veterans Affairs Advisory Board, Gov. James E. Folsom has chosen A. J. Lankford, of Montgomery, as the third representative of the VFW in the unit.

The other 11 members were announced by the governor's office earlier. Each veterans organization has representation based on its membership

PECAN PRICES TO BE ADDED TO FARM BULLETIN IN STATE

Mongomery, Ala. — Do you expect to have a pecan crop this year? If you do, you'll be glad to know that The Federal-State Market News Service bulletin will carry price quotations from Alabama's various pecan sections this year.

In making the announcement, Jack Jones, head of the market news division of the State Agriculture Department, said that the addition of pecan prices would be made because pecans were included under a five-state marketing agreement for the first time this year.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA

JOE MONEY

Several months ago I announced my intention to become a candidate for Governor of the great State of Alabama in the 1950 primary. I now wish to make the positive declaration that I will be a candiadte, that, at the proper time, I will qualify and announce my platform, and that I will carry my candidacy to the people of the state through an intensive and aggressive campaign.

The statement of my intention to make the race has resulted in so many tenders of unqualified support from all sections of the state that I feel that the people should have positive assurance that I will be a candidate, and that I will visit all sections of the state for a full and frank discussion of my platform and of the problems and welfare of the state and of its people.

Farmers Will Get Housing Loans Under A Recent Law

Now Have Parity of Opportunity With City Residents to Finance New Construction and Repairs

Montgomery, Ala. — Housing aid for farmers and the part local farmer committees will have in administering it, are now being discussed at a series of meetings throughout the State, according to Julian Brown, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration.

Mr. Brown said the Congress, during the recent session, made available approximately $27 million for loans to farm owners for the construction and repair of farm buildings before next June 30th. He said approximately one and one-quarter million dollars had been allotted to Alabama and the meetings were called to get the program moving without delay.

County FHA Supervisors of Southeast Alabama met in Enterprise on November 1, those in Southwest Alabama met in Selma on November 2nd, and those in Northeast Alabama met in Anniston on November. County Supervisors of Northwest and North Alabama will meet at Decatur on November 8th.

"For the first time," Mr. Brown said, "the farm owner now has a partiy of opportunity with the city owner to borrow funds at a low rate of interest for construction or repair of a home, barn, or other buildings."

He said the loans may extend for a maximum period of 33 years and bear interest at 4 per cent. Only farm owners who cannot obtain adequate financing from private and cooperative sources will be eligible for the new housing loans. He said that owners may obtain loans for construction and repair of homes occupied by their tenants.

To give local guidance to the program a committee of three farmers in each county will make recommendations as to the eligibility of applicants and the type and amount of assistance they will receive.

MRS. LILLIAN SIMPSON NAMED COUNTY CANCER COMMANDER

Chilton County's fight against cancer will be led for the next twelve months by Mrs. Lillian Simpson, of Clanton.

Her appointment as Chilton County Commander for the Alabama Division of the American Cancer Society was made public here today by Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, of Birmingham, the Society's State Commander.

"As County Commander, Mrs. Simpson holds one of the most important posts in what is going to be the greatest effort ever undertaken in Alabama to stop the 1,200 or more preventable deaths cancer is causing here," Mrs. Meade said.

"The entire cancer education program in Chilton County—the first and most essential step, doctors say, toward cancer control — will be under Mrs. Simpson's direction. So will the lay service program to help assure treatment and aid for all those cancer strikes.

"The work that the committee will do will have a direct bearing on the future health and safety, insofar as cancer is concerned, of one out of every six men, women and children alive in Chilton County today because that is the number medical statistics forecast will be struck by cancer at some time during their lives—one in six."

Mrs. Simpson and all those who assist her will serve as volunteers without compensation as a service to their community.

JUNIOR CITIZENS CLUB ELECT OFFICERS

At the last meeting of the Junior Citizens Club of Clanton Elementary School officers for the next two months were elected: Janice Wood, president; Jeanette Crew, vice-president; Nancy Work, secretary; Ann Jester, treasurer; Dorothy Lawrence, recording secretary; Mardella Tyndle, song leader; Charles Hayes, parlementarian; Bonnie Gray, critic; Mrs. Ed Propst is teacher.

Chilton County Christmas Chest For 1949 To Be Bigger And Better Than Ever Before

The first general meeting of the Chilton County Christmas Chest was conducted last Monday night in the main studios of Radio Station WKLF and big plans for the 1949 drive were mapped out by the Christmas Chest Chairman, Rev. A. T. Hickman.

Some committee chairmen were appointed by the Chest chairman and others will be appointed at the next scheduled meeting which will be held in the City Hall, Clanton, at 2 o'clock November 13th.

Getting underway for it's second annual drive much earlier than last year, plans were mapped for the collection of used toys, which will be repaired and put in usable condition by members of the two Clanton Boy Scout troops as well as the vocational training classes throughout the county. Rev. Hickman is scheduled to meet with these teachers later this week in order to get this phase of the operation underway as soon as possible. Collection points for these toys will be announced as soon as possible.

From last year's experience Rev. Hickman pointed out that it is imperative that the Chest get into operaion much earlier this year so that more families will benefit from the drive. This suggestion was enthusiastically accepted by everyone attending the first meeting last Monday night.

The very next day the first donation was received into the Chest in the form of money which was given by the Pure Oil Company. Many other large contributions are expected to be turned in in the very near future.

Although many of the necessary committee chairmen were chosen at last Monday's meeting, Rev. Hickman pointed out that this was necessary in order to get the preliminary work of the Christmas Chest underway. He also pointed out that others will be appointed at the next meeting on November 13.

Among those appointed so far include: Need Committee, Miss Margaret Lee, chairman; Finance, Russell Williams, chairman; Publicity, Bob Taber, chairman; Collecting, Rev. John R. Smith, chairman; Packing, Mrs. Omar Reynolds, chairman; Distribution, Lewis McGee, chairman; and Buying, Miss Louise Foshee.

Mr. Williams pointed out that his finance committee is already in operation and he has working with him Judge W. L. Parrish, Leo Thompson and Roy Roper. Any donations for the Chilton County Christmas Chest can be turned over to any one of the above named.

At it's second meeting at the City Hall it is expected that several officials from the outlying districts of the county will be on hand as well as others from Verbena, Maplesville, Thorsby and Jemison.

New Absentee Voting Law Now In Effect In Alabama

A law passed for the purpose of doing away with the abuse of absentee voting is now in effect in Alabama.

Absentee voters, except members of the armed forces, must vote in person at least five days prior to any election from now on.

Formerly they could send in ballots by registered mail.

Members of the armed forces can still vote by mail. A provision was written in by the Senate to allow it. However, they must also send along an affidavit by their commanding officer that he witnessed the voting.

Under the new law those who know they can't be around election day are permitted to fill out absentee ballots before the register in chancery not more than 20 nor less than five days before an election.

This applies in all general, primary municipal or special elections.

Another new feature is that ballots must be filled out in duplicate. One is sealed and sent in to the Secretary of State.

The other is kept by the register and turned over to election officials on the day of the election.

The register serves as absentee voting manager unless he is a candidate for office himself. In that event, the presiding circuit judge appoints someone to serve for him.

School News—

In an offensive game between Verbena and Maplesville "Red Devils" last Friday night, Maplesville, emerged victors by a 25-19 score. The outweighed, but not outplayed, "Red Devils" line opened holes for the fast Maplesville backs time after time.

Verbena went ahead 6-0 after marching downfield with the kickoff. Maplesville tied the score 6-6 the first time they received the ball. The "Red Devils" went ahead early in the second quarter 13-6 when they went on the offensive for the second time in the ball game. The half ended 13-12 for Maplesville.

The second half opened with Maplesville marching downfield for another touchdown, without giving the ball up. Verbena tallied early in the last quarter to tie the score 19-19. Maplesville was not to be denied, however, as they took the kickoff and marched for another touchdown.

Score, 25-19 in favor of Maplesville, Verbena could not find another scoring punch with a flurry of passes in the last few minutes. The fans who saw the game say that singling out any individuals as the stars of our Friday night's victory would be an impossibility. It was a great team victory. Determination appeared to be the winning factor. The Maplesville running backs didn't stop until they were definitely pinned to the ground.

The Coach, Mr. Kelley, has worked hard all during this season and a great part of this voctory is due to his untiring efforts, and it is safe to say that the team that defeats the "Red Devils" will have to be one that is willing to play their best brand of football.

Maplesville team plays next Friday night, October 28th, Jemison, at Jemison. The "Red Devils" have not reached their peak performance, so this will probably be a good game.

Everyone remember the Hallowe'en Party at Maplesville School Auditorium next Saturday night, at 7 o'clock. Witches and bats, hobgoblins and ghosts will be roaming around all during the night. Plenty of fun and plenty of good eats for both young and old. So come bring the entire family.

Be sure to vote for the girl you wish to be the sweetheart of the FFA of Maplesville School. Places to cast your vote will be found at Watson's Filling Station and the Yellow Front Store. The votes will be counted Saturday night, October 29th, at the school auditorium. The girls are Eva Jo Walker, Tommie Jo Perry and Mittie Jean Bailey.

The Maplesville B football team played the Isabella B team here Monday night of this week. It was a tied game—0-0.

Herzberg replaces Robert Harris. Harris resigned last week after serving as registrar for the past 15 years.

The newly appointed registrar is a veteran of five years active service during the last war. Before his tour of Army duty, Herzberg headed the federal Social Security Board in this city.

FASTENERS MAY BE HAMMERED ON NOW

One of the newest and most timesaving fasteners is the snap fastener which is hammered on rather than stitched, according to Levice Ellis, clothing specialist.

She reveals that these fasteners come in light and heavy weights, plain or colored. The fasteners are especially recommended for use on firm fabric and are best suited to sports or work clothes.

"On thin or fragile cloth a pounded-on fastener may strain or break thru and leave a hole," warns Miss Ellis.

Food experts say that two small onions will give a person about 50 per cent of his daily needs of Vitamin C. Onions contain minerals such as calcium, phosphorus, and iron, and Vitamins B, C, and G.

Had RHEUMATISM* So BAD That He Had To Quit Working

*Caused by dietary deficiency.

Mr. Jerry Watkins, chief of detectives of the city of Hot Springs, Arkansas, suffered with rheumatism so much and the aches and pains were so terrible that he had to quit working in an effort to regain his health after he had tried everything which his friends recommended.

Detective Watkins is well known and his countless number of friends throughout the country will rejoice to know that he is now healthy, free of rheumatic aches and pains and now working hard.

Mr. Jerry Watkins

"For several years," Mr. Watkins says, "I suffered from a rheumatic condition in the hip and leg. I was very nervous and finally developed migraine headaches. I tried all kinds of medicines but nothing seemed to do me any good. I seemed to be growing worse and worse and was finally advised to take a leave of absence from my work on the police force in an effort to recover my health."

"The pains in my head sometimes were unbearable. I suffered tortures and I was miserable. At night particularly I lay awake and could not sleep."

Mr. Watkins said that someone finally persuaded him to try HADACOL, and after taking the first bottle he said he could see an improvement in his general condition.

"On January 14th of this year," he said, "I felt so much better I decided to go back on the job. The examining doctor told me I was in perfect health. Now I am working from 8 to 12 hours daily and I am able to sleep as any normal person. I have taken six large size bottles of HADACOL and all my friends know I owe my good health to HADACOL."

Mr. Watkins is one of the many thousands of people who suffered from a deficiency of the B vitamins and the minerals that HADACOL contains and who, therefore, found relief in HADACOL.

It is a well-known scientific fact that the lack of only a small amount of the B vitamins and certain minerals in your system will cause certain bodily disorders such as nutritional neuritis, which causes the aches and pains commonly known as rheumatism, and there is no known cure for the ailment except the administration of the needed vitamins and minerals. This is why people who suffered for years and years never were able to obtain any relief until they took the vitamins and minerals the lack of which was causing the disorders.

HADACOL does not contain only one but has five of the B vitamins and four necessary minerals. It comes to you in liquid form so that it will be easily absorbed by the blood and, therefore, carried to the parts of the body which need them most.

So, it matters not where you live—no matter who you are—if you have tried all the medicines under the sun, you should be fair to yourself and give this wonderful preparation, HADACOL, a trial. And if your disease is caused by a lack of the B vitamins and minerals which HADACOL contains, then don't go on suffering—don't continue to make your life so miserable. Temporary relief for you is not enough. Take HADACOL.

Sold at all leading drugstores. Trial size only $1.25, but save money; buy the large family economy size, only $3.50. If your druggist does not handle HADACOL, order direct from The Le Blanc Corporation, Lafayette, La., and when the postman brings your package, just pay the amount plus the c.o.d. and postage. If you remit with the order we will pay the postage.

Then, if you don't feel perfectly satisfied after using HADACOL as directed, just return the empty carton and your money will be cheerfully refunded. Nothing could be fairer.—Adv.

JUST FACTS — THAT'S ALL

In connection with the Chilton County News' silence towards the missing county funds the Alabama Journal stated. . ."What is news for one, is not news at all for the other."

This statement was quite true. It would be no added trouble for us to print every scrap of gossip—and there is plenty—about the missing finances of Chilton County. But, if we resort to measures such as those to fill our news columns, we are not living up to our editorial policy, nor our motto.

The Grand Jury is now in session to get to the true facts of the case and when any of the said facts are released you will be able to read them in this newspaper. We will even send a copy to the Alabama Journal.

This paper asks the maximum sentence for every guilty person, if any, and also asks the people of Chilton County not to rest until justice is done.

When the facts are on paper, be sure to read them in the Chilton County News — "If We Print It, It's True."

FOOTBALL MOB SCENES POPULAR THIS YEAR

Why the rash of free-for-all at high school football games this year?

Close at home there was the recent rhubarb at Woodland in the LaFayette game. The same week end the Opp-Ozark game resulted in an outbreak which endangered an official and brought damage to his car. Last Friday night a free-for-all ended the game between West Point and Douglasville. Other instances from more distant places have been reported in the papers.

Quite properly, the state athletic associations are dealing strictly with offending schools. If football is to encourage poor sportsmanship and disrespect for authority, then it should be removed immediately from the high school program. Stern discipline against offenders is the best method of saving the game for the boys who play and for the fans.

Are the outbreaks this year part of a growing tendency to flaunt authority? How great a part does drinking at the games play in the uncontrolled mob actions? We can only guess at the answers to these questions.

Last Friday night on our home field we witnessed in some of the visiting players a rebellious attitude against the authority of the officials. After the final whistle we watched some of these players make a start across the field after the officials, only to be checked and turned back by their coach.

Then we turned our attention to some of the spectators leaving the field. Here came several swaggering, noisy young fellows, all made brutish through drink. If trouble had started on the field, you may be sure they would have jumped into the thick of it. Other mob-minded, unreasoning spectators would have joined them, and we would have had a disgraceful situation on our hands.

Laugh about the free-for-alls if you will, but they represent a grave threat to the future of high school football. School authorities and local police officers must combine their efforts to guard against them.—Roanoke Leader.

MID-WEST EMPLOYEES

Members of the various crews of Mid-Western Construction Company who have been making their home among us for the past few months are to be complimented on the impression they have made on the citizenry of Clanton and Chilton County.

Many of our people refer to the temporary residents as "Pipeliners," and we hasten to explain this is certainly through no disrespect or effort to deprive them of their individuality, but is only a method of designating them as a group.

As stated, the employees of Mid-Western Construction Company as a whole have conducted themselves as a credit to our city and county, and we can speak for a majority of our population when we say their stay was enjoyed by our people.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Understand that things are moving forward toward an auditorium for Clanton. Members of the Committee who met last week to plan the campaign were all in earnest and according to reports do not intend letting anything stop them this time. Of one thing the committee can be assured; the residents, business and professional men, and all, are behind them nearly 100 percent, and with cooperation like that we can do just about anything we set our mind to do.

The Chilton County Christmas Chest Committee met Monday night at the auditorium at WKLF. A nice representative crowd attended and a good start was made toward a bigger and better Christmas Chest than ever. Rev. A. T. Hickman is chairman this year and he is a man that will inspire confidence in the organization. A big increase over last year's donations is expected and if we can believe reports coming from over the county, much, much, more will be needed.

Morgan Reynolds and Barbara McGowin's wedding comes up the last of the week and that is one couple we want to personally wish the best of luck, and the happiness they deserve. They are both wonderful people, and, we are sure, have the best wishes of all their friends, not only here at home, but over Alabama. One thing we want Morgan to always remember: Marriage is not a word—it's a sentence.

C. L. Wilkins, who has been with the Chilton County News for the past year has accepted a position with Liberty National Life Insurance Company. Mr. Wilkins will be stationed at Marion, Ala. We deeply regret the loss of a valuable employee, but he found it to his advantage to accept the above mentioned position. He leaves with the best wishes of the News, the force, and the many friends he has made in Clanton and Chilton County during his brief stay.

Bud Gerald has opened his own Law Offices over Western Auto Associate Store. Bud, since being admitted to the Alabama State Bar Association, has been working with his father in the law firm Gerald & Gerald. He's now on his own and his many friends in the county will be glad to give him a boost. We wish him every success in his new undertaking.

Which brings to mind the definition of "lawyer." "A lawyer is a fellow who will go to court and spend your last cent to prove he's right."

Al Haack, who came to Clanton a couple of years ago to sell Kaiser automobiles, liked it so well he stayed with us. Al is now with Family Reserve Insurance Company here and is doing alright. He's an adopted son of the South, but you wouldn't know it to talk to him, anyway, we're glad he's staying—he, Mrs. Haack and the little Haacks.

The merchants got ready to usher in the Christmas season early this year. Many of the local stores already have their Christmas toys and gifts on display. Now don't do like we do and wait until the last minute to buy your presents, do like we say do, and shop the local stores early so you will have the advantage of getting first choice. Christmas is the season, you know, when you buy the children something for papa to play with.

Alabama State Highway Patrolmen have the most interesting things happen to them. The other day Luther Kendricks and his man, M. T. Braswell, Friday, received a radio message from Montgomery that took them down the highway south of town to await an automobile. The car would be a certain color, make and model. The tag would be a Rhode Island State tag. The man's name who was driving the car was listed by the patrolmen, so that when the automobile finally came along the local patrolmen gave chase. After overtaking the visitor from Rhode Island and pulling over to the side of the highway the driver practically fainted when Luther Kendrick called him by his name and asked him if he had lost some money. Fact is that the local patrolmen had been radioed and informed that the gent had left his billfold at a filling station at Prattmont. The Station operator had called Montgomery headquarters and they in turn had notified the local patrolmen who turned the motorist back for the billfold and money he would have lost but for the Alabama Highway Patrol.

Wisdom

I read a story once that told of an old man of very acute physiognomy. He was arrested and brought into the Police Court. His clothes looked as if they had been bought second-hand in his youthful prime. He was asked by the judge of the court, "What business have you? The old man replied, "None, I am a traveler." The Judge asked, "A vagabond, perhaps?" "You are not far wrong. The difference between the two; the vagabond travels without money, the traveler without brains," said the old man. The Judge asked, "And where have you traveled?" His rely was, "All over the continent." Then the Judge asked, "And for what purpose have you traveled?" "For observation," replied the old man. "What have you observed?" the Judge asked. "A little to commend, much to censure, and very much to laugh at," was the old man's reply. "Humph," says the Judge, "And what do you commend?" The answer was, "First, a handsome woman that will stay at home; second, a eloquent divine that will preach short sermons; third, a good writer that will not write too much; and a fool that has enough sense to hold his tongue."

A. T. HICKMAN

"What do you censure? says the Judge. "A man who marries a girl for her fine clothing. A youth who studies law while he has the use of his hands; and the people who elects a drunkard to office," said the old man. "And what do you laugh at?" asked the Judge. "At a man who expects his position to command the respect which his personal qualities and qualifications do not merit," was the old man's reply. The old man was dismissed.

Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom and with all thy getting, get understanding. But in the words of Tennyson:

therefore get wisdom; and with all;d
"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers,
and I linger on the shore,
And the individual withers, and the world is more and more.
"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers,
and he bears a laden breast,
Full of sad experience, moving toward the stillness of his rest."

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

REWARDS

Channel swimmers, prize fighters, movie lovelies, and comics get a lot of publicity. Still few people are familiar with the names of George R. Minot and William P. Murphy, even though thousands of people are alive today through a discovery made by these medical men.

Twenty-five years ago, when Minot and Murphy were ardent young scientists, they became much concerned over the fact that pernicious anemia was always fatal. This deficiency disease is a cause of specific changes in the blood and blood-forming organs, in the central nervous system and in the gastrointestinal tract.

Victims of pernicious anemia can seldom fix the date of the earliest feeling of that langour which later becomes extreme. Langour and weakness are the first symptoms of which the patient complains. With this weakness, there is a yellowish pallor to the skin and gastrointestinal disturbances, with vomiting and diarrhea. In about eighty per cent of the cases there are also neurological disorders.

Because pernicious anemia does not occur in childhood and afflicts older persons, heredity is ruled out; and the cause remains unknown. In 1926, Minot and Murphy announced their discovery that a liver diet kept pernicious anemia patients alive. Today, liver extract is sufficient to maintain the life of victims of this formerly always fatal disease.

Many individuals, alive through the discovery of Minot and Murphy, never have heard the names of these men. Such is sometimes the reward for distinguished service to mankind.

A Thousand Points for Service to Alabama Banks
Eleven Years in Succession

AT THE annual convention of the American Bankers Association held this week in San Francisco, California, the Alabama Bankers Association is being presented with the A.B.A. Agricultural Commission's 1000-point rating award. The award is presented each year to state bankers associations of those states whose banks have been of outstanding service to agriculture during the preceding year. Alabama banks have received this award eleven years in succession.

Points are given for such activities as promotion of soil conservation and land management; promotion of cooperation with the Extension Service; sponsorship of 4-H, FFA and other farm youth activities and special farm activities. Points are also given for quality of regular banking service for agricultural purposes.

These activities of Alabama banks and other business, agricultural and industrial organizations are doing much to "Help Develop Alabama."

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS MAPLESVILLE 12-6

In a rollicking good football game last Friday night the Jemison High team won over the Red Devils from Maplesville High.

The game was played on Jemison High's field before a fairly large crowd of euthusiastic supporters for each team.

The home team barely eked out this victory. With only 58 seconds remaining in the game, and the ball resting on Maplesville's 2-yard line, Gothard, big rangy fullback for Jemison, plunged through a stubborn defense, on a 4th down, to carry the ball over for the victory margin. A try for the extra point failed.

Maplesville drew first blood in this contest as they scored their only touchdown early in the second quarter, on recovery of a fumble by Jemison, on the latter's 30-yard line. A lateral pass good for 21 yards and 2-line plunges, put the ball over with one-tenth of an inch to spare.

Jemison came back later in the second quarter to tie up the count 6-all. With Cobb, Quarter-back, uncorked a beautiful 30-yard pass that Gothard took on a high leap on Maplesville's 21-yard line, and scooted home with the bacon. The game remained a 6-all tie until the last minute of play.

Jemison missed a glorious opportunity to score early in the last quarter, when they advanced the ball 44 yards on three successive first downs to place the ball on Maplesville's 8-yard line; but there the visitors threw up a defense that stopped the home team cold.

It was a brilliant piece of defense strategy by Coach Kelly's boys.

The Jemison boys relied chiefly on the passing attack for their gains as they found the Maplesville line a rather tough nut to crack.

Jemison made 10 first downs against Maplesville 11.

Jemison drew penalties totaline 65 yards against Maplesville 45.

Jemison attempted 13 passes completing 8. While Maplesville attempted 8 completing two.

Jemison intercepted two passes, Maplesville none.

The game was hard fought right off the hilt and the outcome was anybody's guess, till that last minute began clicking away. The fans enjoyed every moment, as the officiating by Ross, Lewis, Trotter and Laws was superb.

Jemison goes to Siluria tomorrow night, Friday, to tangle with the strong Thompson High.

Good Schools For All Children Help To Make Democracy Work They Mould American Ideals Into The Lives Of Our Children

Need! We invite you to visit your schools during the week of November 6-12? Never before in the history of the world has there been the need for closer cooperation between the public schools of our country and the general public. The schools have been called, "The Bulwark of Democracy." Are they to retain that title? The answer to this question rests heavily upon the lay public. It matters little whether you have a child in school or not. You still have a resonsibility. That responsibility is to help make the schools of this nation the best possible. It is only with your participation and support in the task of educating OUR CHILDREN that we can hope to MAKE DEMOCRACY WORK.

With the above thoughts in mind the personnel of the Chilton County Public Schools extend to you a cordial and sincere invitation to visit your schools not just the week of Nvember 6-12, but at any time you so desire.

Clanton And Chilton County Still Growing

For proof of this statement one need only stop and count the new business houses that have been instigated during the past few months. One of the new businesses is the Chilton County Merchants Credit Bureau of Clanton, which was organized and began operating February 1, 1949.

This new service was started by W. O. Miller, at the request of several local merchants and professional men, and already has the majority of outstanding merchants as members. Our merchants have needed an organization of this type for a long time, and are fortunate in securing a home town product to conduct it. Mr. Miller is well qualified in this line. Besides being a graduate of the School of Business Administration at Auburn he has had three very successful years as credit manager with a national paint company's Birmingham branch. During this time he was affiliated with three of the larger credit bureaus there, and obtained invaluable practical experience. He has maintained these connections, and is cooperating with these other agencies in his work here.

Surely everyone knows that the vast majority of the finer assets, which most of us acquire in life, are bought on credit. Very few of us ever accumulate enough ready cash to buy a home, a business, an automobile, or even major appliances and furniture.

Yet, many people feel that credit is poor business. But, if you will stop and think, you will realize that it is the misuse of credit, rather than credit itself, that has brought so many sad experiences. Mr. Miller's business purpose is to record the paying habits of the people in this locality, and, in this way, try to help those that have fulfilled the trust placed in them by fellow men, to greater things. By the same token, those that have not met their obligations as promised, will be prevented from assuming still more indebtedness; which would actually be an added burden that they are not able to handle.

The question, "How can I improve my credit standing?" naturally follows. The answer is: Simply by paying as agreed. Occasionally this is impossible. When such an occasion arises we should remember that the creditor is a friend, or he would never have extended credit in the first place. Being a friend, why not go to him, explain the situation, and make a new agreement which you can fulfill.

Mr. Miller emphasized the fact that his business was not to judge anyone, but, rather, to record the facts. Every person builds his own credit record, as we always have; only now it is recorded for any future transactions which we may have with creditors, or employers.

Your cooperation in helping this service help you will be deeply appreciated by all concerned.

Hadacol Now Nation's Best Selling Tonic

Sale of Hadacol, which is made with five of nature's B vitamins and four imporant minerals, has spread from a small section of Louisiana to more than 20 states, and is now the nation's largest selling tonic.

Dudley J. LeBlanc, President and founder of the LeBlanc Corp., Lafayette, La., makers of Hadacol, has announced plans to expand the sales of Hadacol to the entire nation within the next year.

Dudley J. LeBlanc

Mr. LeBlanc is directing the south's largest advertising campaign for Hadacol and newspapers, especially weekly newspapers, are playing an important part in this effort.

The LeBlanc Corp. is using every weekly and daily newspaper in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Alabama this week to tell the story of how Hadacol put the Chief of Detectives of Hot Springs, Ark., back on the job after all else failed. He had suffered from a deficiency of B vitamins and certain minerals, which Hadacol contains.

"You must use the newspapers, daily and weekly, if you want to bring your message to the grass roots of America, the towns and wonderful rural areas," said Mr. LeBlanc.

Besides being founder and President of LeBlanc Corp., Mr. LeBlanc has many other business interests, and is President Pro-tem of the Louisiana state senate. He is well known for his work for pensions for old folks and other social advances.

MAPLESVILLE SENIOR 4-H CLUB REPORT

The meeting was held October 18 from 10:45 'til 1:25. The meeting was called to order by the President. She asked the song leaders to come to the front to lead the songs. We sang Bill Grogan's Goat, Mollie Malone. Miss Barber taught us a new song. The name was, "Rock 'er My Soul in the Bosom of Abraham."

Miss Barber then took over and we studied how to pick out a pattern for girls, misses and women half sizes. She also taught us how to place buttons and pockets on a dress.—Verna Chapman.

Thorsby Jr. High News—

The Thorsby 4-H Club met at 10 o'clock on October 21st, at Thorsby Junior High School. The meeting was called to order by the President, Carolyn Collins. Judy Nelson and Sarah Nell Mizzell were received into the Club which brings our membership up to 45 in number. New members are always welcome and anyone wishing to join may do so at our next meeting. — Secretary of Club, Shirley Petersen.

All patrons and friends of Thorsby Junior High School are invited to visit the school during National Education week which begins November 6th and runs through November 12th.

The Hallowe'en Festival which was given by the P.-T.A. on last Saturday night was a grand success. A nice sum of over $241.00 was realized. An unusually large crowd attended and everybody had a lot of fun. The main event being the King and Queen contest, brought a nice sum of money and John Henry Marcus was crowned King and his queen was pretty little Bettye Johnson. We are indeed grateful to the patrons and friends of the school for helping to make the party a success.

Church News—

Several from the Baptist Church here are planning to attend the District W.M.U. meeting Thursday at Montevallo.

November 13th will be Judson College Day at the Baptist Church. A special offering that day for our State Baptist College. Everyone should give liberally.

November 6-12 is R. A. Focus week as we focus our attention upon our boys. Let's do something special for them. If your son is not a member, encourage him to join during this special week. There will be an R. A. Conclave here at the Baptist Church November 6th, at 2:30 p.m. Come and bring your boys. William Ferrell, our State R. A. Secretary, will be the speaker.

These boys are our future leaders—Frances Reynolds, leader of the Jr. R.A.'s and Van B. Potts, leader of the Intermediate R.A.'s. We are proud of these leaders. They need our rayers and encouragement. So send your boys to these organizations, for many parents state that a great change has been wrought in the lives of their boys since Rev. Clayton Gilbert, the pastor has been here and lead in all these organizations. A change has been wrought in all the church activities. God is blessing and will continue to bless. The devil is using every means possible to tear down the great work that has been accomplished, but we can trust God and pray. God will in due time take charge of those who criticize and despitefully use us, because of envy and jealousness. We can only consider the source.

We should read Romans, second chapter, first few verses and many other scripture verses that will be available if heeded.

The woman's Missionary Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church will have a rummage sale Saturday, November 5th, in front of Mr. J. H. Thomas's Grocery Store, beginning at 10:00 a.m. So everyone remember this and help this good cause.

School News—

A very large crowd of patrons and friends of the school attended the P.-T.A. meeting last Thursday evening at the home economics building. Mrs. Titus Aldridge gave a very impressive devotional and Rev. Titus Aldridge spoke on, Foundations for a Better Homelife. It was both informative and inspiring. While here Rev. and Mrs. Aldridge visited Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Gilbert.

The next P.-T.A. meeting will be held on November 15th, at the school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. It will be National Educational Week. The program will be, "Parents Back to School." Principal J. E. Daniels invites the parents to visit the class rooms during that week. Mrs. Annie Chambers, Mrs. Houston Lenoir and Mrs. Calvin Chambers will serve as hostesses for the social hour at the November 5th meeting.

The Jemison football squad defeated our Maplesville Red Devils last Friday night by a score of only 13-6 at Jemison.

By all reports the teams appeared evenly matched. The Maplesville team will journey to Moundville next Friday, November 4th, to play against the Moundville team.

The Hallowe'en Party at the school auditorium last Saturday night was a great success, and was enjoyed by a record crowd.

The girl winning the sweetheart of the FFA boys was Miss Eva Jo Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Walker. Eva Jo also was recently chosen by the student body as "Miss Maplesville School." She is very deserving of this honor.

Mrs. Ed Clapp and baby returned from Vaughn's Memorial Hospital last Friday.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Underwood, nurse for Dr. C. N. Parnell, fell one day last week and fractured one of her arms. Mrs. Underwood's daughter, Mrs. Lena Goggins, of Marvel, was called to nurse both Dr. Parnell and her mother. We are glad to report that Dr. Parnell is now able to sit up.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fuqua visited their daughter, Mrs. Ted Morrison, in Tuscaloosa last week end.

Mrs. Everee Roper was called to Thorsby last Saturday on acount of the serious illness of her brother, Mr. J. H. Ratliff.

Creek were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Garner, Mrs. Buck Keener and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smitherman.

In last week's news of the surprise shower given Mrs. Billy Dennis we failed to give a complete list of ladies who gave the shower. Mrs. Jack Hampton was one we did not list, and we are very sorry. It was not intentionally done. It isn't so easy to get all the news perfect every time. So please pardon.

When the fire whistle blew last Sunday night at the Stremming Veneer Plants most everyone in and around Maplesville was soon there to find out about the fire. A negro house burned near the veneer plant, with the fire equipment of the plant it did not spread to other buildings. The house was vacant.

Maplesville needs very much to have water works and some kind of fire equipment. Fire can quickly destroy many building with a loss of thousands of dollars. It is much better to be "safe than sorry."

NEW HARMONY

We had a very good attendance out last week end. Bro. Edgar Littleton preached Saturday night and Bro. Thomas Smith Sunday night. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Earl Friday back again with us Sunday night. We welcome them back at any time. Our new literature has come now for the F.F.C. Class. It sure was interesting last Sunday night. The story was told of Barney and the barrel and showed pictures along with it. I'm sure the old, as well as the young, will enjoy the program each Sunday night. Let's all come every time.

Mrs. Fannie Byler was a visitor to our church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Baker were the Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baker.

The Navy Bureau of Ordnance employs 31,000 disabled war veterans at its field activities throughout the country. Among those mentioned in a recent write-up was Joseph Franklin Latham, 19 Ocean Green S.W., Washington, D. C., who works at the Naval Gun Factory despite the loss of a hand while serving with the Navy during the war. Working as an Ordnance man for about three years, then as property and supply clerk. Mr. Latham recently received another promotion when he became a Commodity Specialist. Using a twin clan device and his one good hand, Mr. Latham accomplishes his work of assembling and disassembling highly specialized pieces of ordnance equipment with as great a skill as most men achieve with two hands.

A picture showing Mr. Latham at his work also appeared and under this picture Joseph F. Latham, Commodity Specialist at the Naval Gun Factory, demonstrates high efficiency despite the loss of an arm. Franklin, as he is known by his friends, received his early schooling here and has many friends in this section who will be glad to learn of his work. . . . . . . SECTION OF - CHILTON COUNTY NEWS - CLANTON, ALA. . . . . . .

Farmers Look At Fall

THE American farmer of 1632 took part enthusiastically in celebrating the first Thanksgiving Day. His spirit grew out of a deep appreciation for the abundance his land produced.

That farmer was grateful for the supply of food he had stored for the oncoming Winter, for his abundance of fuel (wood), for clothing and shelter, for good hunting and for land that would produce for him again in the Spring.

Never did that pioneer operator dream of a day when farmers considered Fall farming quite as essential as the Spring crop. He planted his crop in the Spring and harvested in the Fall—that was the end until another year. If he could see the fresh plowed land and the green fields in Alabama this Fall, he would truly be amazed.

He saw great possibilities for advancement, that farmer. But he looked toward the clearing of more land and opportunities for moving to other areas when the soil he used was "worn out." He couldn't know what might someday be done with each of those acres. The yields he made, today's farmer would call a total failure.

Yesterday And Today

Look at these two farmers of the same soil who lived in worlds entirely different. Besides the differences in yields there are other contrasts equally as astonishing. In the days of the early farmer it took 19 farm families to produce food for one family otherwise employed, but now one farm family feeds five other families.

While the seventeenth century farmer, his oxen and his family struggled to keep up with a few small patches, our farmers mount efficient machines and cultivate hundreds of acres. The pioneer depended upon fertility of his new ground and kept an eye out for other areas, but the modern farmer builds fertility in the soil he has.

Today's farmer doesn't wonder if he will live through the Winter. He thinks instead about how much profit he will have after he pays for living, what improvements he will be able to make on his place this year, and about additional luxuries he will be able to provide for his family.

Then Tomorrow

When he looks out across fields this Winter and watches his sleek healthy livestock grazing on green pastures, he will have a million things more to be thankful for than the toilers who first celebrated a good harvest. While his cotton this year didn't do all he expected, he has other operations of which he is justly proud. His eggs were not in one basket.

Our farmer has a right to the position he holds because he represents centuries of work and progress. Although most of the improvements came about in the last 50 years, every generation made its contribution.

Possibly as a result of having learned to prosper, the twentieth century farmer will leave for future farmers a land even more promising than his.

"WHAT A LARGE PULLEY BONE YOU HAVE"

Many a nice young gobbler will do his last strutting between now and Thanksgiving Day. And this year more of the young turkeys on Thanksgiving dinner tables in the state will come from Alabama farms.

Along with the development of other livestock and poultry operations in farming of this section, turkeys in certain areas are becoming a No. 1 cash crop. An example of this may be seen at the big Turkey Festival going on in Talladega this week. Farmers there will market more than 40,000 birds this Fall.

Admiring the big white turkey in the picture is two-year-old Denise Weeks of Lee County. She thinks the young gobbler will make a tasty dish.

A Better Peanut Seed Supply

THE peanut seed production program being carried by farmers in Southeast Alabama is beginning to pay off. It will mean a great deal next year to the peanut farmers of that area.

Working with the Alabama Crop Improvement Association and local county agents, some 70 farmers produced 2,000 acres of Dixie Runners for certification this year. The growers are distributed in Barbour, Bullock, Butler, Coffee, Conecuh, Crenshaw, Covington, Dale, Geneva, Henry, Houston, and Pike Counties.

It is estimated that the approved acreage for certification will yield 2,500,000 pounds of seed for next year's use. That means the largest supply of Dixie Runners that has been available since the variety was introduced a few years ago.

Pure Dixie Runner peanut seed have been in great demand since they were tested by the A.P.I. Experiment Station in 1946-47. Those experiments showed that they yielded 720 pounds per acre more than Alabama Runners, which was the leading variety planted at that time. Additional experiments showed the Dixie Runner to have less concealed damage—two per cent compared with 14 per cent for the Alabama Runner.

The 2,500,000 pounds of certified seed do not represent an abundant supply; they will plant only about one-fourth of next year's acreage. But, based upon research, they will add eight to ten million dollars to the value of Alabama's second largest cash crop in 1950.

Do You Have A Handbook?

EVERY farm family can make good use of the new "Handbook of Alabama Agriculture" (fourth edition). The price is only 50 cents, which represents the cost of printing and handling.

A supply of these is on hand at county agent offices all over the state. It is a book of 388 pages that contains the latest scientific information on all phases of agriculture.

VETERAN TRAINEE DOING EXCELLENT JOB ON SMALL FARM

Melvin Q. Yeargan of the Enterprise Community is doing an excellent job on his 90-acre farm. Cultivating only 25 acres, Mr. Yeargan has a [illegible] that is hard to equal.

This year, this trainee made 5½ bales of cotton from 6 acres. "Poisoning my cotton according to schedule certainly paid off this year," said Mr. Yeargan. His corn yield was 50 bushels per acre, and he was especially pleased with his yield of 45 bushels of hybrid corn from ½ acre.

This veteran trainee has 5 acres in Kobe and Sericea Lespedeza, which he intends to utilize with 2 brood sows and their pigs; also his two milch cows will find excellent summer grazing furnished by these crops.

For winter grazing he will depend on 5 acres Crimson Clover and 3 acres of oats [illegible] will furnish ample grazing for his livestock.

Mr. Yeargan has as another livestock enterprise 150 white leghorn hens. These hens are about 6 months old and are laying about 60 percent. These hens have had excellent care and show promise of being a project that furnishes extra income at a season of the year when there is [illegible]

The trainee thinks that the training he has received since he has been on this program has been very worthwhile to him. He has learned many new methods of farming; also he has learned the value of farm planning and keeping farm records.

While living in Montgomery, Sidney Lanier, the famous poet, published his only novel "Tiger Lilies." The book was a story of the war and reconstruction.

"SHORTY NOT SHORT WITH HIS FARMING PROGRAM

Leonard (Shorty) Bates has just completed thirty-one months of training on the Veterans' Agriculture Program in Chilton County. Shorty has a very good Live-At-Home Program which consists of over three hundred quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, two hogs fattening at the present time, and one in the freeze plant, forty laying hens for home supply of eggs, and two cows that furnish year-round supply of milk and butter. His cash enterprises consists of the following: 1 acre of strawberries, 1 acre of dew berries, 500 peach trees, 6 acres of cotton and a few surplus calves.

With only twenty acres of land in cultivation "Shorty" realizes that he must make a living, and he is doing so by diversified farming. Now we will list the feed crops that "Shorty" had this year: 8 acres of corn and not less than 60 bushels per acre, 3 acres oats, 1 acre in alfalfa, 1 acre soybeans, 1 acre of grain sorghum.

Thirty-one months ago "Shorty" enrolled on the farming program as a renter, but while taking training, he bought and paid for his farm, built a new 6-room house, and furnished it with new furniture. We congratulate "Shorty" on the progress he has made, and we feel sure he has used his training to a great advantage.

ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE FENCE is a good calf enjoying himself.

C. S. Batcheldor, Russell County dairyman, once had a lot of trouble raising his heifer calves. But today he believes he has the answer to that big dairy problem.

The dairyman is using the portable calf pen system recommended by dairymen at A.P.I. He keeps his calves in portable individual pens, moving all pens to new and uninfested areas every week. He says he has lost no calves since he began using this system.

Here one of his high-bred Jersey calves is drinking milk by using a rubber teat on a two-gallon bucket.

4-H Achievement Week

NATIONAL 4-H Achievement Week has been set for November 5-13. It is a week during which America is made conscious of its largest group of organized rural young people.

Achievement Week is the time when 4-H members in Alabama and throughout the nation make reports on the accomplishments of individuals and groups. It is a time when they receive national recognition for the work they have done. And it is the time when they make plans to build a stronger program for the coming year.

Preparation For Future Pastures Needed On Alabama Farms

WITH acreage allotments on cash row crops staring Alabama farmers in the face, they are confronted with the problem of using released acres to maintain farm incomes. The obvious answer to this problem in this state and throughout the Southeast is to produce more livestock and poultry.

Wise farmers have not waited idly for this development but in recent years have begun expansion of livestock production. There are, however, certain jobs for this season that demand immediate attention by this group and other farmers looking to livestock.

D. R. Harbor, A.P.I. Extension agronomist, points out to all producers the advantages of using sericea lespedeza in a year-round grazing program. In order to be ready for seeding sericea early next year, Harbor advises farmers to clear and prepare proposed pasture areas now. This job should be done ahead of Winter rains.

"The farmer who waits until Winter rains begin and his land is soaked may not be able to plant his sericea on time," says the agronomist.

The specialist adds that this is also an ideal time for livestock growers to clear bottom land which will be planted in permanent pasture in February and March.

The Farmer Plays A Part In PMA

By WM. H. MOORE

Production and Marketing Administration

DURING the past 15 years Congress has enacted various legislation designed to assist farmers in doing things they are not able to do alone.

The purpose of this legislation is to assure the farmer as nearly as possible that his income from his efforts will be comparable with the income of other groups. However, in order to get this assistance the farmer has a definite responsibility in meeting requirements set forth.

Take the Agricultural Conservation Program for example. Under this program farmers are offered assistance in carrying out practices which control erosion and improve the soil. These practices include such things as terrace construction, planting cover crops and pasture improvement, but it was not intended that the farmer be given these things without effort or expense on his part. The government allows him a part of the cost provided the practice meets specifications.

The farmer's responsibility under this program is getting the necessary information and approval from his county PMA committee before he starts the practice, being certain that he understands the specifications for the practice, carrying the practice out according to specifications, and reporting to the county PMA office as soon as the practice is completed.

In Price Supports

Another example is price supports. Legislation provides that the government will support the price of certain farm products such as cotton, corn, peanuts, soybeans, oats and cottonseed. Here again the farmer has a definite responsibility to meet before he can receive the benefits of the program. Prices are supported through loans or purchase agreements on products which meet certain grade standards. On some products prices are supported only when the product is stored on the farm. On other products, such as corn and other grain, prices are supported when the product is stored either on the farm or in commercial storage.

It is the farmer's responsibility to see that his product meets grade standards, to provide acceptable storage on the farm when required, and to protect products on which farm storage loans are made while they are stored on the farm.

In Acreage Allotments

Another part of the program in which the farmer has a big responsibility is acreage allotments. In Alabama we have acreage allotments in 1949 for peanuts and tobacco. In 1950 cotton and wheat will be included. To a very large degree acreage allotments for each crop are based on the acreage planted or harvested on the farm in past years.

When the county PMA committee calls for information needed to determine farm allotments, it is the farmer's responsibility to furnish such information as accurately as possible and within the time limit specified. Without accurate information it is impossible to establish acreage allotments which will be fair and equitable to all farms.

Only through careful attention to these things can farmers obtain full benefits from the various farm programs administered by PMA. Detailed information regarding any of these programs may be obtained from your county PMA committee or at the county PMA office.

Accurate D.H.I.A. Records. The importance of obtaining accurate dairy herd improvement association records for use in compiling proved-sire records cannot be overemphasized. For example, they most nearly indicate the breeding value of a bull.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT." Curtis Bowen, Excel 4-H Club member in Monroe County, is a believer in watching after sows and young pigs at farrowing time. His prize Duroc gilt convinced him of the need for this by mashing two of her 12 pigs the night they were born.

Since that time the Monroe County youngster has taken seriously the advice of D. O. Estes, assistant county agent. He went Mr. Estes one step further by moving his bed to the pen and sleeping with the sow and her pigs for more than a week. (He still has his 10 pigs.)

Curtis says before his sow farrows again he will provide a farrowing house for her complete with guard rails to prevent losing pigs by mashing.

RURAL WOMEN HONORED IN CITY. Home demonstration leaders from five Central Alabama counties met recently in the Terrace Ballroom of the Thomas Jefferson Hotel for an Appreciation Dinner. It was a grand affair arranged to pay tribute to leaders among Alabama's farm women. Birmingham chain store merchants were hosts to the more than 400 ladies present at the meeting.

Shown here are presidents of home demonstration councils in the five counties represented. They are, left to right, Mrs. Russell Shoults, Lawley, Bibb; Mrs. G. A. Hallman, Remlap, Blount; Mrs. H. A. Pauly, Montevallo, Shelby; Mrs. Ed Peace, Ashville, St. Clair, and Mrs. C. W. Hart, Birmingham, Rt. 5, Jefferson.

Community Organization--A Factor In Farming

FOR years Alabama farmers and farm people have struggled to have active rural community organizations. Some groups have made great progress; others have met with less success. Today, in all parts of the state, impressive results of organized community work are evident.

It was not until three years ago that a system was devised by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute for coordinating the plan of work in these communities and for measuring their progress. In 1947 the A.P.I. Extension Service appointed an experienced veteran, George T. Sargent, as specialist in community development.

A Plan Is Launched

That year Sargent did intensive work with leaders in 18 Alabama communities. And these groups were checked closely in the carrying out of selected community projects. In November of that year progressive community awards were made by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute to the 18 community groups.

The next year 28 communities received progressive community awards and two organizations (Fleahop of Elmore County and Daviston of Tallapoosa) received certificates of excellence.

More than 50 communities in 35 Alabama counties are carrying out projects under this plan for 1949 and are striving for community awards. Sargent estimates at least 15 of these will make excellent ratings this year. Awards will be made shortly after grading is completed in early November.

Lennox of Conecuh

Lennox Community in Conecuh County is cited by the specialist as an excellent example of this work. This group was organized in September, 1948, with 40 active farm families. A. F. Bell, chairman of the organization, reported recently that they burned their $750 mortgage note on the club house building. In less than one year they had a clear title to the three-room school building and two acres of land which they bought from the county.

With the help of the Lennox Home Demonstration Club they had box suppers, ice cream suppers, etc., to raise the necessary money. Less than $30 was raised by out-of-pocket donations. The group plans now to improve the building, landscape the grounds, and make an ideal community meeting place at the old school site.

In this community, as in others throughout the state, the community organization is lifting social standards. At the same time it is enabling rural people to learn and work efficiently by holding them together, Sargent believes.

SEED FOR SALE. Farmers in Russell County are making use of their local Farmers Exchange to sell tons of good home-grown legume and other seed. As in other parts of the state the county cooperative organization is handling seed to the advantage of both buyers and sellers.

Along the Way

P. O. DAVIS

DIRECTOR, API EXTENSION SERVICE

A big question before the American farmers is this: What will be the effects of British pound devaluation upon agriculture in particular and business in general? I'm among those who don't know the answer but I have much concern over what may happen. It may not be good for farmers. In fact, I'm deeply concerned about it.

For a simple illustration let's say that Great Britain's pound devaluation of 30 per cent was like a merchant about to go broke. He has a big stock of goods but very little money. To restore his bank account he cuts prices on everything in his store by 30 per cent.

This would stimulate sales. It would convert goods into dollars; but the total value of his stock of goods, plus the dollar intake, would be 30 per cent lower than before the cut was made. Nothing is created.

So it was with Great Britain in relation to dollars. The day after her devaluation an American in London with enough dollars in his pocket to exchange for 100 pounds the day before could exchange his dollars for 130 pounds. He could buy 30 per cent more goods.

More Buying In England

This is why American merchants with agents in London rushed orders to them to buy woolen clothes, woolen rugs and carpets, fine cotton cloth, and other things.

Their dollars in England would buy 30 per cent more with no reduction in their selling prices over here for the time being. But the story may be different later.

More buying in England reduces buying at home and also in other countries. This means that others will suffer while more dollars are going to desperate Britain. To offset this many other nations have devalued their money.

But the end isn't yet. To make more fine cotton goods to sell to American merchants English manufacturers must have raw cotton and we hope that they'll buy American cotton. If they do, their devalued pounds mus be converted into dollars.

Instead of swapping a pound for $4.05 a they could before devaluation, they will now get only $2.80 for that pound, or 30 per cen less.

At once their costs go up and one of fou things must happen: more pounds must b supplied, or less buying done, or cotton price lowered, or cotton bought where dollars ar not required.

Less In The U. S. A.

It appears, therefore, that our cotton sale to Great Britain will decline because Britis spinners can buy cheaper elsewhere. Stil more important may be the repercussions up on our textile industry. Buyers of textil products can buy cheaper from other countries which, naturally, they will do.

This cotton example can be applied t other farm commodities that go to Grea Britain. Food products are included. It ma mean price pressure to a much greater degree than we have witnessed in recent year This pressure may be on nonfarm product too.

It all stems from the fact that Britain i a very sick nation. She is unable to feed he people and has been unable since 1939 without the help of U. S. food and U. S. dollar It is, therefore, a dollar transfusion into th weak arm of Britain's struggling economy

But the effects upon our economy are certain to be many and lasting. Farmers ar greatly concerned, especially cotton grower

HOUSTON COUNTY CONTESTANTS left the State Fair in Birmingham carrying all championship awards in the Alabama Chicken-of-Tomorrow Contest for 1949.

Making full use of their natural advantages and their ability to raise good chickens, Jimmy Hollis, Cottonwood 4-H Club boy, and A. A. Middleton of the Alabama State Hatchery in Dothan exhibited prize winning chickens in the two divisions of the contest. Middleton took first place in the open division while young Hollis set the pace in the junior contest.

Peas, Beans Stored Untreated Make Picnic Ground For Weevils

CORN is not the only seed that needs treating in storage. Every year bean and pea weevils destroy thousands of dollars worth of dried beans and peas.

This annual loss to the weevil, however, is one which can be reduced to practically nothing by properly treating stored seed.

In order to protect stored beans and peas against the weevil, W. A. Ruffin, A.P.I. Extension entomologist, recommends certain essentials in handling the seed. The first of these is to harvest the crop as soon as hulls become dry. Weevils attack and destroy seed while they are still on the vine in the fields and gardens. After harvesting, the specialist says, all seed should be shelled as soon as possible. Then, when they are thoroughly dry, about two weeks after harvesting, they should be treated with a fumigant.

Carbon disulfide or "high-life," is very effective for fumigating. Following treatment with it the seed may be aired thoroughly and made safe for planting purposes or for human consumption, says Ruffin.

Quart jars, syrup buckets or lard cans make good containers for treating seed in small quantities. Fill them with seed; then pour in the carbon disulfide. Use one teaspoonful for each quart jar, two tablespoonfuls for a gallon and one-half cup for a five-gallon can. Leave the container closed tightly for two days if the weather is warm, and longer if the weather is cool.

Before storing the seed in tight cloth or paper bags, air them until there is no trace of carbon disulfide odor, warns Ruffin.

"Remember that carbon disulfide is inflammable," he adds. "It will ignite and explode from a lighted cigarette."

Alabama Sportsmen Grow Feed For Quail

ALABAMA farmers and sportsmen are making plans for the bobwhite to enjoy a plentiful season next year.

All over the state hunters and bird lovers are thinking more about the welfare of wild fowl and are growing more crops for feed. Black Belt farmers and others this year harvested large quantities of partridge pea seed in order to supply the demand for planting.

Few stands of this legume were harvested in '48 because of rainy weather. Consequently few sportsmen could find seed for quail food plantings. The demand will far exceed the supply this season, but more seed will be available.

John Tucker Harris, Lee County farmer who has had several acres of the legume growing on his farm the past two or three years, says, "Partridge peas will grow on the poorest land imaginable."

In addition to its value as a quail food and cover plant, the large partridge pea is an excellent soil builder. The seed require no inoculation or scarification. In the Black Belt, where partridge peas grow wild, quail eat more of its seed than of any other food during January and February. This fact is emphasized by Earl F. Kennamer, A.P.I. Extension wildlife specialist.

Where To Plant

For bird food plantings, Kennamer recommends planting partridge pea seed in small patches where the land has been fertilized with superphosphate or basic slag. The most ideal places for planting the legume for bird uses are fence rows and field borders where crop cultivation is not practicable. Any soil but the light sandy type makes the best growth and seed production. Plantings, however, should be made on well-drained areas, Kennamer advises.

The specialist also points out that partridge peas provide excellent cover in that no thick growth is present at the ground level. This gives quail a "birds-eye-view" of approaching danger. The leaf and stem growth of the peas gives overhead protection. In contrast, kudzu, sericea and broomsedge make a matted growth which impedes the quail's movement and vision.

A few patches of bicolor lespedeza, another top quail food and cover plant, were also harvested this Fall but the supply will be most inadequate. Bicolor lespedeza, like the partridge pea, is a legume. However, bicolor is a perennial and once established makes a very good bird food and cover plant. The seed of bicolor for planting must be scarified for good germination.

The farmer or sportsman with scattered patches of both bicolor lespedeza and large partridge peas is aiding his bobwhites in maintaining a good food supply during the Winter months—that critical period for most game species.

The $2 Duck Stamp

THE extra dollar tacked onto the cost of duck stamps this year will be used to offset rising costs of waterfowl conservation carried on by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Money from the $2 stamp cost will enable the Service to complete development of the present waterfowl preservations and obtain other areas along the waterfowl flyways.

Farmers, sportsmen and specialists are joining hands in a program they hope will make a "bobwhite heaven" in Alabama.

Upper left, Dr. A. M. Pearson, Zoology Department, Alabama Polytechnic Institute; John Tucker Harris, Lee County farmer; and Dr. A. O. Haugen, leader of the Federal Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit, Auburn, look over part of Mr. Harris' harvest of large partridge peas. Last year Mr. Harris sold his peas for $1.35 a pound and could not supply the demand.

Lower left, Mr. Harris illustrates how tall some of his bicolor lespedeza plants grow. He has more than three acres of this excellent quail food and cover crop.

At right "Pete" Dorsey, another Lee County farmer, inspects a layer of drying partridge peas. Later he will obtain a germination test of the seed which, incidentally, have already been sold.

Two bushels of potatoes grow in the United States today where only one bushel grew 25 years ago. Some of the factors affecting doubling of yields are certified seed relatively free of disease; concentration of crop in areas most favorable to it; effective insect control; and development of improved varieties.

THE LUMBER MARKET has stopped dropping, leveled off, and in some places showed a slight increase during recent weeks. This has been reflected in higher stumpage prices in some areas. In other areas, sawmillers are still using "scare tactics" to hold down stumpage prices.

CHECK ON DAIRY PRODUCTION

Among the dairymen in Alabama who are taking definite steps to keep close records on the production of individual cows are members of the Marengo County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

This organization, as have others of its kind in the state, hired a technician who makes dairy herd improvement tests each month on herds of its members. The dairymen are finding the program helpful in locating poor milk producers and in adjusting feeding rates to suit individual animals.

Open Season On Hogs

ALMOST all farmers know hunting season is just ahead and they are ready for it. But many a good farmer will find sick hogs on his place before he realizes hog flu season is here also.

Hog flu season comes with chilly winds and cold rains of early Fall and Winter. The disease affects hogs more at that time than at any other time of the year.

Hogs are more susceptible to weather changes than other domestic farm animals. Yet, down through the years, many farmers continue to expose their hogs to sudden changes in temperature; they fail to give the animals simple shelters to prevent exposure to Fall weather.

As a result, even in Alabama's mild climate, many hogs get sick with flu, go off feed, and lose weight and growth.

Flu itself rarely causes death losses, says G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist. He explains that big losses result, however, from setbacks in growth and fattening and from complications following flu, such as pneumonia.

Sometimes farmers mistake flu for cholera and proceed to vaccinate their herds. Phillips says this is a mistake because then the pigs have two troubles to overcome instead of one. When hogs get sick, it's always a good idea to have a sure diagnosis before taking steps.

The Veterinarian Says

Dr. R. S. Sugg, state veterinarian, explains that there is no flu vaccination recommended; he states that prevention through feeding balanced rations, including good green grazing, and providing simple inexpensive housing is the best treatment. Hogs should not be forced to sleep in either wet or dusty quarters or in cold drafty winds.

When hogs go off feed, have a high temperature, a bad cough and a rapid loss of flesh, flu may be suspected.

It's A Free Fruit

TO produce almost any fruit, the grower must give the plant special attention which usually calls for hours of work and some out-of-pocket expense. There is one he can grow, however, that is practically a "free fruit."

J. C. Ford, A.P.I. Extension specialist in gardens and orchards, says this fruit is the muscadine grape. He explains that it is not necessary to prune, spray, or cultivate muscadines. Although they should be fertilized and will do better if pruned, they can still be grown with less effort than any other fruit.

Ford believes every farm family should have from two to six vines to produce muscadines for home use. He says each vine should be of a different variety. The Scuppernong is the best known of the varieties and is very good, but there are others that produce more fruit.

A family should plant at least one pollinating variety (most varieties do not produce pollen). The Tarheel is usually considered the best pollinator and that variety also produces good fruit.

Your county agent can give you information on muscadine grape production and can also tell you where to buy plants.

It's a good idea to watch all pigs and hogs from now on, especially those running in corn fields. And wherever there is a chance of hog flu being present, follow the precautions outlined above.

A simple roof-type shed, set up on high ground with a wall arranged for protection against North wind and big enough to provide comfortable sleeping quarters, is a good investment against flu losses on any farm.

Hog flu is about as contagious among pigs and hogs as the common cold is among humans. Animals that have gone through stockyards and other infected places take flu easily. They should always be isolated from other hogs on the farm for 30 days.

This Month on the Farm

by API· EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

THIS month marks the beginning of trapping season. Trappers should have equipment in condition before the first day of the big season. This year in counties where beaver trapping is legal trappers will have 15 additional days of trapping.

THIS year more than 25,000 acres of seed crops will be certified. This shows an increase of 14,000 acres over last year.

WINTER grazing crops such as crimson clover, ryegrass, oats, and vetch need top dressing. If you did not do this all-important job during October, be sure to do it early this month.

NOVEMBER is a good month to prepare land for reseeding sericea, permanent pasture and kudzu next Spring. Especially is this true for areas that will not erode with Winter rains. The surest way to be ready to plant on time is to have your land prepared.

NOW is the time to begin locating seed you need for planting next year. It is especially important to locate hybrid corn seed before the rush starts and good seed become scarce.

THIS Winter cows producing more than two gallons of milk per day will need extra feed. One pound of concentrate for each two and one-half to three pounds of milk is recommended.

DECEMBER hog prices have been lower than September hog prices almost every year for 23 years. Alabama farmers can put their Spring pigs on the market ahead of Winter runs by properly planning next year's breeding and feeding program.

WITH the increase of diseases which are spread by insects it is more important than ever to spray your cattle this Fall. All beef cattle should be thoroughly sprayed with DDT in November to control lice.

ONE advantage of beef cattle is that they utilize feed which might otherwise go to waste. As soon as crops are harvested, turn cattle into the fields to glean them.

REMEMBER to do maintenance on terraces this Fall before Winter rains come to tear them apart. Many good channel-type terraces are ruined each year because of narrow channel maintenance.

ANOTHER important job for November and December is the pruning of fruit trees. For specific information about pruning different types of trees, see your county agent.

LUMBER can be cut from now until March without much danger from Southern Pine Beetle infestation. To be on the safe side, thin pine timber during this time also.

NOVEMBER through February is the time to make seed cuttings of figs, pears, and bunch grapes. The best varieties for your community are those that are already making good there. Cuttings from these trees and vines are all you need.

A New Type Beef Show For The Black Belt

A butcher calf beef show will be promoted by Black Belt county Extension agents next year. Animals raised from cow and calf projects will be entered in the event.

With adults and 4-H Club members taking part, the show and sale will be arranged for the normal Fall marketing season.

Four-H Club members who raise beef type calves from their own cows will be eligible. Adults, who will be limited to a minimum of five entries, will have to meet these same requirements.

"This type of show," believes J. D. Samford, A.P.I. Extension district agent, "will tie to the farm a beef calf program for youngsters of this section. It is devised to carry out the practice of Black Belt farmers, based on recommendations of the Extension Service in line with experimental results at the Black Belt Experiment Station."

The district agent explains that beef is "a natural" for this section and that beef cattle can be produced here without any bought or stored feed. Calves, he adds, are usually sold immediately after they are weaned, when they are from seven to nine months old. They are produced from grass and milk.

Experts Approve

W. H. Gregory, Extension livestock specialist at Auburn, advises farmers and 4-H Club members entering this project to select brood cows with good milk capacity and breed them to high quality beef bulls. In explaining the show, the specialist said calves will be judged on U. S. Slaughter grades as well as on rate of daily gains since birth.

State 4-H Club Leader Hanchey Logue, who helped inaugurate the new plan, is looking at the youngsters' side. Four-H boys in the Black Belt have never been too enthusiastic in feeding out fat steers because of insufficient grain production. Logue says Spring fat stock shows are adaptable to grain producing areas but he thinks Black Belt boys and girls will like the new plan better. "In fact," he says, "the idea originated with a 4-H Club member."

Plans are being made to hold the first Butcher Cow and Calf Show in July or early August, 1950.

Land Values Go Past The Peak

THE dollar value of farm land in Alabama is down five per cent from March; over the entire United States it is down two per cent. And the country's average is one per cent below that of a year ago, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

But land values are still more than double the 1935-39 average. As of July 1, they averaged about three per cent below the high peak reached in November, 1948.

Small declines took place in almost all sections of the country this Summer. For the first time since 1939 the national index dropped below the previous year. Values continued to increase in only six states during the March-July period. And the gains in those states averaged only one per cent. In five other states values remained unchanged. Elsewhere, the declines were small.

The report indicates also that the sale of farms is slowing down. About 17 per cent fewer farms changed hands during the year ending this March than during the previous year and about 29 per cent fewer farms than during the year of peak sales ending March 1, 1947.

There is reason for cutting farm debts as much as possible in 1949. The trend is toward greater shrinkage in the farm produce dollar. It takes more hogs, cattle, milk, eggs, grain, or cotton to pay off a $1,000 debt than was required last year.

HIS OWN EXPERIMENT. Several farmers in Alabama this year planted small patches of new corn varieties to observe how well they do in local areas.

Among these was Joe Wiggins, of Clarke County, shown here in his field of McCurdy's 1002 hybrid. The seed for planting was furnished him by the breeders through County Agent O. C. Helms.

Wiggins says he is impressed with this variety of corn, especially with the size of individual ears.

Deep in the heart of the deer country, this farmer even staked out dogs around the field to prevent damage to his crop by the wild creatures. He will report later on his yield.

As A Good Winter Job Make Your Farm Fit Your Machinery

ON farms, as in factories, small corrections and improvements make the difference in the use of machinery. Today is part of an age in which the efficiency of machines means the difference between profit and loss.

Many an Alabama farmer, busily engaged with the job of producing a crop, saw here and there little jobs that needed doing. He promised himself faithfully that when crops were harvested he would "repair that weak or broken bridge" or "dig up that stump on the road to the back forty."

Now the crop is harvested, most of his Fall planting is taken care of, and it is time to remember these odd jobs.

If your fields, roads and bridges do not suit machinery you are using, it is a good time to make corrections. Narrow roads and bridges are not only dangerous but they hamper farming. Gates that are too small to pass machinery should be enlarged. Rocks and stumps that were plowed around through the last cultivation will cause trouble again if they stay until planting time.

Another important consideration in planning for use of farm machinery is the preparation of fields themselves. A combine can not be operated efficiently on turns and in corners where an ox would have trouble.

Hogs Need Winter Grazing

THE best profit in hogs will be made this Winter and Spring by producers with lowest feed costs, declares Hog Specialist G. B. Phillips, of Auburn.

"Furthermore," adds the A.P.I. Extension specialist, "Winter cover crops for hogs may mean the difference between profit and loss when they are marketed."

Phillips says lower prices make it important to get the fastest and cheapest gains with Fall-farrowed litters. When sows and pigs are raised on good Fall and Winter pastures, less grain feeding is required.

The specialist reminds farmers to make use of vetch sowed with small grains by grazing it with hogs. This combination gives extra good hog pasture during Winter and Spring.

Take A Hot Potato--And Enjoy It

WHEN Fall comes around, sweetpotatoes turn up to remind old timers of the day they were told to "take a cold potato and wait."

The cold sweetpotato might have been good to keep children pacified while guests were being served, but served piping hot they make a better dish and stay on friendly terms with the family.

Actually sweetpotatoes make a colorful, tempting food when properly prepared. They provide food energy in the form of vitamins A and C. For balance and variety, nutritionists recommend alternating sweet and Irish potatoes.

Use sweetpotatoes promptly because as a general rule they are not good keepers. It is wise to use the early crop and store the later varieties.

Remember too that potatoes are best when cooked in the jacket. The thin skin of the cooked sweetpotato is easily removed and takes with it less of the goodness underneath.

If they are peeled before cooking, it should be done just before cooking. Placing the pared potatoes in salted water keeps them from darkening before they are cooked.

Sweetpotatoes cooked quickly and served hot are best. There is then little chance for air to rob their good source of Vitamin C. When they are left-over, cover the dish or leave on the jackets and place them in the refrigerator. Then they are ready to recook for their second appearance.

Leader Of Housewives

IN recent years Alabama farm women have become prominent as leaders in the development of farm and home life in the South. This Month In Rural Alabama joins with others in saluting the leaders selected to head the home demonstration clubs of the state. Through these clubs farm women band together for greater accomplishments.

Among the outstanding women from farms of Alabama is Mrs. J. C. McCullors of Refuge Community in Talladega County. Mrs. McCullors was recently elected parliamentarian on the State Council of Home Demonstration Clubs. She has been a leader in her community and county for years. At present she is serving as first vice-president of the Talladega County Council and is rural youth leader in her community club. She is active in the Farm Bureau and in Red Cross work.

On the McCullors' average-sized cotton and corn farm (beef cattle are beginning to come into prominence there now) stands a 50-year-old farm house. The family project for the past year has been the remodeling of the picturesque old building. Mr. and Mrs. McCullors, along with their two sons and one daughter, did most of the carpentry work themselves. What's more, they used lumber from their own farm.

MRS. McCULLORS AND DAUGHTER

Mrs. J. C. McCullors is typical of the type of farm woman who leads organized work in our state. This publication will bring reports on other leaders from time to time.

A Million Tons Of Fertilizer Used In State During Crop Year

WITH farmers in Alabama setting a new pace in farming, it is not surprising that during the last growing season they broke all records in buying fertilizer.

The startling fact is that they used more than a million tons of commercial plant food during the last crop year.

According to a recent report by the State Crop Recording Service, the sale of fertilizer this year was 11.1 per cent higher than during the crop year 1947-1948.

Leading in sales of fertilizer in the state this year were 4-10-7 and 6-8-4 commercial mixtures. These two grades were ahead of others by wide margins.

A.P.I. Extension agronomists say these figures reveal an important trend in the development of Alabama's agriculture. "They show that farmers are beginning to realize the necessity for using larger quantities of fertilizer," asserts J. C. Lowery. "And when they increase the use of fertilizer, growers increase crop yields," he added.

IN A CLASS BY THEMSELVES

The first group of artificially bred calves to compete in a class of their own in dairy shows of Alabama was assembled this year in Mobile County.

The 14 heifers entered in the class for judging are shown here with their owners. They were also on exhibit during the Mobile District Show.

Next year the Artificial Breeding Association looks forward to having enough older animals to have more than one class of artificially bred calves in the county event.

Storing Farm Implements

By J. T. GAILLARD

WITH harvesting time about over most farm machinery will be stored until next season. Before storing, implements should be brought in, cleaned, repaired and painted.

If implements are not painted, they should be cleaned thoroughly and greased where there are moving parts. The faces of plows, etc., should be covered with a heavy grease or a rust preventive. After cleaning and servicing, the implements should be placed in the storage shed for protection from weather.

Combines and other heavy machinery need special attention. The inside of the combine should be thoroughly cleaned and all trash removed before storing. The tension on the canvas and other belts should be released to prevent stretching. One very important service job is to remove all seeds, trash and dirt from the elevators to prevent damage during the storage period. Above all, the combine or other heavy machinery should be stored under a shed and protected from the weather.

Servicing the Power Unit

The power units on implements should be serviced before storing. The oil should be changed and a new oil filter element should be put in. The oil bath air cleaner should be thoroughly cleaned and new oil put into it. The water should be drained from the radiator and block and a tag attached with a note that the power unit does not have any water in it.

For the protection of pistons, rings, and cylinder walls, the spark plugs should be removed and about one tablespoon of clean new motor oil poured into the spark plug openings. After the oil has been poured into the cylinders, the motor should be turned over several times to put a coating of oil on the moving parts for their protection while the power unit is in storage.

Implements should be stored away from livestock. And chickens should not be allowed to roost on any part of the equipment.

If the above procedure is followed, farm equipment will be ready to go to work without a loss of time when it is again needed.

More Breeder Seed. Alabama farmers planted more breeder cottonseed in 1949 than ever before. Cotton improvement associations and other cotton growers are working out plans to save first year seed for planting next year's crop.

New Pest To Fight

ALFALFA and sericea showing yellow and dead stems may be infested with alfalfa hopper. Entomologists report that this pest has turned up in several localities of Alabama.

The alfalfa hopper is a three-cornered insect that makes its living girdling the stems of legume plants. Damage by the invader may be serious.

No practical chemical has been developed to control the hopper. However, W. G. Eden, A.P.I. Experiment Station assistant entomologist, recommends that sericea or alfalfa be cut as soon as damage appears.

The experiment station is conducting research that may provide practical methods of control in the near future.

Champion 4-H Cotton Counties To Be Named In State For '49

FIVE hundred dollars in prizes will be used this year to promote cotton projects among 4-H Club members in Alabama and to interest the youngsters in improved methods of production.

A cash award of $125, made available by the Atlantic Cotton Association, will be awarded the leading 4-H cotton county in each of the four Extension districts (North, Central, Southeast and Southwest counties). The awards will be made on the basis of records on cotton production by 4-H Club members and will be given to the county 4-H council.

O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension cotton specialist, points out that this money can be used only for county-wide meetings and for county-wide promotion of cotton production. The specialist says winners will be selected by a committee in Auburn. Reports must be received in his office on or before January 9, 1950, he warns.

In explaining the purpose of this cotton promotion project, Andrews says through it the sponsors hope to increase the number of cotton projects among farm boys; to encourage 4-H boys to follow the one-variety community plan; to advance the use of recommended cotton production practices; to emphasize the importance of cotton to the economics of Alabama, and to drive home the importance of cotton in a balanced farming program.

MOBILE BECOMES BILLION DOLLAR PORT

Huntsville — "The port of Mobile for the first time in its more than 200-year old history, became a billion dollar port in 1949," Henry Sweet said before a courthouse gathering in this city Monday.

A billion dollars worth of goods from all parts of the world flowed in and out of Mobile port during this year

Director Sweet also told the people that a $5,000,000 expansion program had just been completed, and now a new $2,000,000 project is underway "Every penny of this expansion money has been paid for from profits earned by the docks themselves, and none of it has come from the taxpayers." Sweet said.

Sweet told the Tennessee Valley people that Congress had approved but has yet to appropriate funds for the construction of a canal connecting the Tombigee with the Tennessee River. The proposed canal will shorten by 750 miles the water distance between Mobile and river ports of the Middle West.

Sweet pointed out that financially the Mobile State Docks have been a success. "During 1949," he said, "the docks averaged six per cent return on the over-all investment, besides paying all operating costs."

To improve flavor of stewed prunes, add a stick of cinnamon or a slice of lemon or orange.

"MIGHTY JOE YOUNG" AT THE CLANTON DRIVE-IN

Sensationally novel and actionful screen entertainment is presented in "Mighty Joe Young," which opens today at the Clanton Drive-In Theatre, with Terry Moore, Ben Johnson, Robert Armstrong and Frank McHugh in the stellar roles and with presentation by John Ford and Merian C. Cooper.

The identity of the much-discussed Joe Young proves to be the surprise of the picture, the adventure-thriller builds suspense to a stirring climax as the character Joe Young performs feats of super-human strength, ferocity and, finally, heroism.

With New York, Hollywood and the African Jungle as its principal settings, the action of the film turns on the startling results of a showman's trip to the Dark Continent to collect animal talent for an exotic night club he is building in the screen capital. Armstrong plays the showman, Miss Moore has the part of a girl who has been brought up on a lonely farm in the heart of Africa and has trained a huge gorilla. Johnson, a "find," is cast as an Oklahoma cowboy who accompanies Armstrong on his safari. Frank McHugh plays a harassed press agent.

Mounting thrills mark the epic career of Joe Young as he reduces a night club to splinters, and, as later he threads the flaming timbers of an orphan asylum to rescue its panic-stricken inmates. This is a show to hold the spectator spellbound, a show that lives up to its billing as Merian Cooper's Amazing Adventure in the Unusual!

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE SUMMARIES STRENGTH

The Armed Forces had a combined numerical strength of 1,592,700 on September 30, 1949 (based on preliminary reports). The total is a decrease of 15,000 from the 1,608,100 combined strength total of August 31, 1949.

Total recruitment during September was estimated as 38,225, including 741 one-year enlistments of 18-year-olds, 16.88 other new recruits, 12,697 immediate reenlistments, and 7.998 other reenlistments. Total recruitment in August was 40,318 and in July 44,020.

Navy enlistments for the month totaled 6,891, and Navy strength totaled 432,000 on September 30, compared with 419,600 on August 31.

THE BIG WIREGRASS HOG SHOW held recently in Dothan attracted much attention among farmers, farm youth, and other livestock lovers. As is demonstrated here, the show kept the stands overflowing with spectators.

The attraction going on in the ring is judging of pen-of-three entries. Judges placing the groups are G. B. Phillips, left, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist, and L. R. Robinson, buyer for Swift and Company, Donalsonville, Georgia.

Wiregrass Hog Show Becomes Annual Event

HOG shows have taken an important place in the agriculture of Alabama's Southeastern counties.

This year's series of shows and sales in the swine area was climaxed recently at the Second Annual District Hog Show in Dothan. The event attracted junior exhibitors from five Wiregrass counties and boasted a total entry of some 230 animals.

Emmett Sizemore, A.P.I. Extension district agent, G. B. Phillips, Extension hog specialist, and others were highly impressed this year with the improvement in quality of hogs at the show. The leaders and experts believe competition in the show ring has given farm youngsters a knowledge of good stock that they cannot get anywhere else.

"There was no comparison in the type of hogs entered in this year's show and at the first event," declared Phillips. "The hogs were so much better than last year that it's hard to believe."

Henry and Houston Counties walked away with top honors at this year's show. First prize went to Frank McCraney, Newville 4-H Club member, in individual competition, and the first prize pen-of-three was exhibited by James C. Cherry, 4-H Club boy from Ashford.

Sponsors of the Dothan Show encouraged the youngsters taking part in the event by offering high cash awards to winners and by giving them a good sale in the afternoon. County Agent C. M. Ling, his assistants, and agents from other counties were pleased with the results. They felt their efforts in putting on the show were rewarded.

Buy Only The Best Corn Meal

HAVE you ever asked about the meal you buy? Is it an enriched product?

Corn is an excellent food, but nutritionists tell us it lacks certain vitamins and elements necessary for good health. Pellagra, a common disease in the South, is largely a result of diets which fail to supply an adequate amount of niacin, one of the corn meal enrichment minerals.

The lack of such minerals in our diet is in part responsible for many other serious diseases, including anemia, nervous ailments and poor bone formation. When nutritionists discovered these facts, they set about finding a means of remedying the problem.

Under the supervision of John P. Bell, A.P.I. Extension specialist, the enrichment program has been in operation in Alabama for 18 months. A total of 493 grist mills are now equipped to furnish the public enriched products. Many grist millers are anxious to furnish a better food, and if customers are interested enough in their health to ask for the new service they will get better products.

County and home demonstration agents in each county are anxious to advise grist millers on how to produce the enriched food.

More Alfalfa In Cleburne County

CLEBURNE County farmers know a good thing when they see it. And they have seen what alfalfa can do when it fits into a livestock farming program.

More than 300 farmers in that county are growing alfalfa on approximately 800 acres of cropland, reports County Agent T. A. Ventress. This number includes 80 farmers who planted 149 acres of the crop this Fall.

Ventress declares that farmers already growing alfalfa believe it to be the best hay and grazing crop they have ever used. While using the crop for grazing purposes, they average four cuttings of hay per year with yields running between three and four tons per acre.

The county agent points out that while these farmers learn to appreciate good alfalfa they also learn the value of planting the crop right and using plenty of fertilizer. All plantings this year, he says, were made on good land, well prepared and fertilized. They were made using the recommended seed rates and the right planting dates.

Research Results

in brief from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

PRUNING YOUNG TREES helps to grow good quality knot-free lumber. If the limbs are sawed off flush with the trunk, the scars will soon heal over. Prune only the first log. Usually, it is not a good practice to reduce the live crown of the tree by pruning to more than 40 to 50 per cent of the total height of the tree.

AUBURN STRAIN LEGHORNS are especially bred to resist common diseases. They have been found to have only half the laying-house mortality of other good Leghorn strains when raised on old contaminated poultry farms, and they lay about 15 per cent more eggs than most strains.

MUSCADINE GRAPE VINES will not bleed when pruned during November and December after the leaves have been killed by frost. Best results have been obtained by removing all of the dead wood and cutting the present year's growth back to three or four buds.

CRIMSON CLOVER SEED PRODUCTION may be increased several-fold on soils lacking in boron, such as the light sandy soils of the Coastal Plains. On a soil of this type in Auburn, an application of 10 to 15 pounds of borax per acre before planting, in addition to 300 pounds of an 0-14-10 fertilizer, increased the average yield of handstripped crimson clover seed from 90 to 850 pounds per acre.

ONION SETS FOR FALL PLANTING should be graded for size. Medium to small sets planted in the Fall usually develop large onions the following Spring that are free of seed stalks and hollow centers. Large sets usually give green onions during the late Fall, Winter and early Spring; however, if allowed to grow until late Spring, they often develop seed stalks or large hollow-centered bulbs that spoil easily.

SOME FLOWERING ANNUALS, when planted in the Fall, bloom earlier and give better quality and a longer period of bloom than when planted in the Spring. Records at Auburn show that annual flowering plants especially adapted to Fall planting are bachelor button, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, larkspur, poppies, California poppies, phlox, pinks, pansies, rudbeckia, snapdragon, sweetsultan, sweetpea, stock, and verbena.

ALFALFA FERTILIZED WITH BORAX yielded higher, lived for a longer period and was greener in color, and, therefore, had a higher food value than that not treated with borax at Auburn.

GRAIN SORGHUM has averaged 50 bushels of grain per acre following Caley peas, crimson clover, bur clover or grandiflora vetch at Auburn. The legumes volunteer each Winter from seed produced the preceding Spring. The grain sorghum is planted about June 15.

COTTON GROWN CONTINUOUSLY after vetch since 1896 in the old rotation produced 2,265 pounds of seed cotton per acre in 1948, while cotton grown continuously without vetch produced only 482 pounds. The last five-year average yield (1944-48) of the cotton-vetch plots was 1,435, while that of the cotton-no vetch plot was 290 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

CRIMSON CLOVER CROP GAINS IN POPULARITY

Crimson clover continues its growth of popularity in Alabama and other Southeastern states. Proof of this is cited by Ralph Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist, who points out that seed dealers are now scraping the bottom of their seed bins in filling orders for this crop.

He further states that most Alabama dealers report to him that their supplies of crimson clover seed are either very low or sold out. This is remarkable since Alabama produced 3,200,000 pounds of crimson clover seed last spring—23 per cent more than the 1948 crop. The total U.S. crop was 18,060,000 pounds—six per cent larger than the record crop of 1942.

Jones reasons that crimson clover's rapid increase in popularity came about because farmers found it to be a good grazing, soil improvement, and seed producing crop.

State Chamber of Commerce

A new, attractive 48-page tourist book on Alabama has just been issued by the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, Frank P. Samford, president, announced today.

The new book features full-color photographs on the cover and is printed throughout in two colors. Alabama's various attractions are listed along with a brief outline of the State's history. Industry, agriculture, schools, vacation spots, and other features are included in the book. All are profusely illustrated with recent pictures.

Alabama's State Parks are described and facilities are mentioned at some of the larger parks. The book also features some of the finest photographs ever made of May's Gulf, the deepest gorge east of the Rockies, in DeSoto Park near Fort Payne.

The book is coming off the press in time to catch the seasonal travellers from the east and midwest as they start their annual trip south to follow the sun. It is exactly the same size as the Alabama State Highway Map and is designed to be a companion mailing piece.

A list of Alabama cities is also included with a detailed description of various attractions to be found in each city. All information in this section was compiled by the State Chamber with the aid of local chambers of commerce and other civic groups throughout Alabama.

Other full color photographs on the cover feature the Bessemer convertors of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham; Martin Dam, on the Tallapoosa River near Alexander City; Rosemount, Alabama's Grand Mansion, near Demopolis; Alabama State Docks and Bellingrath Gardens, Mobile; and, the Grand Hotel, Point Clear in Baldwin County.

RAT CONTROL

Rats destroy thousands of dollars worth of food and feed products each year. In addition to this, they kill a number of young poultry and spread diseases. Poisoned baits are recommended, especially baits that contain red squill which can be used safely.

Lately -- And All The Time

This is supposed to be a true story, although we've heard it with a number of variations.

Gov. Bibb Graves, a master politician, was open and frank in the use of "marbles" to put over his legislative programs. His was the Jacksonian philosophy of "to the victor belongs spoils," and his version was that "those who help me bake the pie shall eat it."

He was having some difficuty rounding up enough votes to get the sales tax over. The lines were closely drawn, and every vote counted. The administration's workers, the story goes, started putting on the pressure and passing out the pie.

One legislator, who of course shall be nameless here, was stubborn. A Graves lieutenant visited him at his home during a week end recess.

"Well," he observed, "I see the governor built that road you wanted alongside your property."

"Yep; he sure did!"

"And I note that your daughter has landed a pretty good job as a clerk in the house."

"Yep; she sure has."

"And your son seems to be doing right well at that job in the highway department, which you asked the governor for."

"Yep; the governor did right by me that time."

"Well, in the name of goodness, why aren't you helping him on this sales tax fight?"

"Well, I'll tell you. Bibb ain't done nothing for me lately."

As we say, we don't vouch for the truthfulness of that story. We've heard it applied to a preacher who pointed to blessings handed down by the Lord, and the backslider who said, "The Lord ain't done nothing for me lately."

Which brings us up to the point of the story. A membership worker came in the other day with the surprising report that "some folks can find MORE excuses for NOT joining the Farm Bureau."

We concede that Farm Bureau has not yet turned America, the Promised Land, into a land of milk and honey, where every farmer can sit on his jeans under his own fig tree and pluck grapes from a never-failing vine.

We concede that there are a lot of things to be done, and insist that many progressive things can be brought about by cooperation which the Farm Bureau makes possible.

But we fail to see how any farmer can ignore what Farm Bureau has meant to him up to now. Perhaps it is because things have been getting better so steadily since the Farm Bureau became strong enough to demand attention that we fail to appreciate the forces that brought the improvements about.

The Farm Bureau has meant a great deal to every farmer. The organization must be kept strong so that our gains may be protected; that there be no backward step, but continued progress. It is constantly on the job doing things for the farmer. It has done a lot of things "lately" and can do even more in the future.—Alabama Farmers State.

SCHIZOPHRENIA

There are forty thousand new cases of schizophrenia in the United States every year. Schizophrenia (pronounced skiz-o-fre'ne-ah) is also called dementia praecox. Schizophrenia constitutes 20 per cent of first admissions to state hospitals and comprises 60 per cent of the hospital population.

A disorder of personality development, schizophrenia appears at some time between late childhood and late middle age. Most frequently it makes its appearance during adolescence. For the adolescent, perplexing problems of life present themselves—future plans, going off to school, religion, sex, vocation, and the transition from dependence to independence. Fortunately, most individuals, after some degree of turmoil and conflict, are able to make an adequate adjustment.

Authorities on mental diseases declare that schizophrenia is partly inborn and partly acquired. It is not a disease but a developing reaction to maladjustment—the result of prolonged defective thinking and faulty reaction habits. Schizophrenic youths are shy, sensitive, self-conscious, proud, prudish and lack self-confidence, recoiling from the struggle with real life situations.

The schizoid child is not normal and those very traits which set him apart as an unusual example of goodness and meekness are the identical ones responsible for the schizophrenic symptoms. The difficult child who exhibits a normal amount of curiosity and learns by experience is in less danger of developing the schizophrenic reaction. Preventive measures call for helping the individual to adjust himself to reality. Treatment includes phychotherapy and shock treatment.

Adopted Resolutions

Adopted at annual meeting of Associated Industries of Alabama, October 27, 1949.

WHEREAS human rights and property rights have been violated on numerous occasions in certain areas of our State with apparent disregard by law enforcement officers and agencies; and

WHEREAS on this account the scorn of all law abiding citizens of American is directed upon us and reflects unfairly on the good people of Alabama;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by Associated Industries of Alabama that this organization deplores apathy and disregard of duty by law enforcement officers and calls upon them and all proper enforcement agencies and all powers of this State for immediate and effective action in the future whenever and where necessary to quell violence and mob action, and to protect property rights and human rights; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this organization commends those law enforcement officers who have performed their duties well and who have brought violators to justice; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this resolution be spread in the records of this Association and that a copy be directed to the Governor of the State of Alabama and to all law enforcement agencies of this great State with the pledge of industry that it will, at all times, be prepared to aid in assuring observance of lawful conduct!

Adopted at annual meeting of Associated Industries of Alabama, October 27, 1949.

"WE, THE PEOPLE"—

The alarming menace of a completely controlled economy, of socialism—of the destruction of individual opportunity—of the destruction of what we have come o call "the American Way of Life"—can be—must be—met by return to constitutional government.

We will accomplish a return to constitutional government only if we, the people, become crusaders. Apathy has permitted the drift toward socialism which is now so alarming. Apathy must be replaced by a crusading spirit, fired by the realization that the people, informed of the dangers and inspired to the task will rededicate themselves to rebuilding and preserving constitutional government.

Alabama industry pledges that it will crusade to rekindle the spirit of our citizens—farmers—merchants—workers in every walk of life—that we, the people, may insure a return to constitutional government.

Letter To Editor

480 Chapoo Road,
Shanghai 5, China.
September 27th, 1949.

Dear Friend:

I have wished to write to you long ago, but conditions have made it impossible.

I am appealing to you again for help to give my 1000 Chinese "Brownies" in my ragged Sunday School a happy Christmas and am sure it will give you much joy and pleasure to see that these little ones are made happy. Poor children, they have gone through so much. Glad to report my "Brownies,' Church members and myself came through the Civil War unscathed. Praise the Lord!

I plan to give them each a ball, doll, handkerchief, towel, soap, pencil, rubber, pencil sharpener, pair of socks, cap, pair of mittens, package of candy, orange, if these things are obtainable, otherwise will substitute other things instead.

You may send your gift to my brother, Rev. G.B.F. Hallock, D.D., 10 Livingston Park, Rochester 8, N.Y., U.S.A., and he will forward same to me or you may send direct to me.

Thank you in anticipation for what you can give, and may the Lord bless you richly in your giving.

Yours in Christ's glad service,
H.G.C. HALLOCK.

Preach The Word

The Apostle Paul wrote to the young preacher, Timothy, saying, "Preach the Word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." (II Timothy 4:2-4).

A. T. HICKMAN

The preaching of John the Baptist was the sound word of God. He spoke out plain concerning sin, and warned the people of the coming judgment and wrath of God. He pointed out that there was only one way of escape, and that was through repentance toward God, and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and the acceptance of the Gospel of the Kingdom. And then in all the preaching of Jesus, he preached the Word. He opened up the Scriptures to his hearers till their hearts would turn within them. He taught every fundamental truth of the Law and the Prophets, and even added a new commandment, viz.: "That we should love one another."

Then the preaching of Peter, James and John, and the other apostles, was the plain simple Word of God. They held to the more sure word of prophecy. They proclaimed every fundamental truth of the Gospel of the Kingdom. The apostle Paul was another Word preacher. He was not ashamed of the whole Gospel of Christ believing it to be the power of God unto salvation, unto every one that would believe it. To the Jew first and then to the Gentile. Paul preached the whole counsel of God. He di not withhold any phase of the Gospe of God, but proclaimed the whole Gos pel for the whole need of man, a for the whole world.

In writing to the young preache Timothy, he told him to preach th Word, to be instant in season, out season; reprove, rebuke, and exh with all long suffering and doctri That the time would come when t people would not endure sound do trine, but heap to themselves, teach having itching ears. And they wo turn away their ears from the tru and would be turned unto fabl Friends, that time has come. Ma people will not endure sound doctri They had rather the minister wo tell them something that will tic their ears, than preach unto them fundamental truths of the Gospel God. . .But at the Temple Church, still believe in preaching the Word God.

VFW Post Here Sets Nov. 11 & 12 For Buddy Poppy Day

The 28th annual nation-wide Buddy oppy sale of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, now in full swing throughout the country, will be held in Clanton on Friday and Saturday, according to Jack Lawrence, Commander of Chilton County Post No. 3193 of the VFW.

The sale of Buddy Poppies will be conducted by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Post and by women and girl volunteers. It is expected that more than 1,000 poppies will be sold in Clanton this year.

The purpose of the sale is to carry on each year the vast veteran welfare program of the overseas veteran organization. Some two-thirds of the proceeds are used locally to aid needy veterans and their dependents. Other phases of the program include veteran rehabilitation on a national scale and maintenance of the VFW National Home for war orphans and widows near Eaton Rapids, Mich.

The VFW Commander explained that the Buddy Poppy is made for his organization throughout the year by hospitalized veterans as a part of their therapeutic rehabilitation. The VFW acts as sales agent for these veterans, paying them a portion of the returns for their work. The Gold Chevron organization does not profit from the sale, but uses the major portion of the funds in bringing relief to our victims of war.

"The Buddy Poppy Sale," Post Commander Lawrence pointed out, "is considered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as a living memorial to its war dead because of the timely mate assistance it brings to our living erans and the survivors of those died in the service of the nation."

"There's lots more to tell you.. but someone else may want to use th PARTY LINE"

It's thoughtfulness like this that makes your party line neighbors thoughtful of you. It allows other to call and frees the line for incoming calls.

MANY of our customers desire different types of service which are not generally available now—such as individual line or two-party line service. We have a record of all such applications and we're working hard to provide the cables and central office equipment necessary to furnish the desired service as soon as possible.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPA

MACEDONIA

There was an average congregation present Sunday who were genuinely rewarded with a grand blessing. The lesson, "God Comforts His People," was a wonderful lesson very well delivered and accepted with generosity. It was a lesson highly inspiring, for it is just as true as it was long ago that God is not dead and continues to boss us. He is always there even through trials and temptations. He never forsakes us, but we forsake Him; forget about Him; leave Him out of our lives; then in depressing times cry out, "Why hast Thou forsaken me?"

Today when the world seems to be slowly falling around us, we should pray. Pray as we never prayed before, and study the Scriptures. There is hope, courage, aspiration, faith, etc., in every passage. Instead of thanking God for what we have and giving what is rightfully His, most of us grumble because He hasn't given more. Well, did you ever try praying and thanking Him instead of saying, "Give me, give me, give me?" Once you really discover the value of an unselfish prayer, you won't ever forget or regret it. The hour of prayer is very sweet.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ray and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook of Deatsville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pullen and family had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Jones of Randolph.

To each visitor who was present, we extend a welcome to you. We were glad you came. Come again and bring your friends.

Let us meditate upon the Sunday night studies; let us make it our aim to give God what is already His as did the widow in the studies. Perhaps we think we don't have anything to give. Well, maybe one doesn't have money always, but there is many ways we can give to the service of God. Often times we are prone to take God for granted, that what we're going to have, we'll have, but it isn't always true. God wants us to call upon Him, not only when we're in need, but also, when we're reaping a bountiful harvest.

So until we meet again—next Sunday, we hope. to back up our pastor, Rev. Hymon Atcheson, whom we believe to be a real man of God—God bless you and you and especially you.

WHAT TO DO WITH LEG BANDS ON GAME BIRDS

More than 100,008 water fowl and nearly 5,000 mourning doves were banded thruout the continent during the past year. And it is likely that Alabama sportsmen will take some of these birds.

"Whenever a band is discovered," says Earl F. Kennamer, API Extension Service fish and wildlife specialist, "the hunter should flatten the band and send it along with information concerning the bird to the Bird Banding Office, Patuxent Research Refuge, Laurel, Maryland. This information should include the tag number, and when, where and how the bird was taken.

"Every hunter who sends in this information with the leg band can consider himself a part of the conservation machinery designed to develop better hunting for all sportsmen and to increase the information now on hand concerning migratory habits of valuable game species."

At the same time he announced a national referendum to be held Dec. 15, 1949, in which farmers will vote for or against the marketing quota.

WHEN BUYING AN IRON REMEMBER THESE TIPS

According to Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist, here are some things to keep in mind when purchasing an electric hand iron.

About 1,000 watts is desirable for fast heating. A dial to control heat is eneded. It should be located where it is easy to read and move when ironing. Also, select an iron with a handle made of heat resistant material, such as plastic or wood, shaped to fit the hand comfortably.

A Tenn. Valley Success Story

From an Address by Barrett Shelton, Editor & Publisher, the Decatur (Ala.) Daily, at the UN Conservation Conference

I am privileged to tell you the story of Decatur, Ala., a town that has come from "nothin' to somethin' ' in 16 years of a working partnership between the Tennessee Valley Authority and the people of my town.

In the beginning I opposed TVA. I didn't know what it intended. I knew I wanted no government control of my life, or over the lives of my people.

Then 1933. The one major industry we had which had kept 2000 men at work, closed. Another industry which we had brought from New England with considerable subsidy in money, went bankrupt. A third, manufacturer of full-fashioned hosiery, went to the wall from poor management and bad times. Seven of eight banks closed.

We had only one crop—cotton— and cotton was 5 cents a pound. Lands were selling for taxes. The people were out of hope.

So you can see that we were not interested in saving a dollar or so on our power bill. That would solve little or nothing. We needed jobs and opportunities.

"You're Going To Do It"

Into this dismal, perplexed economic setting one late midwinter afternoon came David Lilienthal, then a member of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Four of our citizens who had long been hopeful of improving conditions met him in conference. We were almost frankly hostile, for he represented to us another way of thought and another way of life.

Dave leaned his chair back against the wall and the twinkle of a smile came into his eyes, as he said gently and firmly, 'I'm not going to do anything. You're going to do it."

He went on to say that TVA would provide the tools of opportunity—flood control, malaria control, navigation on the river, low-cost power, test-demonstration farming to show how our soils could be returned to fertility. "What you do with these tools," he said, "is up to you."

Later, Dr. Harcourt Morgan, another member of the TVA board, came to us and talked to us about lime and phosphate and legumes, and the relationship of people and land. He told our people the simple story of making the most of what we had, of putting to work the little capital we owned, of growing our own industry based on the resources of the land.

Our first step was to form our own Chamber of Commerce. With considerable struggle we got together cash and pledges amounting to $3000 for the first year.

Strides In Local Enterprise

We decided we were going to develop a cash market every day in the year for every farm product grown in the Decatur area. We were going to welcome industry, but not wait for it. We were going to develop our own farm processing plants.

We persuaded the local ice company to put in packing plant facilities when there wasn't as much as one wagon-load of hogs in our whole county. We are now producing our own livestock to meet the demands of this market.

We turned to milk, formed a little corporation with paid-in capital of $15,000, telling every stockholder to forget his investment, that he would never receive any return from his money anyway. The first day there was a total supply of 1800 pounds of milk. Today the milk pouring into this one plant peaks at 60,000 pounds—and we have just started in this agricultural industry. The stockholders never failed to receive 6 per cent annually and about two months ago that little plant paid a 100 per cent dividend.

Navigation on the Tennessee river attracted the Nebraska Consolidated Mills Co. to establish the Alabama Flour Mills at Decatur. The impact of this industry was tremendous. Farmers could grow grains because there was now a daily market.

Tennessee Valley Fertilizer Co-operative, a fertilizer mixing plant serving 19 counties, was established. Later, when we saw the possibility of selling seed commercially, this same organization put up a modern and efficient seed-cleaning plant. An alfalfa-drying plant has been built.

How It Was Done

The opportunities at hand in the development of the river and the region were being seized upon by our people with renewed courage and confidence. A resident of a nearby town came into Decatur with an idea that he could build a market for poultry. Today, though, no more than three years old, it is doing a $3,000,000 business.

Today, there is a market for cotton, corn, wheat, livestock, milk, timber, small grains, truck crops. Fifteen years ago we were dozing in the sunshine waiting for that once a year payroll brought by cotton and wearing out our second finest resource, the land. Today the cash income from all farn products in the area is $43,000,000.

Land building did it. Flood contro did it. Navigation did it. Malari control did it. TVA, with the othe state and federal agricultural an health agencies, their teachings acti vated by an intelligent and determine people, did it.

The pledge has been kept to neve again be dependent upon any one ma jor industry, or to seek big industr alone. In 1948 the number of firm making a product had reached 87, em ployment was 5204, and the annu payroll was $12,605,000.

The Spirit Is The Secret

Down through the years we hav never hesitated to use the technic opportunities within TVA. In our co siderations of types of industry nee ed in our community, we have go to TVA repeatedly to ask that th facts concerning such projected indu try be assembled. I have said befo and I say now that TVA has the mo capable personnel with which I hav ever come in contact, either in priva or public service.

The people in TVA have work weeks and months on some of o requests, and never once has the been any directive issued to us. Th have always told us, "Now here a the facts, the decision on what y do with them is up to you." This go ernment corporation believes and pra tices community development at t local level.

Recently, a copper processing pl decided to build a branch plant in South. Two hundred seventy-f communities in 11 states were c tacted. Do you know where t plant was located, an investment $12,000,000? In Decatur. Do y know what the difference was betw locating with us or elsewhere? difference was in the spirit of the p ple. We have come from the st of a well-nigh beaten citizenship t confident people.

To visitors who come into our tion of the valley and ask, 'Woul this all have happened withou TVA?" my answer to one and al "It didn't!"

MAPLESVILLE NEWS

Church News—

Everyone remember Judson College Day next Sunday, November 13th, at the Baptist Church.

The Unity Associational R.A. Conclave held here at Maplesville Baptist Church Sunday, November 6th, was well attended. Five churches were represented: Alpine, Clanton, Ebenezer, Maplesville and West End Clanton Church, also one visitor.

Ed Day, Jr., gave a Scripture reading, "Hearing Christ's message for the World." Ed is from the Maplesville R. A.'s.

State Royal Ambassadors Secretary, Mr. William Farrell, gave a wonderful mesage to the R.A. boys. It was both inspiring and interesting.

Maplesville Pro Baseball Player Sold to Higher League—

Alton Leighton McAfee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brady McAfee, a professional baseball player, from Maplesville, has been sold to the Waco, Texas, team in the Big State League.

McAfee started his career with Newman, Ga., in the Georgia-Alabama League in 1948. He returned to Newman in 1949. He made the all-star team of the league both years, also set a new Alabama-Georgia League record with the most runs batted in during one game.

Newman won the Georgia-Alabama League pennant this past season. McAfee will report to Waco, Texas, for the 1950 season next March.

Waco is in a class B League, which is a pretty fast brand of basebal. McAfee has many friends who are pulling for him to continue his climb up the ladder of baseball, and hope in the very near future to see him in the Major League. For we know he has what it takes—determination.

McAfee has been at home here in Maplesville since the 1949 season ended, and states that he will probably remain here during the winter months. We wish him much success as a pro baseball player.

Specs And I See Eye To Eye

Asked Specs Allen to go hunting last week. Known him all my life, so I wasn't surprised when he showed up with no gun. Specs doesn't like to kill anything.

Couldn't ask for a better hunting companion, though. We tramp around the woods, and whenever the dogs flush a bird, I blaze away while Specs just watches.

Told him once I was surprised he went along . . . feeling the way he does about shooting anything. "Well, Joe," he says, "you do what you think is right and I'll stick to what I think is right. I've no call to dislike you for not seeing everything the way I see it."

From where I sit, open-mindedness is a wonderful quality. There are plenty of things Specs admires that I don't care for. Like his fondness for buttermilk. I'd rather have a glass of beer anytime . . . but Specs Allen and I don't let little differences get in the way of something big like friendship.

Isn't America A Wonderful Country!

All over the world today there are people teaching bitterness and hate.

Here in America we have learned to live together in friendship.

For us here at A&P, it has been a wonderful and thrilling experience to get from those with whom we compete day after day such astounding evidence of friendship and respect.

The things that have happened since the anti-trust lawyers from Washington brought suit to destroy A&P have amazed us.

While we sincerely believed that we had earned the friendship of millions of consumers for whom we have provided better food at lower prices, and the friendship of millions of farm families for whom we have provided a better market for their produce, we were not prepared for the avalanche of offers of support.

But most of all, we have to confess that we had underestimated the fine sportsmanship of many of our competitors all over the country.

Can anyone believe that these competitors would rush to our defense if, as the anti-trust lawyers allege, we had been trying to put them out of business?

We and they have fought hard for business.

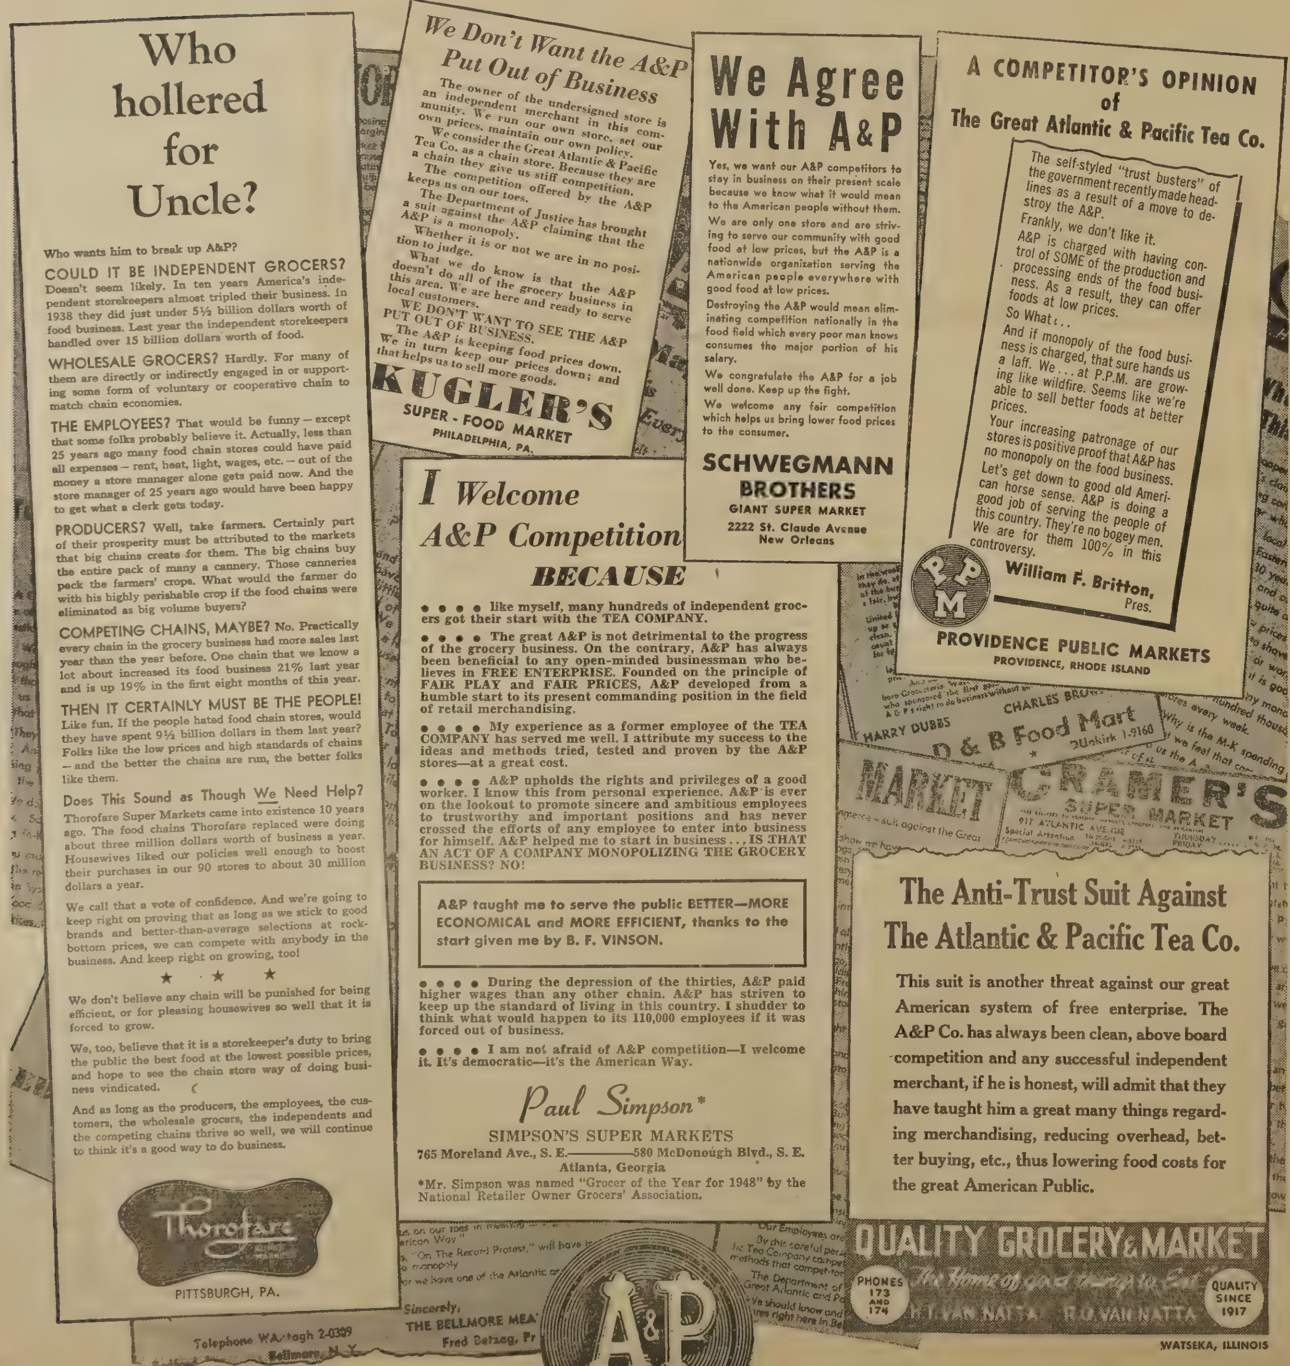
There are nearly 350,000 individual grocers competing with us. They have a larger share of the nation's grocery business today than they had ten years ago or twenty years ago.

Many of them do as good a job as we do, and they make it plenty tough for us.

Now, day after day, these same competitors are letting us know that they are in our corner.

All we can say is, thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

Isn't America A Wonderful Country!



Who hollered for Uncle?

Who wants him to break up A&P?

COULD IT BE INDEPENDENT GROCERS? Doesn't seem likely. In ten years America's independent storekeepers almost tripled their business. In 1938 they did just under 5½ billion dollars worth of food business. Last year the independent storekeepers handled over 15 billion dollars worth of food.

WHOLESALE GROCERS? Hardly. For many of them are directly or indirectly engaged in or supporting some form of voluntary or cooperative chain to match chain economies.

THE EMPLOYEES? That would be funny — except that some folks probably believe it. Actually, less than 25 years ago many food chain stores could have paid all expenses — rent, heat, light, wages, etc. — out of the money a store manager alone gets paid now. And the store manager of 25 years ago would have been happy to get what a clerk gets today.

PRODUCERS? Well, take farmers. Certainly part of their prosperity must be attributed to the markets that big chains create for them. The big chains buy the entire pack of many a cannery. Those canneries pack the farmers' crops. What would the farmer do with his highly perishable crop if the food chains were eliminated as big volume buyers?

COMPETING CHAINS, MAYBE? No. Practically every chain in the grocery business had more sales last year than the year before. One chain that we know a lot about increased its food business 21% last year and is up 19% in the first eight months of this year.

THEN IT CERTAINLY MUST BE THE PEOPLE! Like fun. If the people hated food chain stores, would they have spent 9½ billion dollars in them last year? Folks like the low prices and high standards of chains — and the better the chains are run, the better folks like them.

Does This Sound as Though We Need Help?

Thorofare Super Markets came into existence 10 years ago. The food chains Thorofare replaced were doing about three million dollars worth of business a year. Housewives liked our policies well enough to boost their purchases in our 90 stores to about 30 million dollars a year.

We call that a vote of confidence. And we're going to keep right on proving that as long as we stick to good brands and better-than-average selections at rock-bottom prices, we can compete with anybody in the business. And keep right on growing, too!

We don't believe any chain will be punished for being efficient, or for pleasing housewives so well that it is forced to grow.

We, too, believe that it is a storekeeper's duty to bring the public the best food at the lowest possible prices, and hope to see the chain store way of doing business vindicated.

And as long as the producers, the employees, the customers, the wholesale grocers, the independents and the competing chains thrive so well, we will continue to think it's a good way to do business.

We Don't Want the A&P Put Out of Business

The owner of the undersigned store is an independent merchant in this community. We run our own store, set our own prices, maintain our own policy.

We consider the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. as a chain store. Because they are a chain they give us stiff competition.

The competition offered by the A&P keeps us on our toes.

The Department of Justice has brought a suit against the A&P claiming that the A&P is a monopoly.

Whether it is or not we are in no position to judge.

What we do know is that the A&P doesn't do all of the grocery business in this area. We are here and ready to serve local customers.

WE DON'T WANT TO SEE THE A&P PUT OUT OF BUSINESS.

The A&P is keeping food prices down. We in turn keep our prices down; and that helps us to sell more goods.

KUGLER'S
SUPER - FOOD MARKET
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

We Agree With A&P

Yes, we want our A&P competitors to stay in business on their present scale because we know what it would mean to the American people without them.

We are only one store and are striving to serve our community with good food at low prices, but the A&P is a nationwide organization serving the American people everywhere with good food at low prices.

Destroying the A&P would mean eliminating competition nationally in the food field which every poor man knows consumes the major portion of his salary.

We congratulate the A&P for a job well done. Keep up the fight.

We welcome any fair competition which helps us bring lower food prices to the consumer.

A COMPETITOR'S OPINION of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

The self-styled "trust busters" of the government recently made headlines as a result of a move to destroy the A&P.

Frankly, we don't like it.

A&P is charged with having control of SOME of the production and processing ends of the food business. As a result, they can offer foods at low prices.

So What . . .

And if monopoly of the food business is charged, that sure hands us a laff. We . . . at P.P.M. are growing like wildfire. Seems like we're able to sell better foods at better prices.

Your increasing patronage of our stores is positive proof that A&P has no monopoly on the food business. Let's get down to good old American horse sense. A&P is doing a good job of serving the people of this country. They're no bogey men. We are for them 100% in this controversy.

PROVIDENCE PUBLIC MARKETS
PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND

I Welcome A&P Competition BECAUSE

• • • • like myself, many hundreds of independent grocers got their start with the TEA COMPANY.

• • • • The great A&P is not detrimental to the progress of the grocery business. On the contrary, A&P has always been beneficial to any open-minded businessman who believes in FREE ENTERPRISE. Founded on the principle of FAIR PLAY and FAIR PRICES, A&P developed from a humble start to its present commanding position in the field of retail merchandising.

• • • • My experience as a former employee of the TEA COMPANY has served me well. I attribute my success to the ideas and methods tried, tested and proven by the A&P stores—at a great cost.

• • • • A&P upholds the rights and privileges of a good worker. I know this from personal experience. A&P is ever on the lookout to promote sincere and ambitious employees to trustworthy and important positions and has never crossed the efforts of any employee to enter into business for himself. A&P helped me to start in business . . , IS THAT AN ACT OF A COMPANY MONOPOLIZING THE GROCERY BUSINESS? NO!

> A&P taught me to serve the public BETTER—MORE ECONOMICAL and MORE EFFICIENT, thanks to the start given me by B. F. VINSON.

• • • • During the depression of the thirties, A&P paid higher wages than any other chain. A&P has striven to keep up the standard of living in this country. I shudder to think what would happen to its 110,000 employees if it was forced out of business.

• • • • I am not afraid of A&P competition—I welcome it. It's democratic—it's the American Way.

The Anti-Trust Suit Against The Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

This suit is another threat against our great American system of free enterprise. The A&P Co. has always been clean, above board competition and any successful independent merchant, if he is honest, will admit that they have taught him a great many things regarding merchandising, reducing overhead, better buying, etc., thus lowering food costs for the great American Public.

Wildlife Responds To Proper Land-Use

Auburn, Ala. — A demonstration conducted by the Fish and Wildlife Service illustrates how proper land-use benefits wildlife.

According to Earl F. Kennamer, A. P.I. Extension Service fish and wildlife specialist, 140 acres of farm land near Russell, Ohio, was bought for this purpose.. Livestock was taken out of the woodlands, multiflora rose hedges replaced fences, and lespedeza food plantings were made in former waste areas, such as gullies, field borders, and turn-rows.

"The results of the land-use plantings," says the specialist, "were that cottontails increased to three per acre; woodlands supported five squirrels per acre; and in the three-acre farm pond that was built, muskrats began to thrive, and wood ducks and coot nested near the pond."

The specialist asserts that the demonstration proves that good game management—without any loss to crop or livestock production — can result in more game for recreation and profit.

SELL HUNTING RIGHTS

Hunting season is here, and farmers with large tracts of land may have an opportunity to market hunting rights to individuals or sportsmen's clubs.

TURKEYS

In Alabama this year there are estimated to be 146,000 turkeys compared with only 122,000 last year.

PUMPKIN PRESERVES WILL CATCH THE EYE

Auburn, Ala. — Very few homemakers know that pumpkins make excellent preserves, believes Lavada Curtis, A.P.I. Extension Service food preservation specialist.

She points out that they have a very pretty color, and, with the addition of lemon juice make a very tart preserve.

"To make this tasty treat," says Miss Curtis, "wash, pare, and cut one pound of pumpkin into strips, then into thin shavings. Spread the chips on a platter, sprinkle with one pound of sugar and let stand eight to 10 hours. Put in a porcelain kettle,, add one-fourth cup lemon juice, and cook slowly one and one-half hours, or until clear and tender. Skim, pack into jars and seal. Process in a water bath canner for 10 minutes."

GET IDLE LAND READY TO SEED NEXT SPRING

The last agricultural census reveals that 1.2 per cent of the land available for crops in Alabama was permitted to remain idle or fallow.

"Generally speaking,' says S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist, "instead of being benefitted by lying idle, much of this land continues to erode."

This is the reason he urges farmers to start preparing this land now for perennial legume crops to be planted next spring.

ALABAMA HYBRID SEED CORN

Thanks to southern corn breeders, Alabama has better corn hybrids. Thanks also to the A.P.I. Experiment Station, farmers know which hybrids are best and to what regions of our state each is adapted. If interested, see the local county agent for complete details.

HOG FLU

Remember that hog flu is about as contagious among pigs and hogs as the common cold is among humans. Therefore, hogs having flu should be isolated from other hogs on the farm for 30 days.

FROM YOKOHAMA COMMAND

Yokohama, Japan — Sgt. Artice L. Taylor and Pfc. Charles Taylor, 556th Transportation Truck Company, have been found qualified in the military occupational specialty of heavy truck drivers. Acquired largely through their Army training and experience, this qualification will aid Sgt. and Pfc. Taylor to obtain advancement under the new Career Plan which is to govern all promotions in enlisted and warrant grades.

Stationed in Yokohama, Japan's major port city and seat of the headquarters of the Eighth Army, Sergeant and Private Taylor are filling essential jobs with the Army's Occupational Forces. To occupy their leisure hours, they have access to theatres, clubs, libraries, evening classes, a gymnasium, bowling alleys, volley ball and tennis courts, a golf course, as well as the picturesque scenery of this ancient country.

Sgt. Artice Taylor served overseas with the 3715th QM Truck Company in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Taylor, Wetumpka, Ala.

Pfc. Charles Taylor served in Hawaii from 1945 to February, 1946, and arrived in Japan in September, 1946. He is the son of Mrs. Julia B. Storns, 839 Alabama St., Wetumpka, Ala.

WHAT THE PEDESTRAIN SHOULD KEEP IN MIND

Accidents reports show that the great majority of pedestrains injured at any one time were violating a definite regulation designed to save their lives, reveals Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist

In one instance, she states that 55 per cent of the pedestrains killed in cities were using the roadway between intersections. Also, approximately ¾ of the pedestrains killed in accidents between five and eight o'clock are killed during the season when darkness comes during these hours.

"On the basis of weight and strength," adds the specialist, "the pedestrain is so outclassed by any car that strikes him that his chance of avoiding injury are practically nonexistent."

HOGS AND EARTHWORMS

The earthworm is an intermediate host for the lungworm of swine. Therefore, eliminate earthworms to get rid of lungworms that sap the vitality of hogs and slow up growth.

Thorsby Fire Department—

If you fail to attend the Order of the Boiled Owl on next Saturday night, you are going to miss a lot of fun. The members of the Thorsby Fire Department are going to put on a negro minstrel at the Junior High School Auditorium on Saturday night, November 12th, at 8 o'clock. The play is entitled, "The Order of the Boiled Owl," and the boys have been working hard on this play, which is a scream from start to finish. They are charging a small admission fee of 25c for adults and 20c for children. The money will help buy rubber coats and helmits for our boys. These are essential to the welfare of the boys, and every citizen of Thorsby should help support this cause. Come out and enjoy the fun and help the boys.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

You know! These photographers who go around taking pictures of school kids could be sued for defamination of appearance, or something. When one of these pictures come home—which is annually—all the picture needs is a long string of numbers under it to make it look like an escapee from a rogues gallery. If our young'uns at home were the only ones that look like that, well, we would say it was just the family resemblance. But such is not true, ninety-nine per cent of those we have seen have that same nauseating appearance. If they are expert photographers, their work doesn't show it.

Business men of Chilton County, read closely the pamphlet you received Tuesday from the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and see if you can't add a few suggestions to those listed. Write your suggested projects for 1950 and return to Cohen Stapp. Do this before Saturday, November 12th. Cohen has his offices over Upchurch Drug Store, right next door to A. B. (Buster) Foshee's Law Offices. Do this without fail. The local Chamber is trying to organize to do big things for Chilton County in 1950 and your cooperation is what it needs to put it over.

Jesse Culp's radio program started being broadcast each day over our local station WKLF—980 on your dial—Monday morning of this week. Jesse produces a daily farm radio program for the Department of Agriculture, the main feature of which is up-to-the-minute market reports from the major farm markets in Alabama. In a communication from Jesse he stated that this is the only way the farmer has of knowing what his turnip greens or broilers or other food stuff is worth before he gets to market with it. It will be of great assistance to our growers and we're glad to see a boy like Jesse Culp, who knows the problems of the growers, furnishing them with the information they need.

Which reminds us of another bit of information about a "Culp" that you will be interested in. He hasn't been around often enough lately but he has been mighty busy and we'll have to forgive him. We're talking about Delos. He has been named Assistant Director of the Division of Administration and Finance of the State Department of Education. Delos Culp is one of the most popular educators ever to come out of Chilton County and has made quite a name for himself in his chosen field. There's a detailed story on page 1, in regards to his present appointment. We wish him well.

J. E. Easterling signed a bond for a colored boy to appear in court this week and the boy failed to appear. The court came to J. E. for an accounting. J. E. says to "Hold everything, I think I can get the nigger easier than I can get the three hundred dollars," and he did.

You hear about the two fellows going to the ball game and telling the ticket taker they wanted two passes? When he asked them why, they said they were friends of the umpire. He told his boss about it and he told him to throw them out, they were imposters. When asked how he knew, he answered: "Why no umpire has two friends."

Purebred Jersey Cattle Show Best Ever Held

The purebred Jersey show was probably the best ever held in the county. Forty-five purebred Jerseys were shown and a total of 25 awards were made to owners. 4-H winner of the purebred heifer awarded for showmanship and fitting was Homer Lawrence of the New Cedron Community. Runner-up for this award was the Edwards sisters, Annie Fern and Elaine of the Enterprise Community.

Mr. A. D. Headley of the Collins Chapel Community exhibited the grand champion female. Mr. Headley's cow was an outstanding animal that would have shown well in any show.

Mr. J. G. Heida of Thorsby, who has won grand championships of three previous shows, exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion female.

Mr. Ben Brinker of Clanton exhibited a well developed three year old bull that was judged grand champion bull.

WINTER WEEDS ROB VEGETABLE GARDEN

Auburn, Ala. — Watch for winter weeds and grasses; they are already making a start even before the summer pests have finished.

J. C. Ford, A.P.I. Extension Service garden specialist, explains that these food-stealing plants thrive in cold weather. They are deep rooted, hardy and hungry.

"Vegetables, selected to produce good food, cannot be expected to compete with grasses and weeds," declares Ford. "Kill them before they have time to steal the fertilizer needed by the vegetables."

The VFW Buddy Poppy is a symbol of the sacrifices made by the nation's dead in the great conflicts for peace.

Shelvador Refrigerator To Be Awarded

A revolutionary new design and the latest in features are incorporated in the new 150 Shelvador refrigerator to be awarded locally by Chilton Home Furnishing, Clanton, as part of the giant national $2,000,000 "giveaway" being conducted by the Crosley Division, Avco Manufacturing Corporation and its dealers

"The new Shelvador," Mr. Maddox said, "provides up to 23 percent additional storage capacity in the same size exterior cabinet. This new design provides close to two cubic feet of "plus" storage space at the "convenience level," where foods are easy to reach without bending or stooping," he pointed out.

"The exclusive Shelvador feature," he said, "has been restyled with sturdy white plastic shelves that are completely recessed within the interior of an extra thick insulated outer door."

"A unique feature," he said, "of the Shelvador CB-9 is the "butter-safe," a compartment for butter storage built into the door of the refrigerator. It is elecrically heated and thermostatically controlled to keep butter at the proper spreading consistency. Constructed of white plastic, it is easily removable for thorough cleaning."

"An outstanding feature of this model," Mr. Maddox stated, " is the separate horizontal freezer and frozen food compartments that hold up to 53 pounds of frozen foods and ice cubes. In the full-width freezer compartment there is a freezer shelf with sub-zero temperatures for home freezing. The frozen food compartment provides extra space for ice trays and day to day supplies of frozen food."

"Among the many additional features," Mr. Maddox said, "is the exclusive new door latch that provides for effortless opening of the door and a firm door-seal. Maximum shelf flexibility is provided by lift out and sectional shelves. The interior is finished with acid-resisting porcelain enamel. All models in the Shelvador line are powered by the "Crosley Electrosaver Unit" hermetically sealed and self-lubricated."—Adv

PROTECT POTENTIAL SEED CROP PROFITS

Auburn, Ala. — For those who produced seed crops this year, here is some advice on handling and storing them.

Ralph Jones, API Extension Service seed crops marketing specialist, reveals that in the past, more than half of Alabama's seed crops have been damaged by improper handling and storage. To reduce the loss of sericea seed and seed of similar crops, clean them immediately after combining to remove the green and wet material and foreign matter.

Do not harvest corn and cotton until the crop is thoroughly field-dried unless seed will be processed at a seed drying plant.

Unless artificial drying is used, spread all seed out in thin layers. Stir them at regular intervals until they have dried.

Fumigate corn, peas, beans, grain sorghum, and similar seed as soon as they have dried. Grain and legume seed will require additional fumigation later in the season.

RE-PLANT VEGETABLES THAT DID NOT COME UP

Auburn, Ala.— Those who have fall gardens that failed to come up because of dry weather still have time to plant.

J. C. Ford, API Extension Service garden specialist, suggests that onion sets, turnips, mustard, Siberian kale, radishes, lettuce, cabbage, and collards be planted.

"The place to plant," says the specialist, "is on a protected spot on the south side of a building, a hedge row, or a hill. Garden-fresh vegetables are worth the risk of 25 or 50 cents for seed and a dollar for fertilizer."

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

I guess the Hallowe'en Party was a success after all, eh, kids? There was plenty of people there and plenty of things to do. The apples went like hot cakes and the House of Horrors was a big success, not to mention all the other stands. Say, come to think of it that telegram booth went over swell, too, didn't it, kids?

Personality, boy that's what it takes and man, some people just don't have it. Or should I say, some of us? You know, there is a Senior One girl that usta' have plenty of class, but she's slowly dying out (that is, not literally). Remember, it takes a personality that won't rust. Okay, kid, a hint to the wise is sufficient, and I thought I'd make like a hinter.

Boy, do these six weeks' go by fast nowadays? Heck, it seems like only yesterday was the first day of school. (Not to mention how glad I and quite a few others are that time is flying, in school that is.)

Three games left kids, and here's hoping we win 'em all. Of course, that is a rather large request, but you fellas have just "GOTTA" win these last three.

"Oh, you kid!" That's what all the guys around school are thinking about —Fernetta Walton. (So maybe that's not the way you spell it, so what? You get the general idea of the name, don't you?) And from where I sit, I don't think I blame them.

By the way, kids, don't forget the dance at the High School Friday night. You know, the only trouble about that particular dance is the price. (What did I tell you about women? Huh?)

Well, we got another copy of the Chit-Chatter last week and I must say, it is a very much needed improvement over the first one. Here's hoping the staff and editor's keep up the good work.

A bricklayer working on top of a high building carelessly dropped a brick, which landed on the head of his negro helper below.

"Yah-all bettah be careful up dere, boss," said the helper, dusting his hat off. "Yah done made me bite mah tongue!"

Auctioneer: "What am I offered for this beautiful bust of Robert Burns?"

Man in crowd: "That ain't Burns. . . . .That's Shakespeare."

Auctioneer: "Well, folks, the jokes on me. That shows what I know about the Bible."

John's Wife: "John, wake up, there's a burglar going through your pant's pocket."

John: (Turning over) "Oh well, you two just fight it out between yourselves."

Looks kinda like we got beat Friday before last, doesn't it, football fans? You know, we shouldn't have lost that game, in my opinion. Of course, there was a lot of our players out of the game because of injuries, but we still should have beat them. That makes about the twenty-first year that Selma has defeated us. Well, anyhow, their luck can't hold out forever and maybe if we try really hard next year, who knows, we might stomp all over them? (I hope!)

"If We Print It --- It's True"

VOL. XXVII CLANTON, ALABAMA THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1949 NUMBER 46

Grand Jury's Audit Report Is Due Friday

The scheduled report of a Chilton County Grand Jury investigation of the county's financial affairs has been delayed until November 18. Circuit Judge Oakley W. Melton granted the request of the Grand Jury that it be allowed to delay its public report of findings until Friday.

Since October 25, when the Grand Jury was convened, a special investigation of the records and accounts of the County Commissioners' Court has been in progress.

Findings were originally scheduled to be made public last Tuesday.

LOCAL PASTORS AT CONVENTION

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Gilbert Hutchinson were among the Chilton County people who attended the State Baptist Convention in Mobile this week. Rev. Hutchinson was on the program Tuesday morning.

The Rev. Clayton Gilbert, Maplesville Baptist Church, was also in attendance at the statewide meeting.

MRS. ESSIE MAE MIMS BECOMES SOLE OWNER OF THE HAT SHOP

The Hat Shop in downtown Clanton is now solely owned by Mrs. Essie Mae Mims, it was announced this week. Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, who sold out her interest, will continue to operate her insurance office at the same address, she has announced.

RAPID FILM DEVELOPING PLANT WILL SOON OPEN

Opening of a modern quick-service Kodak film developing plant in Thorsby, on or about January 1, will will Chilton County what is believed to be its first one-day picture service.

Announcement has been made by Farrell Gibbons that up-to-date equipment will be installed in a building owned by Mr. Charles Wade. Pick-up and delivery points in the different towns in the county will be announced later, where camera enthusiasts can get their finished prints back the same day.

Gibbons is now in Birmingham, where he is studying the latest methods in photography service.

STATE EDUCATION DEPT. PROMOTES DELOS P. CULP

Dr. Delos P. Culp, one of Chilton County's best known citizens, has been promoted to Assistant Director of Administration and Finance of the State Department of Education.

In announcing his promotion, State Superintendent of Education, Dr. A. R. Meadows, gave high praise to Chilton's former school head.

Dr. Culp was reared in this county, and is a graduate of the State Tteachers College at Jacksonville. He holds the B.S. and M.S. degrees from Auburn. His Ph. D. degree was awarded by the Teachers College of Columbia University.

Dr. Culp was included in the Alabama Oddities of the Birmingham-News-Age-Herald in 1937 for his outstanding record of attending J.S.T.C. two years, completing a B.S. degree at Auburn and one-fifth of the work on a Master's degree, and teaching school four years—all in five years, two months and twenty days. Pretty good, don't you think, for a boy who lived on Route 4, Clanton, Alabama?

He served for many years with outstanding success as a teacher in Chilton County schools, and for four years as County Superintendent.

He was also Chairman of the county's Democratic Executive Committee.

Four More Auto Collisions Reported On Local Hiways

Many Victims Put In Hospital; Several Cars Demolished In Wrecks

Four highway accidents on Chilton County roads have been reported by the Highway Patrol in the past few days.

In the worst of these accidents, seven persons were involved and both cars were badly demolished. One of the victims is still hospitalized.

Three persons were injured Monday afternoon when a car turned off the Selma Road and hit the house of Sheriff J. A. Nivens.

Mr. G. E. Wright of Jacksonville, Fla., is improving in the Central Alabama Hospital. He suffered a broken knee cap and bodily bruises.

Mr. Wright's niece, Mrs. Verna Bean, suffered a broken nose in the accident. Her daughter, Miss Judy Bean, was dismissed at the hospital after treatment.

A collision between a pick-up truck and a school bus and an auto-wagon mishap were the other two incidents reported.

About 6:00 p.m. Sunday night, Tylman Kenneth Gore, age 28, was driving alone when his car was involved in a collision with an auto driven by Albert M. Littleton, one-half mile from the schoolhouse on Collins Chapel Road. In the car with Littleton was his wife and Mrs. Fonza Littleton, and four children. All but the smallest child were taken to Central Alabama Hospital. With the exception of Mrs. Littleton, all were released the following day. She is still hospitalized.

Monday morning at 7:25, a pick-up truck driven by Fulton Duren ran into the back of a school bus one mile north of Thorsby. No occupants of the school bus were injured. The bus, driven by James Parker Horn, had stopped at the home of Elvin Sorrell to pick up a child when the accident occurred.

At 6:25 last Thursday night, a 1949 Chrysler driven by Mr. Frank Inman, of Memphis, Tenn., who was accompanied by his wife, ran into a wagon on the highway one mile south of Verbena. It is reported the wagon carried no lights. The wagon was driven by Henry Falsey, 17, colored boy, of Verbena. The wagon was completely demolished. Martin's ambulance took the boy to Selma to the hospital. He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg.

WYNDOL MURRAH RECOVERING FROM SECOND DEGREE BURNS INFLICTED BY FLAMES

Mr. Wyndol Murrah was reported recovering at the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Montgomery this week after he was burned severely Saturday morning when his house on Airport Road caught fire.

Hospital attendants said Mr. Murrah suffered bad second degree burns on his arms and legs, and although he is "doing fine" he will be hospitalized for at least two weeks.

GARRY CULP BURIED IN PLEASANT GROVE

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. Monday for little Garry Lane Culp, 17-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson C. Culp of Route 3, Pleasant Grove Community.

Death followed quickly after the child was accidently struck by a truck which was backing up in the yard, about 5 o'clock Sunday evening. The infant was rushed to the hospital for treatment, and died at 6:30 p.m.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Bill Cox, the Rev. C. N. Gragon and the Rev. Bill Bavers from the Pleasant Grove Church. Interment followed in the church cemetery, with Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

Surviving the infant are its parents; one sister, Miss Linda Gale Culp; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Culp and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Henley, all of Clanton Route 3, in the Pleasant Grove Community.

Mr. J. Archie Ogburn, Chairman of the Savings Bonds Committee, announced today that Chilton County's sales of U. S. Savings Bonds for the period October 1 through October 31 totalled $12,843.75.

Sales of Savings Bonds for the entire state of Alabama for the month of October were $3,072,158.00, with E Bonds amounting to $2,203,427.00 and F and G Bonds amounting to $868,731.00.

DANGER SIGNALS OF CANCER

The seven "danger signals" of cancer—what they are and what to do about them—will be explained to readers of the Chilton County News in a series of weekly articles beginning this week.

The articles, furnished by members of the Chilton County Medical Society, will be printed by the News as a public service, in an effort to cut down the toll of needless deaths cancer is causing.

From a third to a half the persons cancer strikes can be cured, if the early symptoms of the disease are recognized and treatment is begun promptly, medical experts point out. That is the reason it is important that every person know how to recognize the early symptoms.

Medical statistics forecast that one out of every six persons will have cancer at some time in their lives.

Don't fail to read all of these articles. The first will be found elsewhere in this issue. They might help you save your own life.

Chilton County High Tigers Rarin' To Go Against Loretto

Chilton County High School's Tigers are out for revenge this Friday night when they take on Montgomery's highly-touted Loretto School eleven. The Tigers lost a tough one last Friday when they were topped 14-0 by the Sylacauga Aggies, and have trained hard all week for the battle tomorrow night.

It will be the next to the last game of the season.

Coach "Bull" Spicer says that the team is ready to take on Loretto and put up a big fight. Clanton has been defeated by this Loretto team for the last two seasons. Barring accidents, the Tigers should be in good shape to make it interesting for the visitors.

The game with the strong Prattville team, originally scheduled for November 25, has been changed to Wednesday night, November 23.

This was done to get the football season over before Thanksgiving Day.

To date, Prattville has not lost a game this season. The Tigers will really have to push hard if they are to hold Prattville to anything like a close score.

At the homecoming game last week with the Sylacauga Aggies, it was a bruising battle all the way.

Sylacauga scored first; then late in the first half, the Tigers nearly scored, but didn't quite make it. The Tigers were in scoring territory a few times in the last half, but luck was against them. On a very close play in the closing minutes of the game, the Aggies scored again and then kicked the extra point, making the score 14-0.

At the half, the C.C.H.S. band gave a brilliant performance, including the forming of the letter "S" in honor of the visiting team. After the band made the letter "C," the crowning of Tillie Messer, the homecoming queen, took place. She was escorted by John Deramus, and her maids-in-waiting were Dorothy Sheppard and Annie Sue Crew, who were escorted by Jon Will Pitts and Lawrence Mims.

Following the coronation, the queen and her court were shown to seats of honor on the sidelines where they remained for the rest of the game.

The starting line-up for the Tigers is set as follows:

Captain Jerry Studdard, Co-Captain George Bradley, Billy Mims, Fred Clackler, Royce Seales, Vernon "Cannonball" Headley, R. Smith, Otis Deloach, Joe Jones and Chester Little.

TIPS ON STORING SUMMER CLOTHING

A pad and pencil should be kept handy packing away summer clothes, according to Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist.

She urges homemakers to jot down the place each item is stored, explaining that this will save time, trouble, and confusion next spring.

Miss Ellis reveals that systematic housekeepers post on attic or closet doors a list of articles stored in bags, boxes, or certain closets. Some label each trunk, box, and bag with its contents. Any device which helps the housekeeper and her family know where possessions are at a moment's notice makes for good home management.

"One other suggestion," says the specialist, "even though gloves have been taken out of storage for winter use, don't use this as an excuse to fold them into a ball and cram them into a purse."

PICTURE STORY ABOUT U.T.D. FARMS READY

As the use of fertilizer and lime increased, production and income increased—this was the experience of 66 Extension-TVA unit test demonstration farmers located in 26 Alabama counties.

D. R. Harbor, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist, discloses that the progress of these whole-farm demonstrators is described and shown in pictures in a circular released by the A.P.I. Extension Service. If interested in this report, ask the local county agent for Circular 380, "New Wealth From Soils."

NUTRITIOUS RAISINS SATISFY YOUNGSTERS

Auburn, Ala. — Raisins have long been recommended as wholesome sweets for children because they are high enough in natural fruit sugar to satisfy any young sweet tooth.

"Also," says Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist, "they offer iron, other minerals, and B-vitamins."

She adds that seedless raisins are produced in largest quantity, generally sell at most reasonable prices, and are convenient to use because they are easily handled and measured and are small in size.

MASTITIS CONTROL

Group cows according to the degree they have mastitis, get rid of animals that are in advanced stages and are unprofitable, milk infected cows last, have infected animals treated by a veterinarian, watch for new cases, and follow good milking practices.

It's Closer Than You Think

Christmas may seem a long way off but in truth it's only days until Santa will clean your chimney.

It's also a fact that you should shop early this year. Even last year things were pretty crowded and stock-piles dwindled rapidly. Since last Christmas Chilton County has become the home of many more people. Indications are that the coming shopping season will be rushed, crowded, and if you wait too late, maybe disappointing.

We would like to suggest that you begin your Christmas shopping as soon as possible.

Thoughtless

Why is it that some people have no thought for the property of others?

We are referring to the way some people slam their car doors into other automobiles when getting in and out of their own cars. This is particularly true when they are parked at a forty-five degree angle in town or at other crowded places where it becomes necessary sometimes to park close.

Some folks just release the latch and slam the door open. The fact that the guilty party doesn't care about the appearance of their car doesn't mean that the owner of the other automobile feels the same.

It doesn't take much more time or trouble to be careful of the other fellow's property, and the care you take, we are sure, would be appreciated.

A Bad Intersection

The City Fathers seem to have overlooked one of the more hazardous intersections of our city when they passed out the stop lights. It's the junction of Fifth Street and Second Avenue.

It is a popular intersection where people make u-turns, park with careless abandon, and risk their automobiles and lives in crossing there. The corner is practically "blind" on all four corners.

Within the past few months there has been a bad accident there. There will be others if something is not done about it.

Let's Stick

Mr. J. B. Fort, of Clanton, is going to brighten the Christmas mail and packages of Chilton County citizens this 1949 season.

He is the number one Christmas Seal salesman in Chilton County as president of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

Chilton County citizens will do their part to fight tuberculosis and will send season's greetings this year with Christmas Seals of the dove—world-wide symbol of peace.

The Chilton County chairman is among anti-TB workers and newspaper editors over the state invited to an Alabama rally luncheon Wednesday, November 16, in Birmingham to hear a man who helped start the first Christmas Seal drive.

He is Leigh Mitchell Hodges, of Doylestown, Pa., a former newspaper columnist who helped start Christmas seals as an American tradition.

The 1949 Seal drive starts Monday, November 21st, under the slogan, "Let's Stick 'Til We Lick TB."

From November 21st 'til Christmas will be the peak season of 1949 in mankind's long, persistent battle against one of the dread diseases of the ages.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

The Chilton County Christmas Chest Committee met Sunday afternoon at the City Hall. In discussing publicity, Leo Thompson, kidding us, suggested we run a "streamer" in green, at the top and bottom of each page from now until Christmas publicizing the cause. Leo didn't know that when anyone mentions "green ink" to us these days it make us see "red." Come to think of it, or did he?

Git yore shooting iron, stranger. Thars goin' to be a turkey shoot at the Country Club, come November 24. Keep yore powder dry, 'cause competition is going to be keen. Lots of those fellows are old turkey shooters and know their way around a turkey shoot. In political years you know, the turkey is the bird that goes to the chopping block about three weeks after the politicians do.

Clanton parking meters are collecting more than two hundred dollars in nickles and pennies each week. That's a lot of change and will get the meters paid for in a hurry.

Saw Billy Popwell in town last week. He doesn't get around much any more.

We are sincere in our apology to Mrs. L. C. Warr and her Better Citizens Club of Clanton Elementary School. We had a very nice little story for the paper last week from the Club and failed to print it. Last week was one of those weeks we all have now and then when just about everything goes wrong—or we feel like it does. We're printing their story this week and beg to be forgiven by the youngsters for our tardiness.

Gimp, our little dog, is dead. That means nothing at all to you unless you, too, have watched one grow with your kids year after year, and has been accepted as an honored member of the family. Gimp was a gentleman if ever there was one. His backgrown might have been a little shady, but he knew how to conduct himself in the best company and seldom drew a cross word from any member of his family. As most little dogs go that live on public roads these days, an automobile got him. After eight years, he crossed the road just once too many times. We found him the other morning dead beside the highway in front of our home. It was a terrible blow to the kids—and mother and dad didn't feel too good about the whole thing:

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

BE CAREFUL

When the storm came, Meenono,, the jungle boy, moved under a big tree and a bolt of lightning struck him dead. Such things had been going on since the time of creation.

Then inventive man found out how to produce electricity. He fooled around with it until he was able to kill himself with electricity for the first time in 1879. Today, in the United States and Canada, the death rate due to electricity is seven per million of population. This does not include the killing of criminals condemned to the electric chair.

Lightning causes only a few hundred deaths per year in this country, but electrocution in the home is frequent. All electric appliances and wires in homes should be in good condition. As precaution, persons should not touch anything charged with electricity when the hands are wet or while the body is wet, or while standing on anything wet. Switches for lights in bathroom, kitchen, and laundry should be at a distance from tubs, basins, and sinks, and metal pull chains should be insulated or have a cord extension.

The effect of electrocution is to cause cessation of breathing. Passage of electricity through the body has effects that differ in intensity, and the results depend on the voltage, frequency, path of current, and duration of shock.

The victim should be removed from contact with the current and given artificial respiration. Electricity is a strange force. It is often used for healing purposes, but it also has power to kill. As we get closer to the approaching holiday period each person should resolve and follow through on being careful around electricity. Special holiday decorations which are electrically lighted must be handled carefully, for they can be dangerous. Let us not mar the joy of the season.

CHRISTIAN HOME

A Christian home is a home made up of real true Christian people. The husband, and the wife are to be devoted Christians if their home is to be a Christian home. The home cannot be full-Christian without both are devoted Christians. Then if there are children in the home, they are to be led to Christ, and they, too, might become true Christians, and thereby maintaining the full-Christian home.

A. T. HICKMAN

The Christians of this nation are appalled at the existing condition of crime, and the wide spread of sin and evil. In spite of the fact that $30,000 is being spent every minute to prevent it, crime's frightful increase goes on. Our moral standards continue to be on a decline. The stifling blanket of spiritual indifference and lethargy settles down more securely upon the mases of our nation, so that about 83 percent of the people of our nation never attend church of any denomination. In the realm of economics and politics, greed, dishonesty, treachery, mistrust, hatred and uncertainty abound on every hand.

And we may put it down as an incontestable fact that the breakdown of our modern civilization may be attributed directly to the breakdown of the old fashioned Christian home. For what our homes are, so will our nation be; it just cannot be otherwise.

In view of all this, how encouraging and inspiring to be able to study the Bible, and find in it strength to aid us in maintaining our Christian homes in the midst of such an ungodly situation. Let me exhort every one who may read this article to do your utmost to establish the Family Altar in your home, and keep it there, and thereby maintain a godly home, and full-Christian home, and help America to remain the land of the brave, and the home of the free.

Danger Signals of Cancer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on the seven "Danger Signals" of cancer, furnished the Chilton County News by members of the Chilton County Medical Society:

"Any sore that does not heal."

This is one of the most important of all the danger signals of cancer, because the kinds of cancer it warns of are kinds that can be cured in about 90 per cent of the cases, provided treatment is begun early.

The sore which does not heal may indicate skin cancer. It also may be an indication that cancer is developing in the lip, mouth or tongue. In any case, a sore that does not heal within three weeks demands an immediate trip to the doctor.

Cancer can appear in any part of the skin or mucous membrane. It rarely develops suddenly. Usually there has been a period of slowly developing change, almost always painless and too often considered of no importance by the patient.

Skin cancer occurs most frequently on exposed parts of the body—the face, neck, ears and hands. Scars of burns, especially if they cause limitation of motion around joints, sometimes develop cancer. Many years may pass between the time the scar is formed and the time the cancer develops. For this reason, scar tissue should be watched carefully for any change.

Over exposure of the unprotected body to strong sunlight carries a real menace of skin cancer for many people—particularly blonds, auburn haired and other "thin skinned" persons. The irritation of the sun's ultra-violet rays may cause the development of dry, scaly patches (usually darker than the surrounding area) that tend to thicken and, in time, to itch. These patches, called keratoses, sometimes are the forerunners of cancer, and should receive medical attention. If bleeding occurs when the horny scales are removed, immediate treatment is necessary. It has been found that the injurious effects of overexposure to the sun may be delayed some time after the exposure has ceased. This fact makes it particularly important that sun bathing be done with caution.

Sores in the mouth that do not respond to ordinary treatment, within two weeks should be immediately suspected and the patient should visit his doctor at once.

It has long been known that chronic irritation of any kind plays an important part in causing cancer of the mouth. These irritations frequently cause thickening and whitening of the mucous membranes, which, if untreated, may turn into cancer.

Lip cancer should be suspected if apparent "fever blisters" or "cold sores" do not clear up in two to three weeks. Stubborn sores on the lip caused by sunburn, chapping or cracking also should be looked at by a competent doctor.

In spite of the fact that early treatment of mouth or lip cancer can result in a very high percentage of cures, records of cures are discouragingly low. The reason is that patients are not sufficiently aware of the seriousness of the sores that do not heal, and they usually put off visiting their doctors until after this rapidly-spreading type of cancer has invaded other parts of the body.

The unhealed sore is easy for the patient to detect, and, in early stages, easy for the doctor to treat successfully. The missing link is an understanding by the patient of the seriousness of the symptom.

Awareness by the general public of the possible meaning of the sore that does not heal—and immediate treatment by a competent physician—can materially reduce the cancer death toll.

The second in this series of articles on how to recognize cancer will appear in the Chilton County News next week. For additional information about the subject of today's article, send for the American Cancer Society's free booklet, "Cancer of the Mouth." Address your request to "Cancer," Clanton, Ala.

LIVESTOCK GROWERS PROTECT THE SOIL

"In studying the farm, most farmers will observe many jobs which, if completed this fall and winter, will save time next spring as well as protect and improve the soil this winter.

"Some of these jobs are of particular interest to livestock growers," believes S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist. "They will want to provide good pastures and plenty of hay and supplemental grazing. And, of course, the time to start this work is in the fall and winter months."

IMPRESSIVE WEDDING CEREMONY HELD HERE NOVEMBER SIXTH

Miss Barbara Fay McGowin and Mr. Morgan Reynolds were married Sunday afternoon, November 6th, in The First Methodist church of Clanton, with the Rev. W. B. Atkinson officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sibley W. McGowin of Clanton, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Reynolds, also of Clanton.

Palms, ferns, and southern smilax formed the background before which rows of branched candelabra burned tall white tapers. The center massive arrangement was of white chrysanthemums, fern and gladioli Standing baskets of chrysanthemums and gladioli were placed at intervals. White tapers burned in each of the church windows, which were softly draped with southern smilax. Pews for the two families were marked with bouquets of gladioli tied with white satin ribbons.

The nuptial music was played by Mrs. Erle Ellis, organist, with Mr. Henry Grady Heflin as soloist.

Mrs. John Patterson of Phenix City, attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of aqua velveteen and carried an arm bouquet of gold chrysanthemums tied with two-toned satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids and matrons were Miss Ann Callen and Mrs. W. A. Lecroy of Clanton, Mrs. Max M. Davis of Andalusia, Mrs. Theron McClure of Miami, Florida, and Miss Frances Bazzel of Tuskegee. The bodice was trimmed with self covered buttons and the full skirt fell into graceful folds forming a train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a tierra of orange blossoms. She carried a white satin prayer book topped with a white orchid and showered with narrow satin ribbons and tuberoses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held by the parents of the bride. The rooms being decorated with fern, southern smilax, chrysanthemums, and gladioli, the bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a tiered wedding cake embossed in all white, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and encircled with white satin ribbon and ruffled net.

Mrs. Frank J. Callen cut the cake and was assisted in serving by Mrs. J. O. Miller, Mrs. Callen Alred, Miss Margie Esco, Miss Elizabeth Andrews, and Miss Sylvia Sellers.

Mrs. Harold Lawrence presided over the bride's book.

The young couple left by automobile for a wedding trip to New York and points in the east. The bride chose for traveling a suit of brown gabardine with accessories to match. She wore an orchid corsage.

Our Schools

BAKER — Baker is planning a big turkey dinner in the lunchroom for next Wednesday as an early Thanksgiving celebration. The school is very proud of recent improvements in the lunchroom.

Tomorrow afternoon the Baker boys basketball team plays the Cooper A and B teams. Last Friday Baker played Concord teams and lost both games.

Parents visited the school last week on Wednesday when a movie on health was shown.

CLANTON ELEMENTARY — Last month around 1,200 good lunches with milk were served free to those unable to pay for them.

The Dental Clinic is in full swing again this year. Sponsored by the County Board of Education and the County Board of Health, the clinic is unusually well-equipped for a school clinic. Dr. Joe Earl Gowan has been working on Wednesdays this fall filling, pulling, and checking first-graders' teeth. Children from all over the county will soon be brought to this first-rate clinic.

The P.-T.A. has purchased a new First Aid kit which has been placed in the Dental Clinic.

COOPER — The County Board of Education has recently approved the following as trustees of Cooper School: James H. Smith, John Driver and Addis Duke.

The money won by the 4-H Club in the county contests was used to help the P.-T.A. pay for the new basketball uniforms for the girls' team.

ENTERPRISE — One hundred and thirty-five visitors were guests of the school during AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK. The school is very proud of this number which represents one parent for every two students.

Tuesday night both the girls' and boy's basketball teams will play Richville, a Coosa County School. Last Friday, Enterprise played Union Grove and won both games.

ISABELLA — Seventy-nine visitors registered Friday at open house during AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK. Many more came during the afternoon to see Isabella play Verbena. Even though Isabella lost, students and visitors thoroughly enjoyed a very good game.

In assembly Friday, the Seventh Grade, under the direction of Mrs. Jack Tucker, presented an Armistice Day program. Afterwards, the presidents of the Senior Class, the Beta Club, FFA and FHA explained to the guests the plans of their organizations for the year.

P.-T.A. met Tuesday night and discussed the need for recreation in the home.

LAY DAM — Fifteen parents attended the play Thursday which was presented in observance of AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK. The Friday Club is working on a Thanksgiving program to be presented next Wednesday.

The boys and girls very much miss Myra Littleton who was injured in an automobile accident last Saturday in which several members of her family were also involved. The school wishes to convey its sympathy to the Littleton family and hopes that Myra will soon be back in school.

STANTON — P.-T.A. officers for the year are as follows: President, Mrs. Jo Ed Bearden; vice-president, Mrs. William Ruddick; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. B. B. Burnett.

The P.-T.A. has as its goal for the year the purchasing of play ground equipment and the raising of funds with which to paint the inside of the school.

VERBENA — The lunchroom workers served supper to the members of the Clanton Lions Club last Thursday. Judge Walter B. Jones was the speaker for this occasion. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of linoleums for the lunchroom.

New cabinets for the Home Economics Department have been purchased by the County Board and are to be installed soon.

Verbena High is publishing a good school newspaper under the editorship of Caroline Deramus. Hollis Messer is the assistant editor, and Mr. H. A. Wingate is the faculty adviser.

The Camera Club plans to photograph all Verbena school children this year. These pictures will take the place of the usual professional ones.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH — Seniors are already making plans for the annual. Mary Tom Merchant is the editor-in-chief; Mary Ann Oglesby and Joan Aussant are assistant editors. Aubrey Neeley is the business manager and his assistant is Charles Easterling. Frank Donovan is the treasurer. Leonard Farley, Jr., is going to do the group pictures and the informal snaps. Scott Studio will photograph the students and teachers.

The staff requests that anyone having a copy of the 1916, 1917, or 1918 annual please contribute it to the library file which does not have these issues.

Thorsby News

(By MISS C. N. TURNQUIST — Correspondent)

Thorsby Institute News—

We were very fortunate in having Gresham Lowery entertain at chapel Wednesday, November 9, 1949. Mr. Lowery graduated from Thorsby Institute in 1924. Since that time he has been very active in radio. At present he is the director of the "Dixie Four Quartet" in Indianapolis, Ind., which he organized in 1938 at Jackson, Miss. They had daily broadcasts until 1940 when they moved to WMC, Memphis, Tenn.

Gresham enlisted in the navy in 1942 and served until 1944. Returning to Memphis, he resumed broadcasting, re-organizing the Dixie Four Quartet. He moved to Indiannapolis in 1946 and began a series of programs for Mutual Broadcasting System in 1947. It is estimated that the Dixie Four has given 3,000 radio broadcasts and at least that many concerts, to at least one million people. Besides being director of this quartet Mr. Lowery is also director of the Cadle Choir and minister of music in the Cadle Tabernacle in Indianapolis. The students and teachers of Thorsby Institute enjoyed Mr. Lowery's talk very much and also his song, "He Never Left Me Alone."

The Ladies Guild Annual Bazaar will be held Saturday, November 19th, from 11:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Cake, pie, sandwiches and coffee will be served and there will be many articles for sale. They will make wonderful Christmas gifts. There will also be homemade candy for sale.

There will be a Union Thanksgiving service on Thanksgiving Day at the Baptist Church at 10:00 a.m. There will be special music as well as a special sermon by Rev. Carolyn Welch of the Congregational Church. An offering for the poor of the town will be made.

P.-T.A. News—

The Thorsby P.-T.A. will sponsor a party on next Saturday night. It's to be a "Tacky Party." If you come dressed tacky, you will be admitted to the party for 10c, otherwise it will cost you 25c. A prize will be given the lady who has the tackiest costume, and a prize will also be given the tackiest man. A cake will be given to the one who is judged the prettiest girl and a cake will also be given the ugliest man.

Games of all kinds will be played, refreshments will be sold, so come on out and join in the fun and help your local P.-T.A.

The blackface comedy show which was put on by the Thorsby Firemen on last Saturday was an enjoyable event, and drew one of the largest crowds we have ever seen in the Junior High School Hall. All of the boys taking part were good amateur performers, and we hope they will soon get ready for another show. We hope these boys will prepare to put on a real "Minstrel Show" since they have the talent that it takes, and everybody likes a good minstrel.

Rev. and Mrs. B. B. Burks left Saturday night for Pensacola, Fla., to visit with relatives. From Pensacola they will go to Mobile, where they will attend the State Baptist Convention.

The service at the Lutheran Church on last Sunday afternoon was well attended. Pastor Conrad preached a very good sermon on "Forgiveness." The next service will be held on December 18th. This being the Sunday before Christmas, Rev. Conrad plans to give us a sermon on the Christmas Story in song and words. He will also probably bring his choir from the Birmingham Church. Please remember the date and plan to attend December 18th, at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Marguerite Davison of Demorest, Ga., spent several days here visiting with friends and attending to business.

We wish to correct an error that occurred in last week's paper, when it was stated that the Ladies Guild Bazaar would be held on Saturday, the 12th of November. It is to be on next Saturday, the 19th. Further details are set up in the Institute News.

Mrs. Floyd Taylor of Birmingham spent several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell.

Miss Alma Lefstead spent Saturday in Birmingham where she went to consult a bone specialist. Miss Lefstead broke her left arm about two months ago, and it has not been doing satisfactory, so she went to consult a specialist. She finds that she will be forced to go to the hospital for Therapy treatments, in order to restore a twisted muscle. She will enter the Jefferson Hospital on Thursday and will probably remain there for a week or ten days. Her many friends here hope that these treatments will bring her arm back to normalcy.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Dietenderfer of Clanton attended services at the Lutheran Church here last Sunday afternoon. After the service they visited a while at the home of Mrs. A. E. Reagan, where a number of old friends were gathered together. Mrs. Reagan served cake and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Garrett of Birmingham spent Saturday visiting with her mother, Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Mrs. Anna Phalin left Saturday for Chicago, Ill., where she was called due to the serious illness of a sister-in-law.

Dr. and Mrs. Warth motored down from Birmingham last Sunday for the services at the Lutheran Church. Mr. Nils Neilson of Birmingham also attended the service.

Mr. Billy Gene Davenport of Auburn, Ala., spent the week end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Davenport.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patrick and daughter, Mrs. W. H. Strickland, spent Sunday in Montgomery, Ala., visiting with Miss Emma Patrick, sister of Mr. Patrick, who is seriously ill in a Montgomery hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goodgame of Columbus, Ga., spent a few days last week with his mother, Mrs. Bob Goodgame, and other relatives.

The family of Horace Williams enjoyed a birthday dinner Sunday, honoring little Patsy Williams, charming little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Williams, Jr., on her second birthday. Little Patsy had a beautiful birthday cake, and all that it took to make a happy birthday.

News has been received here of the serious injury of Wendall Murrah. It is learned that Mr. Murrah was working with some paint remover and in some way got too close to the heater, so that the paint ignited, burning him quite badly. Mr. and Mrs. Murrah have many friends here, who regret this accident, and trust that reports are not as bad as was feared at first. We hope for him a quick recovery.

Miss Ruth Ford of Birmingham spent the week end here with Mrs. H. S. Peterson and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pate and sons week-ended with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pate.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Petersen had as their Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Summerville and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Gothright, Mrs. Mary Mendenhall and daughter, Mrs. L. U. West, and son, all of Prattville, Ala.

Mrs. Roy Kendrick spent Monday in Birmingham on a shopping trip.

NEW HARMONY

There was a good crowd out last week end. Our pastor was with us Sunday and Sunday night and brought two inspiring messages.

The FFC meeting is coming along fine. We have a good crowd out each Sunday night and they all take a part. If you haven't been coming, we would be glad you would come out and be with us.

Bro. Alex Bobo will begin a revival meeting here Wednesday night, November 16th. The public is cordially invited to attend these services. Mr. Edgar Littlejohn left for Auburndale, Fla., November 8th, where he'll work for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Jadie Milford were visitors to the church Sunday. Our pastor's daughter-in-law came with them last week end. We were glad to have her and welcome her back again.

Remember the revival and everyone come out and let's make this one of the greatest revivals we've ever had at this church. — Reporter.

GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said Amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December, 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"(a) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto heretofore adopted, the Governor shall from time to time issue negotiable interest bearing bonds for the purposes and in the manner and subject to the limitations stated in this amendment. The bonds shall be the general obligation of the State of Alabama and the full faith and credit and taxing power of the State are hereby pledged to the punctual payment of the bonds and the interest thereon. The aggregate principal amount of all bonds issued hereunder shall not exceed two million dollars ($2,000,000) and they shall mature within ten years from the date of issuance.

"The proceeds from the sale of such bonds are hereby appropriated and shall be used solely for the construction of hospitals and hospital facilities pursuant to Act No. 211, S. 107, approved July 7, 1945 (General Acts of Alabama, 1945, page 330), or any act supplemental thereto or amendatory thereof; provided, that the funds appropriated hereby shall be used only for the construction of hospitals, clinics, or health centers under contracts which have been or are let on or after May 1, 1949, and that the funds shall be used to match federal funds available for hospital, clinic or health center purposes, and that the local governments in the area where each hospital, clinic or health center is to be built shall contribute at least as much money for the construction as does the State; and provided further that the State shall not contribute more than three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000) to the construction of any one hospital, clinic or health center.

"In determining where a hospital, clinic or health center to be constructed with the funds appropriated herein shall be located, first consideration shall be given to communities which have no hospital, clinic or health center facilities. Each county having no hospital, clinic or health center facilities shall be entitled to an allotment of not less than sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) for such facilities if application is made therefor before January 1 of each year. Any funds available for hospital, clinic or health center facilities remaining on January 1 of each year after allotments have been made to those counties having no such facilities and having not already received an allotment and which have made application therefor may be alloted to those counties having such facilities which have made application therefor. However, counties receiving prior allotments hereunder shall not be precluded from receiving a larger allotment or an additional allotment at the discretion of the State Board of Health.

"District tuberculosis sanitoria in the districts set up in Act No. 287, S. 22, approved July 7, 1945, shall be eligible for construction under the provisions of this amendment, and 25 percent of the proceeds from the sale of bonds authorized by this Amendment shall be reserved for the construction of tuberculosis sanitoria; provided, at the end of each calendar year funds not obligated for either general or tuberculosis hospital construction may be used during the next year for either type construction; and provided further, that the local government or authorities in the area where the sanitorium is to be built shall contribute at least as much money as does the State. A sum not to exceed forty thousand dollars ($40,000) may be used by the State Board of Health for hospital administration for each of the two (2) years ending in 1950 and 1951; this appropriation shall be cumulative.

"(b) All bonds issued hereunder and the interest thereon shall be payable from any funds in the State treasury not otherwise appropriated. The bonds shall be payable in substantially equal installments of principal and interest beginning in the next fiscal year after their date; they shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding two percent per annum payable semiannually; and they shall contain a provision for their call for payment at such a time or times prior to maturity, and at such a premium, if any, as the Governor may prescribe. All bonds, issued hereunder shall be sold to the highest bidder at a duly advertised public sale, on sealed bids or at auction, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest; provided, bidders may be invited to name the rate of interest which the bonds are to bear, in which case the bonds shall not be sold at a price which would yield more than two percent according to standard bond tables, taking into account the discount and call privilege."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State, at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of October, 1949.

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the 1949 Regular Session of th Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the 1949 Regular Session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"This amendment shall apply in all counties except Mobile and Jefferson Counties. The term "public hospital purposes" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities. The term "public hospital facilities" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include public hospitals, public clinics, public health centers, nurses' homes and training facilities, and related public health facilities of any kind.

"If a majority of the qualified electors of any county in the state, except Mobile and Jefferson Counties, who participate in an election held therein pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted shall vote at such election in favor of the levy and collection of a special county tax, within the limitations provided in such amendment, for any one or more of the purposes, included within meaning of the term public hospital purposes, the proceeds derived from the tax authorized at such election may be applied for any one or more of the purposes for which said tax may be so voted. Whenever the tax shall be voted the governing body of the county may anticipate the proceeds therefrom for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall be voted by issuing, without further election, interest bearing tax anticipation bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said county payable solely from and secured by a pledge of not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeds from said tax received by the county.

"The governing body of each county in which the said tax may be voted shall have the further power to designate as the agency of the county to acquire, construct, equip, operate and maintain public hospital facilities any public corporation heretofore or hereafter organized for hospital purposes in the county under any general law heretofore or hereafter enacted by the Legislature. When a public corporation shall be so designated, the proceeds of said tax thereafter collected shall be paid over to it and shall be used by it for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted; provided, that payment of the proceeds of said tax to said public corporation shall be made only to such extent as will not result in the impairment of the obligation of any contract theretofore made with respect to said tax. Said public corporation may anticipate the proceeds from said tax so required to be paid to it by issuing, for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted, the bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said public corporation, and may pledge for the payment of the principal thereof and interest thereon not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeeds from said tax so paid to it.

"Each county in which the tax shall be voted and in the event a public corporation shall have been designated as the agency of such county pursuant to the provisions hereof then said public corporation, shall have the power to contract with any other county or similar public corporation with respect to the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities outside of the county and within any zone or region of which the county may be a part, and which may have heretofore been established or may hereafter be established for public hospital purposes by the Legislature or by any agency designated by it, the obligations of such contract to be payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax; provided, that the proceeds of said tax shall not be used outside of the county for any purpose for which the proceeds could not be used in the county, and shall not be used with respect to public hospital facilities located outside of the county if the tax is voted specifically for public hospital facilities located in the county.

"No securities issued or contracts made by a county under the authority of this amendment, which are payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax, and no securities issued or contracts made by any such public corporation, whether or not issued or made under the authority of this amendment, shall be construed to be bonds of the county or of a political subdivision thereof within the meaning of Section 222 of the Constitution, or construed to create or constitute an indebtedness of the county within the meaning of Section 224 of the constitution. Said securities shall be construed to be negotiable instruments notwithstanding the fact that they may be payable solely from a limited source. JEMISON

Monday, November 7th, the Jemison Quest Club presented Mrs. Clifton Walton (nee Nell Wells) in a book review at the Jemison Baptist Church at 8:00 p.m.

Mrs. Walton was presented by Miss Mary Clements, Club president. Miss Clements most pleasantly explained Mrs. Walton needed no introduction to a Jemison audience, being one of Jemison's own daughters, and that we were so very proud to have one so talented in presenting a book with so much interest, charm and instruction with which the book "Point of No Return" by Jno. Marquand was described by Mrs. Walton. All expressed delight in listening to this very worth while recently written book. A delightful fruit drink was served to the members and guests present.

Armistice Day was observed Friday by the Annual Parade of the entire Jemison School pupils and teachers, numbering almost a thousand. The parade was through the entire business section of Jemison. It was an impressive scene as we watched these young Americans with their high hopes. Shall democracy fail them?

Ladies of the Methodist Church served a most delicious chicken plate dinner Friday evening. The proceeds to be applied on some very improved additions to their local church.

Senior III girls are conducting each Saturday in the new Corner Store (owned by Miss McNeill) a Rummage Sale for the purpose of raising funds to buy a curtain in the new auditorium. They will appreciate patronage or any financial assistance.

Rev. Carroll brought two splendid messages Sunday, November, 13th. Rev. Carroll is full time pastor of the Jemison Baptist Church. He is leading the church and the people in a fine way. They, too, are planning a building program in the near future. Funds have been accumulating during the present year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bethany and small daughter of Decatur were the week end guests of her mother, Mrs. Mattie Henson, also their uncle, Mr. Jim Patton, and Miss Melba Patton. Mrs. Henson returned for an extended stay with the Bethany's. Mrs. Bethany is teaching in the Decatur School System.

Mrs. Harry McGahee of Tuscaloosa has been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. B. Cryse, who is very feeble.

Miss Vivian McNeill of Atlanta, Ga., came over to see her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. McNeill, returning Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Glass and daughter, Miss Betty Glass, made a business trip to Birmingham Tuesday.

College students spending the week end at home were Miss Mary Julia Blewster of Montevallo and Mr. John Hayman from the University of Alabama. John has been experiencing many pleasant trips during the football season. He is a member of the Million Dollar Band. Jemison is very proud of this young musician and student, as also all her college students.

Friends regret Mrs. Ivie Hubbard (widow of the late Monroe Hubbard) has gone to Atlanta to make that city her home. She has been a resident of Jemison for several years.

When cotton stalks are cut down early, they help form a mulch and aid in preventing erosion.

Before painting floors or wood work that have been waxed, clean them with turpentine. Wash old woodwork with a cleaning compound to remove grease or dirt.

MAN HAS NOT MADE BETTER RAT TRAPS

Auburn, Ala. — Skunks, weasels, owls, hawks, and snakes are kicked around too often by many people.

Explaining this statement, Earl Kennamer, A.P.I. Extension Service wildlife specialist, says that while these birds and animals have been thoroughly black listed, everyone should realize that we have no better rat traps. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates show that mice destroy large amounts of corn and alfalfa if they are not controlled. These pests, however, are kept in check by predators which include owls, hawks, skunks, snakes and weasels. All these animals ask in return is a little protection—which they should get unless they begin to raid the chicken yard.

"Remember," warns the specialist, "that field mice can eat as much or more grass as cattle or other livestock unless they are controlled. Concentrations of 100 mice to the acre may be a shock; however, concentrations may be from 1,500 to 12,000 to the acre!"

The specialist emphasizes the fact that if every farmer killed all the skunks, owls, hawks, weasels, and similar animals, the mice population would be so great that a famine would be the result.

ALABAMA LEADS IN LENGTH OF STAPLE

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama leads all other states in the southeastern area in the staple length of its cotton this year, announces Ralph Jones, seed marketing specialist.

Based on ginnings through October 17, Production and Marketing Administration reports show that the average staple length for Alabama cotton is slightly better than one and 1-32 inch.

Commenting on this report, Jones says that the record is a great tribute to county agents and other agricultural workers of Alabama's Land Grant College, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Also, reports indicate that 99.8 per cent of this year's crop runs 15-16 inch or better in staple length compared with only 2.5 per cent 20 years ago.

Jones states that Alabama cotton has been improved largely through the use of good seed of the better varieties. This is why he urges farmers not to forget this fact when they buy planting seed for the 1950 crop.

THE BETTER SPEECH CLUB VISITS TURNAROUND

As a climax to our recent study of rock, The Better Speech Club decided to visit Turnaround, where remarkable types of rock abound. There, too, we could see many other of nature's beauties.

We made definite preparation for the trip, and last Wednesday morning about nine-thirty, when Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Littleton, Mrs. Taylor, and Mrs. Wright arrived to assist in transportation, we were ready to leave.

When we reached the Pitts home, we were asked to register, and were then given permission to stroll through the grounds about the house and examine the rock that had been blasted out of the nearby mountains probably 30 or 40 years ago. We found beautiful specimen of various colored quartz, granite, mica, as well as iron ore, hornblende, and felspar. Some pieces had been polished.

Later we drove on to the picnic grounds and parking area. Then, assembling in squads, we began our tramp through the park. Leaving the main walk-way, we followed along a winding path to Lookout Rock, from which we saw Chestnut Creek turning in and out and bubbling along far below us. Our next stop was at Picture Frame Rock, a well-named place. From this spot we walked down to view impressive Alum Rock.

Returning to Picture Frame, we made a steep ascent and found some benches where we rested a while.

Down we went then almost to the very brink of the creek and followed a winding trail called Azalea Trail. Just off this trail we came upon a welcomed fountain where we each has a taste of the cool, mineral water.

We had used much time, so we hastened back up Azalea Trail, passed all those wonderful rock, and finally came to the picnic grounds where we were served refreshments before starting for school. — The Better Speech Club.

AT TURNAROUND

The water goes singing like chiming clocks,
Murmuring and gurgling through the rocks.
Down by the stream the birds do
sing.
Ah, beautiful is everything!
The sun upon mica does shine,
And 'round the hills the stream does wind.

—ENNIS EASTERLING.

A-TRIPPING

Last Wednesday a-tripping we were found,
Where we saw a creek that turned around.
There, too, the hills were wondrous,
high.
In fact, they seemed to kiss
the sky.
Although 'twas cool, our brows
we'd mop,
As we climbed up, up to the top.
Finally on the top we were found
Where great, great boulders do abound.

Our Schools' News

BAKER — The school has made numerous improvements in the lunch room recently. New linoleum has been put on the kitchen floor and the walls painted. A new refrigerator has been installed and additional equipment for preparing foods purchased.

Recently in observance of AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK, the school showed an appropriate movie for both parents and pupils. At the past two P.-T.A. meetings a movie has been shown. P.-T.A. attendance has been unusually good this year.

ENTERPRISE — Recently at a meeting of the P.-T.A., a play, "Why We Are Thankful," was presented. A movie on Health and Safety, subject for AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK, was also shown.

Tuesday night November 15th, the school presented the Rebe and Rabe Show with Joe Rumore. Proceeds went to the school.

CLANTON ELEMENTARY — The Hallowe'en Carnival this year was a tremendous success. Sponsored by the P.-T.A., the affair made $400 for the school. An unusually fine spirit prevailed throughout the evening, and behavior was remarkable for Hallowe'en.

The work of the pupils has been on exhibition for some time for the benefit of visiting parents. Various rooms have presented special programs for their own parents and friends.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH — The combined Girls and Boys Glee Clubs, under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Mims, sang for the P.T.A. recently. This year's Girls Glee Club is the largest in the history of the school Dorothy Mims and Jerry Studdard are the clubs' presidents.

Recently at assembly, parents and students heard Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who spoke on the subject, "Home Economics in Education." Afterwards, the Home Economics Department was open to the parents and friends who were served coffee and doughnuts by members of the home economics classes.

COOPER — This week the school has been very busy observing AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK. Each pupil sent to his parents the special National Education Association invitation folder with this year's commemorative stamp on it. Today the community is invited to a school assembly program which will feature local talent.

Basketball suits have been purchased for the girls basketball team. The purchase of these was financed in part by the school P.-T.A. Cooper has an exceptionally good boys basketball team this year.

ISABELLA — Recently this school had an open house for parents. A special assembly program commemorating AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK were presented. The parents were guests at a football game played between Isabella High and Verbena High.

The Hallowe'en Carnical sponsored by the P.-T.A. was a great success. Betty Lois Conway won the cake for the pretty girl. Parents and pupils alike report a most pleasant evening.

MAPLESVILLE — The Hallowe'en party this year was truly a family affair, and parents had as much or more fun than their children. Sponsored by the P.-T.A., the party was a community success. An unusual number of mothers helped with the baking and sale of foods to contribute greatly to the financial success. The FFA sweetheart contest was another important feature of the carnival.

STANTON — In observance of AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK, students presented a special chapel program recently. Health, safety and good citizenship were among the subjects discussed.

Memories of Hallowe'en still linger as the Stanton Community remembers the festival at the school auditorium. Presented by the school P.-T.A., the festival was a success in every way.

LAY DAM — Children at the school entertained their parents with a play, entitled, "A Day At School."

Attendance is unusually good at Lay Dam this year. During October, there was only one absence for the entire month.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Looks like the dance Friday night was a big success, eh, kids? Anyhow, there were enough there that did have a good time to make up for the ones that didn't.

Speaking of Friday night, seems like I faintly recall a ball game that flopped that night. Did I say, "Flop?" Well, I didn't mean it because it was one of the best games I've seen in a long time, even if we did lose.

Congratulations go to Janie Lou Wade this week for winning the F.F.A. Queen Contest in which she and Dorothy Mims were running. And I guess she can run just a little faster than Dorothy. I think I could openly congratulate Dorothy for going such a good race, and in my opinion, I'm sorry they didn't tie.

Boy, I take back all I ever said about the band at school. Man, they really are working hard in that thing and by the end of the football season I think they're really going to be able to march and play just swell.

There's a small boy about four years old that lives close to my house named Lonny Martin. The other day we were playing football and Lonny was watching us. Suddenly the fire whistle blared out. Looking down towards town Lonny said, "I hear it burning, but I can't tell where it is." Boy, that's some imagination, isn't it?

I hear where the Glee Club is going to Sylacauga for a program some time in the near future and from the (shall we say, sarcastically speaking) beautiful loudness in the gym that they are going to sing.

Well, football fans, we take on dear old Loretta next week, and from what I hear they haven't got such a strong team. Okay, fellas, there's your chance. Let's really show them what we're made of and romp all over them.

Well, kids, it's not long until those wonderful Christmas holidays and brother, am I glad. You know, though, unless it gets cold fast, we're sure not going to have a white Christmas. We'll probably more or less have one of those "ninety degrees in the shade" days if the weather holds out. Anyhow, a holiday is a holiday, cold or otherwise.

MACEDONIA

It was a little rainy about Sunday school time, and a few who might have come, didn't. But, of course, you know that. Let me tell you something, you don't know—you who were not there: We had a wonderful lesson, "Perfected Through Suffering."

Where is a person who hasn't suffered? Maybe not physically, but mentally, or maybe both, but surely each of us have suffered or will in later years. Are we capable of bearing our cross and being strengthened by the suffering? Or do we let it make us better? There are so many sorrows that would make the heart somehow rejoice if we would trust God completely.

Most of the congregation who received many blessings at Sunday School didn't wish to let their blessings cease, so they hurried on down to Mr. Hoyt and Miss Miriah Freeman's. The spirit with which were shown their many guests were marvelous and the eats simply out of this world. Their guests were: Rev. and Mrs.. Hymon Atcheson and Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Moore and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arliss Harris and Jimmy, from Selma, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rasberry and Himan, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Smith, Janice and Ronnie, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Morris and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rasberry and family, Mrs. Briggs Lee and Braxton, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Oats, Mary and Joyce, Messrs. Horace Thomas, Billy and Donald Jones, Proctor Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Crowson and sons, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Coleman, Misses Athlone and Marie Ray, Nolvis Mims, Nell Hayes, Barbara and Maralene, Pullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Moore spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. N. F. West.

Mrs. Crit Glass and Mrs. J. H. Coleman were Tuesday visitors of Miss Miriah Freeman.

Miss Leone Cleckler spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davenport and family.

Mrs. Harvey Davenport visited parents Sunday.

Mrs. W. A. Crowson entertained with a birthday dinner Saturday for the following: Mrs. W. A. Crowson and Jimmy, Mr. Hoyt and Mis Miriah Freeman. Other guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Crowson and children, Mr. and Mrs. U. L. Nixon and family, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Morris and family. To those having birthdays, we hope you have many more happy years filled with bountiful blessings.

Miss Lorene Cofer had as Sunday guests Misses Floretta and Jo Ann Nix.

Sunday was a wonderful day after all, especially when it was climaxed with a grand sermon delivered by Rev. Hymon Atcheson. The morning sermon was good, but the evening sermon better. So you see, you really should be there always. His evening sermon could have been titled, "If, If —Our Hearts Were Clean, If—We Were Saved, If—If—."

To each and every visitor, we're glad you came. Come any time you can. You are always welcome.

Let's all come to prayer meeting each Wednesday night and Sunday School each Sunday.

HIGHLAND

We had large crowds out at both services Sunday. Bro. Hamm was with us, but because of a sore mouth from having his teeth pulled, he did not preach for us. We hope his mouth will soon be well. Rev. T. W. Billingsley brought the message Sunday morning which was enjoyed very much by all.

Rev. Robert Shavers brought a very inspiring message Sunday night. We had several visitors and invite them back.

Rev. G. H. Hamm and family, Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Billingsley and the Rev. and Mrs. J. I. Bice were Sunday guests of Mr. John Nelson and family.

Remember Sunday School each Sunday at 10:00 a.m. Come and bring someone with you. — Reporter.

FISHING

Some of the best bass and bluegill catches are made during the fall months of the year before real cold weather sets in. The wise fish that did not bite readily during the hot summer months may be eager to take a worm or lure during this time.

The Man Who Found The Way To Conquer Pain

How the man who found the way to conquer pain was feared by the very people he could help because they thought he used "black magic" will be told next Tuesday at 1:00 o'clock in the second of a new series of programs—The 'S' Men—on Radio Station WKLF.

It is a little-known story in the life of Dr. Crawford Long, the country doctor who discovered that ether could banish the agony of surgical operations.

It will be told by Mrs. Joseph J. Mullins, chairman of the Women's Organization of the Public Information Committee for the American Cancer Society, Chilton County, and Dr. Joe H. Johnson.

Letter From Better Citizens To The Editor

Clanton, Ala., Nov. 22, 1949.

Dear Mr. Tucker:

We were all thrilled when Mrs. Warr came in with all those papers. We had a reading period and you should have seen everybody holding up their Chilton County News and reading. We thank you for giving us all those extra papers and we forgive you for leaving us out of the paper last week and the week before.

Mrs. Warr says everybody makes mistakes, so we are glad to overlook yours. We don't think you meant to do it anyway.

I want to tell you about our Thanksgiving baskets for some needy people. Everybody in the room has brought something to give to these people. You ought to see it. It is running over with nice things. Besides the basket we are sending a real Thanksgiving dinner—a big fat hen and everything that goes with it. We do hope that you and your family will have a happy Thanksgiving. We all have a lot to be thankful for, don't we?

We thank you again for the papers and we all send you our love and best wishes.

Your friends,
THE BETTER CITIZENS CLUB,

J. Lee Smith Has This to Say:

The auditors and newspapers have had much to say about a report that about $240,000.00 of Chilton County's money is missing.

I would like to make this statement: That on January 20, 1947, when I checked out of the Probate Office, the State Examiners Report showed there was in the County Treasure $248,989.19.

As to what has occurred since I went out of office, I can not say one way or another.

I do know, that whatever other faults I have, I have been honest, and I ask the people who have put confidence in me in the past, to reserve judgement until all of the facts can be brought out in a Court of Justice.

Yours very truly,
J. LEE SMITH.

A Resolution Of Respect

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Verbena Methodist Church finds itself the poorer, in the passing of Mrs. B. B. Comer (Mary Carr Gibson). But we comfort ourselves in Thanksgiving for having had her a member of the church and the Woman's Society of Christian Service for many years.

Her brilliant mind, her support of all things spiritual, her poise and dignity of a true Southern Gentlewoman, have influenced our enitre organization. Memories of these traits will always be with us, lingering like the perfume of lovely flowers.

To her loving family and faithful friends, and to all in Verbena Village who revered her, we extend deep sympathy.

We also request that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, The Alabama Christian Advocate, The Clanton Union-Banner, and the Chilton County News.

Signed: Mrs. J. S. Williamson, Mrs. J. A. Sheppard, of the W.S.C.S. of the Verbena Methodist Church.

Parrish Makes Statement Of Innocence On Indictment

I have no secrets and I have but one story to tell. I have no pet places to tell that story— in a private meeting or in the court house. This is my story:

I am a veterinarian by profession, and I have been practicing since 1917, except the time I was in World War I. I graduated from Auburn in 1917. In 1946 a group of very well known Chilton County citizens came to me, urging that I enter the race for the probate judge's office. In the first group there were four well-known men. I was flattered by their offer, but said I would have to be convinced that there was really a widespread desire among our county residents for me to hold this important office before I would even consider it. Three or four days later I was invited to attend a private meeting. When I arrived, there were 25 or 30 men, of all walks of life, and all parts of the county, who represented the main leadership of Chilton County.

Wanted Better Government

They told me they were obligating me on only one condition— that I would give them better government for Chilton County.

They said they were not building farms 10 or 12 miles away asking me to pave roads or build fish ponds. They simply wanted better government for Chilton County.

I ran against the incumbent, Judge J. Lee Smith, and I thank my friends

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months after final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months after final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"(A) In addition to any taxes now authorized, or that may be hereafter authorized, by the Constitution and laws of Alabama, there is hereby levied a special school tax of fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in the school tax district of the City of Huntsville in Madison County to be used solely for public school purposes; provided such tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the said school tax district in which such tax is to be collected and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election; otherwise said tax shall not be collected. A special separate election is hereby called on the first Tuesday after sixty days following the date of this Amendment becomes effective in the school tax district of the City of Huntsville in Madison County, at which election the qualified voters in the said school tax district of Madison County may vote as to whether said special school tax herein levied shall be effective; and if the majority of those voting at said election vote in favor of said special school tax such school tax shall immediately be levied and collected annually thereafter on the first day of October by the Tax Collector of Madison County and paid to the City of Huntsville. The proceeds of the tax are hereby pledged solely to the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds hereinafter provided for. This section shall be self-executing.

"(B) After said tax has been voted, and without further authorization the City of Huntsville shall issue and sell [illegible] for the sole purpose of constructing and improving school buildings and acquiring sites therefor; provided, the net proceeds of the bonds shall be paid immediately to the Board of Education of the City of Huntsville. The principal amount of the bonds shall in no event exceed the sum of five hundred seventy-five thousand dollars ($575,000). All bonds issued hereunder shall be payable in annual installments, the first of which shall be payable not more than two years after the date of the bonds, and the last within the period of usefulness of the improvements for which the bonds are issued. Such bonds shall be callable at any time upon the payment of the principal amount thereof plus a premium equal to one year's interest thereon. The bonds shall not be a general obligation of the City of Huntsville or of Madison County and shall not be charged to the constitutional debt limit of the City of Huntsville or Madison County.

"(C) If sufficient revenue has been produced by the tax levied in paragraph (A) of this Amendment to pay the principal amount of the bonds issued hereunder with interest thereon prior to the expiration of the period for which the tax was levied, the tax shall immediately cease and shall no longer be collected or enforced, and the bonds shall be redeemed forthwith.

"(D) Except as herein otherwise provided the election hereinabove provided for shall be called, held and conducted as provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of district school tax elections. The governing body of the City of Huntsville shall appoint and designate the officers, managers, clerks and returning officers and shall call, canvass, tabulate, and declare the result of the election provided for in the City of Huntsville. The election shall otherwise be conducted, held, canvassed, tabulated and the results declared as general elections are conducted, held, canvassed, tabulated and the results declared in Alabama."

COTTON GROWERS CAN MAKE USE OF PRODUCT

Auburn, Ala. — The supply of cotton now exceeds demand; therefore, the U. S. has a surplus.

"In order to reduce the surplus and ifprove cotton's position it is necessary to cut production or increase demand or both," asserts O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist.

With this in mind, he reminds farmers that they are consumers as well as producers and should be very much interested in increased uses and sales of cotton products. This will help reduce the cotton surplus.

"For instance," says Andrews, "there is a 250,000-bale potential market if all the fertilizer that farmers use in the Cotton eBlt in 1950 is put up in cotton bags. And, of course, the fertilizer industry will put fertilizer in the kind of bag demanded by the cotton farmer."

Now Is The Time

Now that the Grand Jury has met and made it's report to the proper authorities Chilton County can go forward with the job of cleaning her house.

We commend the Grand Jury on their thorough job and heartily agree that an early trial is desirable.

It is only fair to those who were indicted that they be given a chance to prove their innocence at the earliest possible time, if they are innocent. If they are guilty of the charges made in the indictment then they should be punished according to the judgments of the courts.

Of No. 1 Concern

A dangerous, quiet "killer" is stalking Chilton County.

It cost this county about $2,492,000 in economic loss between 1938 and 1947.

It took the lives of 82 citizens of this county whose average age, at death, was 46.

This killer caused more deaths in Alabama during the first nine months of 1949 than all other contagious diseases combined.

It's name — tuberculosis.

Citizens of Chilton County and all over Alabama will have two chances during December to strike back at tuberculosis.

The first chance comes December 13 when Alabama votes on a $2 million dollar bond issue for hospital construction. To this money the federal government would add another two-thirds.

One-fourth of this fund will be earmarked for sanitoria to treat—and often cure—tuberculosis victims.

TB is expensive to Chitlon County. Each of the deaths during the 10-year-period was costly in: Hospital care, burial, often welfare payments to the family and loss of individual income.

Men and women of this county will have their second chance to fight TB by buying the traditional Christmas Seals—tiny banners of the long fight against this deadly killer.

The hospital bond issue will be Amendment Number One on the election ballot December 13—a problem of Number One concern to every Alabamian.

Danger Signals Of Cancer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on symptoms of early cancer, furnished the Chilton County News by members of the Chilton County Medical Society.

An important symptom [illegible] the physician to suspect the possible presence of cancer is a lump [illegible] painless—that [illegible] lip, tongue, [illegible] region, abdominal [illegible] less frequently, in other parts of the [illegible]

[illegible] lumps or thickings, also should [illegible] the possibility of cancer to the average layman, and should send [illegible] to his physician at once.

Because such lumps usually are painless, most patients put off visiting their doctors. If the lump happens to be [illegible] this procrastination is extremely dangerous, and may result in death to a patient who could have been cured if he had sought medical attention when the symptom was first noticed.

Not all lumps mean that cancer is present. In fact, the medical evidence shows that the majority of lumps are not cancerous — certainly not in the beginning. But many of them are cancer in an early stage when the patient first notices their appearance. Others can later develop into cancer. Anyone should seek IMMEDIATE [illegible] from a competent physician if [illegible] unusual mass appears. The competent doctor is the only person qualified to make a final decision.

Women should pay particular attention to lumps that appear in the breasts. About one-fifth of all cancers among females occur in the breasts. Usually the first symptom is a lump. The size of the mass should not lead the patient either to discount it or to become unduly alarmed. Small lumps no larger than a splitpea can be cancer; and large tumors may be benign. But failure to seek immediate medical advice is nothing but gambling with life itself.

Treatment of cancer of the breast in its early stages brings about a cure in 75 to 85 percent of the cases and if treated when it is just beginning all breast cancer can be cured. In moderately advanced stages, the cure rate drops to about 20 per cent, and in well advanced stages, cancer of the breast, like all other kinds of cancer, is fatal.

Though cancer of the breast is the type most often associated with the painless lump of thickening, other types of cancer also may first reveal themselves in this way. In the region of the tongue, mouth or lip, a lump may indicate early cancer—which can be cured in a high percentage of cases if treated early.

Certain types of internal cancer also may first show symptoms in the form of a mass which can be felt from the outside of the body. Many of these types of cancer can be cured in as many as half the cases, if treatment is begun at once.

Too many patients are not aware of the significance of apparently harmless symptoms. Too many patients put off going to their doctors until driven there by pain or pride. Usually, then, the chances of cure have become slim.

In spite of the fact that about half of all the cases of cancer that develop can be cured today with early treatment—surgery or radiation—far less than half of them are being cured.

An awareness by the general public of the symptoms that may indicate early cancer, and immediate visits to their doctors at the slightest suspicion of cancer, could radically increase the number of cancer cures in an amazingly short time.

--By BEN

Well, folks, it's time to start preparations for Christmas. There are only four weeks to go and they will be the busiest of the year. Local merchants are ready and have a full stock of everything that goes with the Christmas Season. Be sure you shop at home before you go off looking for greener fields elsewhere.

We were indeed glad to see Gene Gore in town Monday morning. Wanted to get to talk to him, but he got away before we could get a word in. Gene, you know, has been down with a heart attack. He has been a pretty sick man, but he looked in pretty good shape when we saw him Monday. What ever his trouble was, we were glad to see it hadn't knocked that smile off his face.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hayes have returned to Clanton. Mrs. Hayes was Juanita Newell. She and Roy have bought the D & D Washateria and are ready to do a share of your rough dry laundry. Their place is the same on Seventh Street in South Clanton, next to Dent Williams Motor Company. Go down and wish the kids well and tell them you're behind them. What Clanton and Chilton County needs is to keep more of her young folks at home and that can only be accomplished by we older folks, encouraging them and assisting them in getting started.

Start counting the multitude of blessings that are yours. We celebrate Thanksgiving this week and by far, we have more to be thankful for than any people on earth. Few of us show it. In fact, we all get a kick out of griping. But believe us, there isn't another nation on earth that wouldn't grab at the chance to trade their blessings for ours.

What became of that Studebaker Agency? We heard talk of it for several days a few weeks ago, but that is all. Any new business is a boost for Chilton County, and we want to hear more of the new undertaking.

Christmas committees are out working and orders come from Miss Fay Woolley and Miss Louise Foshee to take your old toys to the vocational agricultural departments. These departments are at Chilton County High School, Isabella, Verbena, Jemison and Maplesville. The clothing and food gifts are to go to the Home economic departments at the same schools. If you can't give money, maybe there is something that you are not using or are tired of that would make the heart of some little boy or girl glad. Look close and see. It's a guarantee that you will get a lot bigger thrill out of Christmas by making someone else happy than buying things to make yourself happy.

Pvt. Perry M. Donovan of Maplesville Route, sends word that he visited Shanghai recently. He says he was in the big typhoon there. In fact, he had his leg broken during the "blow." He was in a building that collapsed during the storm. His mother is Mrs. Lydia Donovan of Maplesville.

LOCAL MAN RECEIVES LOST KEYS THROUGH DVA MINIATURE LICENSE

The Disabled American Veterans has returned a set of lost keys to C. O. Jones, Clanton, Ala.

Attached to the keys was a DAV Identa-Tag, miniature license tag for key-rings, which is distributed to 30,000,000 motorists each year and the replica of their state license plates enables the DAV to return 5,000 keys a month from its national headquarters in Cincinnati.

In addition to key-loss insurance, the Idento-Tag through contributions enables the DAV to maintain its free rehabilitation service for disabled veterans and their dependents.

Keys are returned to owners from al lover the world. One of the most unusual key losses and returns saw a Cincinnati grainery employee lose his set in a sack of oats. The keys were found when the sack was opened aboard a freighter in the English Channel en route to Poland and they made their way back via the DAV.

Tags even brought back keys from the war zones.

For the motorists who wish extra Idento-Tags for extra sets of keys, the DAV has established a special order department, which handles more than 100,000 requests each year.

The DAV Idento-Tag plant is owned and operated by the DAV in the interests of disabled veterans and employs disabled veterans in their manufacture.

FUMIGATE SEED

Corn, grain sorghum, beans, cowpeas, and other similar seed crops should be fumigated to protect them from weevils. See the local county agent for complete details.

Be Ye Thankful

Once a year there is a day set aside for THANKSGIVING to God for His blessings upon our nation. This day should not be merely another holiday, but it should be, in every sense of the word, a day of THANKSGIVING to our Heavenly Father for His manifold blessings upon our land. Of course, we should be thankful every day, but at this season of the year with a day known to us as "THANKSGIVING DAY," can't be more thankful to God, and even to our friends for all the good things we have to enjoy?

A. T. HICKMAN

Ingratitude is perhaps one of the blackest of sins, one of the meanest of sins. Ingratitude is a dark cloud without any silver lining. It is the bitterest of medicine any one can take. Jesus was disappointed when he had cleansed ten lepers, and only one returned to give him thanks. Jesus said, "Were there not ten cleansed, but where are the nine? Only one out of ten showed any thanks and gratitude for his healing and cleansing. Friends, what about you and me? Have we stopped to consider that the Lord loads us daily with rich benefits? And do we praise him enough for his blessings? Perhaps not. Count your blessings one by one, and be ye thankful. One of the sins of Israel was that of murmuring against God, and against Moses. They were not a thankful people. Some time I wonder are the people of America as thankful as we should be.

Let us be thankful that we not at war. That our nation is at peace at the present time, and let us hope it shall remain so. Let us be thankful that we have a land of plenty and for our liberty and freedom in worship. We can still go to the church of our choice, and worship God according to the desire of our hearts. This is more than some people can do. Surely, we ought to be thankful. Let us be thankful for free speech for our homes, our friends; and for the Church of Jesus Christ, and for what it means to us. I am thankful that the Gospel proclaimed by the Church has had an influence upon my life. Not only on my life, but upon our nation. The Church is still the Light of the World, and the salt of the earth. Let us be thankful for our schools, our hospitals, and for everything which goes to make life more real, and more happy. Personally, I am thankful for the kindness my friends have shown to me.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

DIABETICS AND INSULIN

Between 70 and 80 per cent of adult diabetics can have their diabetes controlled without insulin. This is true for one reason — because certain diabetics can afford to reduce more than 15 pounds of weight by exercising and restricting their food intake. Diabetes is not cured in this way, but controlled, and the disease will flare up again if the lost weight is regained or there is an acute infection.

Insulin is still a life saver for countless diabetics. The underweight adult diabetic and the diabetic child must be given insulin, an increase in weight being necessary for them to regain and maintain their normal health. Diabetic patients should not be given more insulin than they need, remembering however that life is endangered when not enough insulin is given when needed.

There have been many false statements made recently in public regarding the use of insulin in the treatment of diabetes. It is not true that patients with an advanced state of diabetes can do well with only temporary insulin treatment. Nor is it true that insulin makes the diabetes more severe. With proper control of the diabetes, the adult patient's need for insulin usually decreases remarkably.

Overweight diabetic patients who reduce wisely do not need insulin, except during complications such as pneumonia or carbuncle. Thousands of diabetics owe their lives to insulin. A diabetic should consult his physician and follow the doctor's orders, very carefully.

Another correction: In last week's news we stated that Mr. Theron Watson had bought Rev. Hymon Atcheson's filling station. Well, the deal didn't go through, so Rev. Try to get up the news some time, it's not quite as easy as it seems.

REMOVE STORAGE SPOTS FOUND ON WOOL DRESS

Those who are counting on wearing last year's wool dresses will want to check for spots caused by dampness and mildew.

"Maybe the spots can be removed at home," suggests Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist. "Brush the spot carefully with a soft cloth. When the spot is completely removed, press the wool garment with a warm iron."

A Big Boost For Smitty!

Stepped into Smith's Department Store the other noon and saw the strangest thing. "Sis" Davis was coming up the stairs from the basement with a bundle of wash.

"Is Smitty taking in washing these days?" I asked. "Not quite," she says. "He's just put in a new automatic washing machine, so the girls who work here can get their laundry done while they're eating lunch. Means more time to relax at night and on weekends."

I thought what a swell boss Smitty must be. Human relations between the boss and employees have certainly taken a big step forward during my lifetime.

From where I sit, people seem to be doing a better job of seeing our neighbor's viewpoint these days. Though his ideas and tastes may not be ours, we can understand his preference for a certain breakfast cereal, a favorite movie star, or for a temperate glass of beer or ale. That's the way it should be in a free country.

Expansion Of Alabama Telephone Service Since War Sets New Record

The past four years of postwar telephone growth have far exceeded that of any other period in Alabama's history, Southern Bell officials revealed today.

In fact, postwar development in the state has been at a rate five times faster than that of immediate prewar development, officials stated.

In Alabama, during the four-year span since the war, Southern Bell has added 156,903 telephones, as compared with 31,787 in the four-year prewar period from 1936 through 1939. There were 182,962 telephones in service in the state when the war ended—340,971 now, nearly twice as many.

Growth In South Outstrips Rest U.S.

The rate of telephone growth which Southern Bell has brought to Alabama and the rest of the South has been much greater than the growth experienced in the nation outside the South. Business, manufacturing and agricultural progress have kept the needs at a high level. To help carry forward this economic progress, Southern Bell's construction of new facilities has reached new high marks.

In Alabama, in the four-year period ending with September 1, 1949, a total of $48,192,697 has been spent for new facilities—six times the 1936-39 rate of expenditure for new construction.

Long distance facilities have been greatly expanded during the past four years. The installation of large amounts of long distance switchboards, central office equipment and thousands of miles of cable have resulted in a decrease in the time required to complete calls from one city to another.

Farm Telephones In Alabama Greatly Increased

In keeping with its continuing activities to bring the convenience of the telephone to the farm families of Alabama, Southern Bell has more than tripled the number of its rural telephones in the state since the Fall of 1945. On September 1 of that year there were 15,425 Southern Bell telephones in rural areas, and today there are 52,426.

To provide this great increase in rural telephone service has required the expenditure of approximately $12,000,000 in Alabama since V-J Day.

Growth and demand for telephone service in Clanton has followed the same progressive pattern as Alabama as a whole. In Clanton during the four year span since the war, 1,152 telephones were added, as compared with 132 in the four year prewar period from 1936 through 1939. There were 521 telephones in service in Clanton when the war ended—1,673 four years later, a gain of 221%.

FARMERS URGED TO GET 1950 COTTON SEED NOW

Records indicate that Alabama's supply of cotton seed for planting next year's crop will be short.

This is why Ralph Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service seed marketing specialist, urges farmers who want to get good seed to place their orders early.

Jones further suggests that farmers see the local county agent about recommended varieties and certified seed.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY MAKES PRELIMINARY TESTS AT MITCHELL DAM

Alabama Power Company this week made preliminary tests of the fourth generating unit installed at Mitchell Dam on the Coosa River near Verbena, Ala., bringing the total capacity of the hydro plant there to 102,000 h.p. Construction work for the installation of the unit began in June, 1948.

Installation of this additional unit at Mitchell Dam is part of Alabama Power Company's construction program involving an increase in generating capacity of 282,000 kilowatts. Part of this total is represented by the new steam generating plant at Gadsden recently dedicated and which has a generating capacity of 120,000 kilowatts. Other additions are at Gorgas, where construction is under way for the installation of a 100,000 kilowatt unit, and at Chickasaw for which an additional 40,000 kilowatt unit has been ordered.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Montgomery, Ala. — Chilton County was not one of the 13 Alabama counties in which rabid foxes were found during the first nine months of this year, according to the State Department of Health.

The Department's Bureau of Laboratories has prepared a county-by-county tabulation showing that its staff examined 91 rabid fox heads from January to September, inclusive. Only 76 were examined during all of last year. The counties from which positive fox heads were received this year prior to October, with the number received from each, were as follows:

Barbour, 2; Bullock, 1; Colbert, 3; Cullman, 1; Dale, 25; Dallas, 1; Franklin, 5; Geneva, 4; Henry, 11; Houston, 30; Jefferson, 1; Russell, 3.

In making this tabulation public, the State Health Department pointed out that later reports from branch laboratories might send this year's January-through September total beyond 91.

The food buyer, whether for the home, hotel, hospital, restaurant, or other institution, now has the widest selection of plentiful foods from which to choose that has been available for a good many years.

"Another thing," points out A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist, "in many cases, prices are more favorable than they have been."

A list of the plentiful foods include turkeys, broilers, fryers, hens, pork, eggs, cooking fats, molasses, collards, turnip greens, sweet potatoes, canned corn, peanuts and pecans.

PRESBYTERIANS OBSERVE ORPHANS' HOME WEEK

The week of Sunday, Novmeber 20th, through Sunday, November 27th, has been appointed by the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church as "Orphans' Home Week."

There are 16 Orphans' Homes in the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. The Home located at Talladega, Ala., with the Rev. John E. Stauffer as Superintendent is the one owned and operated by the Alabama Presbyterians. It was founded 85 years ago in 1864, during the War Between the Sttes, within the first five years of the existence of the Southern Presbyterian denomination.

Through the years the Thanksgiving season has been a time of the Church's emphasis for prayer and special offerings for the Children's Homes.

The offering goal this year has been set at $28,467.00 from the 192 congregations of 28,467 Presbyterians making up the total membership of the Synod of Alabama.

Special programs are being planned on Sunday by all the local Presbyterian Churches in the Sunday School, Young Peoples' Organizations, Women of the Church and the pulpit.

Thanksgiving has come to be a time when the children in the Children's Home are remembered in a special way. At seasons of special joy and happiness, when we have our families and loved ones together, it is natural that we think of the children who do not enojy the happiness and security of their own homes.

This is a beautiful and altogether fitting way to observe Thanksgiving and the people of Alabama have accepted this observance with enthusiasm and generosity.

The theme used in the 1949 observance is "Let Your Thanksgiving Be A Investment in Christian Character."

The Talladega Home, supported by local Presbyterians, has a total enrollment of 96 young people—the only home known by thees 96 boys and girls.

The last annual audit shows that operating cost per child was $693.15 or $1.89½ per child day. Almost one-half of the operating income is received at the Thanksgiving season.

BROILER HATCHING EGGS ARE WANTED

Auburn, Ala. — Many Alabama poultrymen are taking advantage of the excellent market for broiler hatching eggs.

John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension Service poultry specialist, points out that the price received for these eggs is several cents per dozen above that for market eggs at the present time. Also, flock owners have been able to get this high price throughout the year.

Two of these are O. J. and Cecil Mooney of Coosa County. They have a fine flock of 700 hens from which they sell 150 dozen hatching eggs and 50 dozen market eggs each week. The Mooneys are feeding home-grown oats and corn balanced with a commercial supplement. The commercial feed costs about $35 per week for this flock and after paying market price for their home-grown grain, O. J. and Cecil have about $100 per week left for labor income.

"Other Alabama farmers could greatly increase their farm income by adding a good flock of laying hens and caring for them in a business-like way," declares Weeks.

PLAN TERRACE OUTLETS

The most serious weakness in many terracing jobs has been the failure to provide enough outlets for safe disposal of water from terarce ends.

PRECOOK MEAT BEFORE PLACING IT IN JARS

Auburn, Ala. — Before canning meat many homemakers find that precooking it saves time and energy.

Lavada Curtis, A. P. I. Extension Service food preservation specialist, says to first put meat in a large pan and add hot water. Cover pan and precook meat slowly until it changes its pink color, stirring occasionally, so meat will heat evenly. If salt is desired, put level measures into clean, empty containers: One-half teaspoon in pint jars or No. 2 cans; three-fourths teaspoon in No. 2½ cans; one teaspoon in quart jars or No. 3 cans.

Pack meat into jars while it is hot. Leave about one inch above meat for headspace in glass jars; one-half inch in tin cans. Pour in hot broth or hot water to cover meat. Again leave one inch at top of glass jars for headspace; fill tin cans to one-fourth inch of top. Work out air bubbles with knife. Add more liquid, if needed, to cover meat and adjust lids on glass jars or seal tin cans.

Process at once in the steam pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure; pint jars, 75 minutes; quart jars, 90 minutes; No. 2 cans, 65 minutes; and No. 2½ and No. 3 cans, 90 minutes.

When your small son makes a slingshot...

When your small son makes a slingshot, or when a manufacturer makes an elastic garment or men's and ladies' hose with elastic tops, chances are that both are using Alabama-made products in their manufacturing process. Junior is probably using a couple of strips of one of the inner tubes made by the hundreds of thousand in Alabama's large automobile tire factories. The elastic clothing or hosiery manufacturer may be using miles of the elastic thread produced in Alabama.

Rubber tires and tubes and elastic yarns are only a few of the many thousands of items already manufactured in Alabama. Alabama Power Company's Industrial Development Department, in cooperation with others, is constantly trying to bring about an increase in the number of kinds of products made in Alabama.

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the 1949 Regular Session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"This amendment shall apply in all counties except Mobile and Jefferson Counties. The term "public hospital purposes" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities. The term "public hospital facilities" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include public hospitals, public clinics, public health centers, nurses' homes and training facilities, and related public health facilities of any kind.

"If a majority of the qualified electors of any county in the state, except Mobile and Jefferson Counties, who participate in an election held therein pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted shall vote at such election in favor of the levy and collection of a special county tax, within the limitations provided in such amendment, for any one or more of the purposes, included within meaning of the term public hospital purposes, the proceeds derived from the tax authorized at such election may be applied for any one or more of the purposes for which said tax may be so voted. Whenever the tax shall be voted the governing body of the county may anticipate the proceeds therefrom for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall be voted by issuing, without further election, interest bearing tax anticipation bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said county payable solely from and secured by a pledge of not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeds from said tax received by the county.

"The [illegible]ing body of each county in which the said tax may be voted shall have the further power to designate as the agency of the county to acquire, construct, equip, operate and maintain public hospital facilities any public corporation heretofore or hereafter organized for hospital purposes in the county under any general law heretofore or hereafter enacted by the Legislature. When a public corporation shall be so designated, the proceeds of said tax thereafter collected shall be paid over to it and shall be used by it for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted; provided, that payment of the proceeds of said tax to said public corporation shall be made only to such extent as will not result in the impairment of the obligation of any contract theretofore made with respect to said tax. Said public corporation may anticipate the proceeds from said tax so required to be paid to it by issuing, for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted, the bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said public corporation, and may pledge for the payment of the principal thereof and interest thereon not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeeds from said tax so paid to it.

"Each county in which the tax shall be voted and in the event a public corporation shall have been designated as the agency of such county pursuant to the provisions hereof then said public corporation, shall have the power to contract with any other county or similar public corporation with respect to the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities outside of the county and within any zone or region of which the county may be a part, and which may have heretofore been established or may hereafter be established for public hospital purposes by the Legislature or by any agency designated by it, the obligations of such contract to be payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax; provided, that the proceeds of said tax shall not be used outside of the county for any purpose for which the proceeds could not be used in the county, and shall not be used with respect to public hospital facilities located outside of the county if the tax is voted specifically for public hospital facilities located in the county.

"No securities issued or contracts made by a county under the authority of this amendment, which are payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax, and no securities issued or contracts made by any such public corporation, whether or not issued or made under the authority of this amendment, shall be construed to be bonds of the county or of a political subdivision thereof within the meaning of Section 222 of the Constitution, or construed to create or constitute an indebtedness of the county within the meaning of Section 224 of the constitution. Said securities shall be construed to be negotiable instruments notwithstanding the fact that they may be payable solely from a limited source. All pledges of said tax and all contracts made with respect thereto pursuant to the provisions of this amendment shall take precedence in the order in which they are made and shall create a charge on the proceeds of said tax prior to the expenses of operating and maintaining any public hospital facilities.

"In each instance in which a special county tax for any one or more of the purposes included within the meaning of the term public hospital purposes has heretofore been authorized at an election held in a county pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted, all provisions of this amendment shall be applicable in said county to the same extent as if said election had been held after the adoption of this amendment.

"This amendment shall be self-executing."

Chamber of Commerce Gets Busy On Constructive Goals

Minutes Of A Recent Chamber Of Commerce Meeting

The following were present. Claud Craig, Reedie Taylor, Grady Heflin, Dave Cohen, John Mullins, Leo Thompson, Hollis Jackson, Truman Luker, and Cohen Stapp.

In the absence of President Mack Godwin, Cohen Stapp presided.

A motion was unanimously adopted naming the County Agent as an ex-officio member of the board of directors. After some discussion relative to changing the name, a motion was adopted to continue the name, Clanton Chamber of Commerce, with the slogan: "Clanton is a Good Place to Visit and a Better Place to Live."

After careful consideration of future membership fees, it was agreed that the minimum membership unit would be $12.50 per year. This was done with the idea that at least 200 residents of Clanton would take at least one unit membership and that most of the 200 citizens would take two to six unit memberships, giving the Chamber an operating budget of $3,600 to $4,000 per year.

The following objectives were adopted as something for the Chamber to be actively engaged in full time:

1. Maintain permanent office with competent secretary.

2. An Industrial Committee to make a thorough study and listing of our many physical assets that would serve as a guide and inducement for manufacturers who could profitably locate in our County; and that these assembled facts and figures be ably presented to manufacturers whom we think should consider building plants in the County.

3. Keep options on suitable factory sites, and keep in file information on other available land and buildings suitable for plants of various kinds.

4. Work on legitimate trade-building enterprises for the business firms.

5. Encourage trade-at-home.

6. Consider and pass upon out-of-town advertising schemes before they are submitted to the business firms.

7. Have a welcoming committee from the Chamber to contact new residents in Clanton.

8. Give full cooperation to the County and Home Demonstration Agents in their work in the County.

9. To influence in every possible way the farm practice of farm family size (½ to 1½ acre) strawberry production acreages totaling 1500 acres as our minimum 1950 goal.

(With recent prices and average per acre production the county's gross income from this crop alone would be approximately $750,000 annually.)

10. Livestock development.

A. A goal of four hundred (400) Chilton farmers milking an agregate of two thousand (2000) dairy cows for market milk which would mean an annual additional $500,000 (½ million) farm income in Chilton County. We feel that this goal can be attained.

1. By encouraging continued and more extensive feed and forage crop planting as a basis for economical milk production.

2. By encouraging more rapid development of established milk market.

a. Through sponsored dairy cattle sales to improve breeding and increase per cow production.

b. Through sponsored 4-H and FFA dairy production contests (annual banquet and recognition meeting).

c. Through sponsored annual dairy show.

11. Poultry development:

A. A goal of $1,000,000 poultry industry in Chilton County.

1. This goal to be promoted by arranging for and making educational tours with interested farmers to more highly developed poultry areas.

The people of the County who are interested in making the County "A Better Place in Which to Live," are urged to read these objectives and if they think the objectives are worth while, get ready to put some of your time and a little of your money to work for the accomplishment of these and other objectives as may be added from time to time.

Christmas Chest Committees Appointed; To Meet Dec. 5th

What with $225.00 already turned in or pledged, the Chilton County Christmas Chest is already off to a good start even before the big kick-off meeting to be held this Monday night, December 5th, at 7 o'clock, in the main auditorium of Radio Station WKLF.

At the same time Mr. Russell Williams, finance committee chairman, has announced that before the end of this week several hundred more dollars will have been donated to be turned in to the Chest fund before Monday night's big organization meeting.

Reverend A. T. Hickman, Chilton County Christmas Chest chairman, expressed the opinion that this year's drive will be bigger and better than last year's. He further stated that he felt that the Chest fund drive had already gotton off to a big start and would continue moving at full steam ahead right up to Christmas Eve. He said that this year's organization was much better organized in as much as it was started well in advance of the kick-off date which is Monday night.

Mr. Williams has suggested that if anyone having donations of money for the chest they should call his office at 85, Clanton, and a member of his committee will come by and pick up your donations. Other members of the finance committee include Judge W. L. Parrish, Leo Thompson, Roy Roper, Fred Smith, Jemison; Leonard Bosworth, Thorsby; Mrs. Gladys Deramus, Verbena;; Joe Graham, Maplesville, and presidents of P.-T.A.'s from throughout Chilton County.

Rev. Hickman stated that the organizations for the repair and rejuvenation of old toys have been set up and are in full swing. He said that although toys are being brought in almost every day for repair that the shops are in a position to take on much more work than they now have. These toys can be turned in at Chilton County High School, here in Clanton, or to any other Chilton County School. They will then be turned over to the different work shops in the schools and to the Boy Scouts where they will in turn be put in shape for Christmas distribution, so that Chilton County's less fortunate children will be sure to have a visit from Santa Claus.

Watch next week's paper for list of committees.

Builders Of Clanton

MR. JIMMY BELL

One of Chilton County's finest citizens is Mr. Jimmy Bell, who was born in Texas and raised in Atlanta. He came to Clanton in 1935 because he liked it, and he's still here, he says, because he still likes it.

He owns and operates the Bell Hardware Store in downtown Clanton, where he furnishes a complete line of hardware, plumbing and building supplies and electrical appliances to Chilton and surrounding counties.

For his own pleasure, he likes to fish, and was on his way to the Coosa River when he was interviewed. When we asked him if he raised anything out at his place on the Maplesville Road, he said, "Nothing except kids."

He married Lora Rose Oliver of Birmingham, and they have four children. Katherine Bell, who finished at Chilton High, is married and lives in Birmingham.

Jimmy Bell, Jr., who also finished at the county high school, is working at the store but is fixing to go into the Navy. Martha Bell, their second daughter, is now at Chilton High, and Henry is in grammar school.

"Chilton County is definitely on the rise," Jimmy told us the other day. "More houses are being built in the county now than at any time since I've been here."

Prospects for the future of the county look good to him. And we know that Jimmy Bell will grow with the county. He has served on numerous committees and in many ways has earned his title of one of the "Builders of Clanton."

Here's What To Do, Also What Not To Do, On Christmas Mail—

Better get a supply of two-cent stamps for your Christmas cards. The one-and-a-half-cent stamps are no more.

This is just one of the new wrinkles this year, it was learned from Postmaster R. W. Lowe. Congress jacked up the rate last January

It'll cost three cents for Christmas cards less than four inches long and less than three inches wide.

Of course all sealed envelopes containing Christmas cards will cost three cents. The two-cent postage is for the regular size envelopes that have the flaps tucked in instead of sealed.

You are going to be nicked the extra cent for the unsealed envelopes that the freakish size cards because they slow up the works in the post office These cards jam up the cancellation machines. They don't fit into the pigeon holes where mail is sorted. The standard size card is 3½ by 5 inches, the postmaster said.

Use ink to address packages. Include the delivery zone number. Put your return address in the upper left corner. Don't use an address tag unless absolutely necessary. If you have to use one, put a copy of it inside the parcel in case the tag on the package is lost. Don't write anything else on a label or tag except the address.

Pack Carefully—

Pack presents carefully and tightly in strong durable containers. Wrap with good quality paper and cord. If you seal the package, you have to write this on it: "Contents Merchandise — Postmaster. This parcel may be opened for postal inspection, if necessary."

If you don't do this, you will have to pay letter rate for the parcel, the postmaster warned.

You can't send a parcel by air mail or fourth class that's bigger than 100 inches in length and girth combined or more than 100 pounds in weight.

Seals Are Okeh—

During December only, you can put stickers and seals on parcels but not on the address side.

You can write "Please Do Not Open Until Christmas" and such greetings as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year" on the package. You can stick an envelope containing a letter on the parcel and pay the letter rate. But if you put such a message in the parcel the whole package will have to be sent letter rate.

If you have anything perishable in the package, you must mark "Perishable" on the outside. The post office won't mail anything that might perish during the time it would take to deliver it.

Better clip these tips. You'll need them between now and Christmas.

NEW HARMONY MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH

The Woman's Missionary Society of New Harmony Church met at the home of Mrs. G. L. Boyd. We had a wonderful meeting, but we are very sorry to say that the president of the W.M.U. is in Birmingham hospital having an operation on her eye, and Miss Floyd Dean is in bed with the flu. We all hope and pray they will soon recover and be back home soon.

Everybody don't forget to come to church and Sunday School.

Rev. Clyde Raines preached for us the third Sunday. He really did bring a wonderful message that we all enjoyed very, very much.

One more thing, we are proud to announce that Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ball of this community are the proud parents of a fine baby boy. — Reporter.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy to the best of my knowledge and belief of the minutes of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, of November 17, 1949.

W. L. PARRISH,
Judge of Probate.

Statement From Parrish

for the 923-vote majority.

Very shortly after I took office, I came into contact with Chief State Examiner Ralph Eagerton. At that time I told Eagerton I was particularly desirous of having a full exposition made of the county books. Eagerton promised to make available to me all the services at his disposal in Montgomery for this purpose.

It was not long after this that two of the chief examiner's assistants began their research into the financial conditions and the records of the public records of Chilton County.

Found Little Light

On the first and second examinations of the books, the examiners found little light, but a number of shadows. At my request, and with my cooperation, the books were gone over again and again, with the spotlights placed on these shadows. I hope that this long report now obtained now shows the complete story of the period under review.

As regards the charges made against me, I am innocent. If there is any guilt anywhere, it is because of the deceit of others. I await trial with confidence, certain that my name will be cleared.

My last statement is to my friends in Chilton County and over the State of Alabama.

I am very grateful and thankful for the intense interest they have manifested in my behalf during the progress of the investigation.

If this audit has accomplished my aim, and fulfilled the promise to my friends, I am indeed happy.

—Judge W. L. Parrish

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Since the quail season opens Thursday, November 24, it brings to mind that more should de done in this county to conserve this form of wildlife. In addition to furnishing you the sport of hunting, these birds are also great eaters of harmful insects. One of the best ways to do this is to establish and maintain a wildlife border.

These borders are made up of lespedeza bicolor, partridge peas, and lespedeza sericea. They are planted next to the woods on land that is sapped by trees. This is poor crop land, but is ideal for wildlife borders. These borders also hold down erosion that usually occurs in these places and they make an excellent turn row.

To date there have been 220 acres of wildlife borders planned and 60 acres established by farmers cooperating with the North Central Soil Conservation District. The following farmers are among those that have already established wildlife borders: Welch Roebuck, Pete McGraw, and Tolbert Roseberry of the Sardis Coommunity. Joe Gibson, G. L. Boyd and A. L. Brown, of Verbena; J. N. Dennis, R. R. Crow, G. W. Orten, and Rubin Popwell, of Clanton; C. R. Childress, O. A. Posey, Napoleon Posey, Nolen Smitherman, and A. L. Lenoir, of Posey's Cross Roads. R. O. Williams, and Cleo Cofer, of Collins Chapel; Milton H. Hubbard and Millery J. Bolton of Pates Chapel.

Hillery J. Bolton of Pates Chapel states that he found two covies of quail feeding in his wildlife border the fall of 1948 after it was planted in the spring of 1948.

The lespedeza bicolor and partridge peas will be furnished to the cooperators by the State Department of Conservation through the North Central Soil Conservation District. The seed will be given to the farmers in the spring as soon as they get their land prepared and fertilized.

If you would like to increase your bird population by planting one of these borders contact your local Soil Conservationist, Olin G. Fields, for full information.

PASTURE LAND

Now is the time to "clean up" pasture land and get the seedbed prepared for seeding in February or March. If lime is needed it should be applied during land preparation. If land is turned this fall, clods pulverized, and land smoothed, the only preparation needed next spring will be to freshen the crust with a section harrow or weeder just ahead of sowing the seed.

MACEDONIA

"Clean Out Your Home." Rev. Hymon Atcheson gave us all a very interesting message. Clean out our home and get rid of the things that belong to satan. Give him what is his, but be sure and keep that which belongs to God. Today more than ever before parents should realize that there is no time to lose in teaching children the way to the Pearly Gates. If he receives a college education, or becomes world-famous and then loses his own soul, what then has he gained?

Rev. and Mrs. Hymon Atcheson, Wayne and Jerry; Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Oates, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davenport, Allen and Alton; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rasberry, Hansel and Himan, enjoyed the fine fellowship and good eats at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hayes, Douglas, Harold and David, Sunday. Their afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. A. Atcheson and Linda.

Misses Athlone and Muril Ray spent Sunday with Miss Nolvis Mims. Their afternoon visitors were Messrs. Proctor Davenport, Jimmy Crowson, Hansel Rasberry and Douglas Hayes; Misses Nell Hayes, Barbara and Muralene Pullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Claudie Mims' Sunday afternoon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mims and Betty Carol of Mt. Nebo Community.

Friends, Thanksgiving Day has just passed, but let us not forget to give thanks every day of our lives, because we would'nt want God to forget to bless us except on Sunday and Thanksgiving.

The evening message following B.T. U. was given and received very well. The title, "Sin," which lurks about us all every hour. Trouble and heartaches belong to satan. Nevertheless, he bestows that sort of blessing upon us when we fail to have enough faith in God. So, let's cleanse our heart of ungodliness, then our home, and go to church somewhere next Sunday.

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months after final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months after final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"(A) In addition to any taxes now authorized, or that may be hereafter authorized, by the Constitution and laws of Alabama, there is hereby levied a special school tax of fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in the school tax district of the City of Huntsville in Madison County to be used solely for public school purposes; provided such tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the said school tax district in which such tax is to be collected and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election; otherwise said tax shall not be collected. A special separate election is hereby called on the first Tuesday after sixty days following the date of this Amendment becomes effective in the school tax district of the City of Huntsville in Madison County, at which election the qualified voters in the said school tax district of Madison County may vote as to whether said special school tax herein levied shall be effective; and if the majority of those voting at said election vote in favor of said special school tax such school tax shall immediately be levied and collected annually thereafter on the first day of October by the Tax Collector of Madison County and paid to the City of Huntsville. The proceeds of the tax are hereby pledged solely to the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds hereinafter provided for. This section shall be self-executing.

"(B) After said tax has been voted, and without further authorization the City of Huntsville shall issue and sell interest bearing bonds with principal and interest to be paid from the proceeds of the tax herein levied. The proceeds of the sale of the bonds shall be used for the sole purpose of constructing and improving school buildings and acquiring sites therefor; provided, the net proceeds of the bonds shall be paid immediately to the Board of Education of the City of Huntsville. The principal amount of the bonds shall in no event exceed the sum of five hundred seventy-five thousand dollars ($575,000). All bonds issued hereunder shall be payable in annual installments, the first of which shall be payable not more than two years after the date of the bonds, and the last within the period of usefulness of the improvements for which the bonds are issued. Such bonds shall be callable at any time upon the payment of the principal amount thereof plus a premium equal to one year's interest thereon. The bonds shall not be a general obligation of the City of Huntsville or of Madison County and shall not be charged to the constitutional debt limit of the City of Huntsville or Madison County.

"(C) If sufficient revenue has been produced by the tax levied in paragraph (A) of this Amendment to pay the principal amount of the bonds issued hereunder with interest thereon prior to the expiration of the period for which the tax was levied, the tax shall immediately cease and shall no longer be collected or enforced, and the bonds shall be redeemed forthwith.

"(D) Except as herein otherwise provided the election hereinabove provided for shall be called, held and conducted as provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of district school tax elections. The governing body of the City of Huntsville shall appoint and designate the officers, managers, clerks and returning officers and shall call, canvass, tabulate, and declare the result of the election provided for in the City of Huntsville. The election shall otherwise be conducted held, canvassed, tabulated and the results declared as general elections are conducted, held, canvassed, tabulated and the results declared in Alabama."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State, at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of October 1949.

TRY SKILL AT MAKING CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Christmas presents mean more to those who receive them if they are made by the giver, believes Levice Elis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist.

For children, she points out that there are toys and dolls galore which can be made from bright scraps of materials such as bath towels, gay prints, and plastics. Patterns can be purchased from almost any commercial company.

As for the older children or grownups, many homemade articles will be appropriate—quilted slides or bedroom slippers, purses, hats, beanies, knitted sweaters, felt jerkins, and other accesories, collars, dickeys, and lapel do-dads of all kinds and descriptions.

"With goods on the market fairly expensive," adds Miss Ellis, "the wise person will plan ahead and make as many gifts at home as possible."

PORTABLE CALF PENS

Workers at the Animal Disease Research Laboratory, Auburn, Alabama, have raised calves free from pneumonia, Johne's disease, worm parasites, and clinical coccidiosis by placing each calf in a portable pen within 24 hours after birth and by moving the pen to new ground every week.

TRAPPING

Mink and muskrat prices have advanced 10 to 15 per cent over prices of previous seasons.

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said Amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December, 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"(a) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto heretofore adopted, the Governor shall from time to time issue negotiable interest bearing bonds for the purposes and in the manner and subject to the limitations stated in this amendment. The bonds shall be the general obligation of the State of Alabama and the full faith and credit and taxing power of the State are hereby pledged to the punctual payment of the bonds and the interest thereon. The aggregate principal amount of all bonds issued hereunder shall not exceed two million dollars ($2,000,000) and they shall mature within ten years from the date of issuance.

"The proceeds from the sale of such bonds are hereby appropriated and shall be used solely for the construction of hospitals and hospital facilities pursuant to Act No. 211, S. [illegible], approved July 7, 1945 (General Acts of Alabama, 1945, page 330), or any act supplemental thereto or amendatory thereof; provided, that the funds appropriated hereby shall be used only for the construction of hospitals, clinics, or health centers under contracts which have been or are let on or after May 1, 1949, and that the funds shall be used to match federal funds available for hospital, clinic or health center purposes, and that the local governments in the area where each hospital, clinic or health center is to be built shall contribute at least as much money for the construction as does the State; and provided further that the State shall not contribute more than three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000) to the construction of any one hospital, clinic or health center.

"In determining where a hospital, clinic or health center to be constructed with the funds appropriated herein shall be located, first consideration shall be given to communities which have no hospital, clinic or health center facilities. Each county having no hospital, clinic or health center facilities shall be entitled to an allotment of not less than sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) for such facilities if application is made therefor before January 1 of each year. Any funds available for hospital, clinic or health center facilities remaining on January 1 of each year after allotments have been made to those counties having no such facilities and having not already received an allotment and which have made application therefor may be alloted to those counties having such facilities which have made application therefor. However, counties receiving prior allotments hereunder shall not be precluded from receiving a larger allotment or an additional allotment at the discretion of the State Board of Health.

"District tuberculosis sanitoria in the districts set up in Act No. 287, S. 22, approved July 7, 1945, shall be eligible for construction under the provisions of this amendment, and 25 percent of the proceeds from the sale of bonds authorized by this Amendment shall be reserved for the construction of tuberculosis sanitoria; provided, at the end of each calendar year funds not obligated for either general or tuberculosis hospital construction may be used during the next year for either type construction; and provided further, that the local government or authorities in the area where the sanitorium is to be built shall contribute at least as much money as does the State. A sum not to exceed forty thousand dollars ($40,000) may be used by the State Board of Health for hospital administration for each of the two (2) years ending in 1950 and 1951; this appropriation shall be cumulative.

"(b) All bonds issued hereunder and the interest thereon shall be payable from any funds in the State treasury not otherwise appropriated. The bonds shall be payable in substantially equal installments of principal and interest beginning in the next fiscal year after their date; they shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding two percent per annum payable semiannually; and they shall contain a provision for their call for payment at such a time or times prior to maturity, and at such a premium, if any, as the Governor may prescribe. All bonds, issued hereunder shall be sold to the highest bidder at a duly advertised public sale, on sealed bids or at auction, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest; provided, bidders may be invited to name the rate of interest which the bonds are to bear, in which case the bonds shall not be sold at a price which would yield more than two percent according to standard bond tables, taking into account the discount and call privilege."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State, at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of October, 1949.

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the 1949 Regular Session of th Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the 1949 Regular Session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"This amendment shall apply in all counties except Mobile and Jefferson Counties. The term "public hospital purposes" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities. The term "public hospital facilities" as used in this amendment shall be construed to include public hospitals, public clinics, public health centers, nurses' homes and training facilities, and related public health facilities of any kind.

"If a majority of the qualified electors of any county in the state, except Mobile and Jefferson Counties, who participate in an election held therein pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted shall vote at such election in favor of the levy and collection of a special county tax, within the limitations provided in such amendment, for any one or more of the purposes, included within meaning of the term public hospital purposes, the proceeds derived from the tax authorized at such election may be applied for any one or more of the purposes for which said tax may be so voted. Whenever the tax shall be voted the governing body of the county may anticipate the proceeds therefrom for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall be voted by issuing, without further election, interest bearing tax anticipation bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said county payable solely from and secured by a pledge of not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeds from said tax received by the county.

"The governing body of each county in which the said tax may be voted shall have the further power to designate as the agency of the county to acquire, construct, equip, operate and maintain public hospital facilities any public corporation heretofore or hereafter organized for hospital purposes in the county under any general law heretofore or hereafter enacted by the Legislature. When a public corporation shall be so designated, the proceeds of said tax thereafter collected shall be paid over to it and shall be used by it for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted; provided, that payment of the proceeds of said tax to said public corporation shall be made only to such extent as will not result in the impairment of the obligation of any contract theretofore made with respect to said tax. Said public corporation may anticipate the proceeds from said tax so required to be paid to it by issuing, for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted, the bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said public corporation, and may pledge for the payment of the principal thereof and interest thereon not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeeds from said tax so paid to it.

"Each county in which the tax shall be voted and in the event a public corporation shall have been designated as the agency of such county pursuant to the provisions hereof then said public corporation, shall have the power to contract with any other county or similar public corporation with respect to the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities outside of the county and within any zone or region of which the county may be a part, and which may have heretofore been established or may hereafter be established for public hospital purposes by the Legislature or by any agency designated by it, the obligations of such contract to be payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax; provided, that the proceeds of said tax shall not be used outside of the county for any purpose for which the proceeds could not be used in the county, and shall not be used with respect to public hospital facilities located outside of the county if the tax is voted specifically for public hospital facilities located in the county.

"No securities issued or contracts made by a county under the authority of this amendment, which are payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax, and no securities issued or contracts made by any such public corporation, whether or not issued or made under the authority of this amendment, shall be construed to be bonds of the county or of a political subdivision thereof within the meaning of Section 222 of the Constitution, or construed to create or constitute an indebtedness of the county within the meaning of Section 224 of the constitution. Said securities shall be construed to be negotiable instruments notwithstanding the fact that they may be payable solely from a limited source. All pledges of said tax and all contracts made with respect thereto pursuant to the provisions of this amendment shall take precedence in the order in which they are made and shall create a charge on the proceeds of said tax prior to the expenses of operating and maintaining any public hospital facilities.

"In each instance in which a special county tax for any one or more of the purposes included within the meaning of the term public hospital purposes has heretofore been authorized at an election held in a county pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted, all provisions of this amendment shall be applicable in said county to the same extent as if said election had been held after the adoption of this amendment.

"This amendment shall be self-executing."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

HANDBOOK FOR FARMERS AND GARDENERS READY

Auburn, Ala. — A completely-indexed handbook that contains most everything a farmer or gardener would want to know about agriculture may be obtained from the local county agent.

Facts found in the book are based upon scientific research carried out by the A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station and on-the-farm experiences.

In addition to Alabama requests for the handbook, orders have been received from Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Missouri, Louisiana, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Alaska, Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines.

Stop by the county agent's office and pick up a copy of the 388-page Handbook of Alabama Agriculture.

SHAPING PEACH TREES BY PRUNING PROPERLY

The first three years of pruning peach trees should be a matter of spreading them out and maintaining an open top.

Explaining this statement, J. C. Ford, A.P.I. Extension Service orchard specialist, says that trees should be pruned so they will grow a balanced frame of strong main branches with plenty of smaller fruiting limbs evenly distributed.

In building the frame of main branches, Ford recommends the three-three-three system. In other words, three main branches from the original trunk; three branches from each of these making nine; ;and three from each of the nine making 27.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Sudsless detergents result in more efficient performance in automatic washers than do sudsy soaps. Suds buffer the washing action and there is not enough water to remove them.

HERE'S WAY TO MAKE DUSTLESS DUST CLOTH

Auburn, Ala. — A cloth that will pick up dust and hold it is what most homemakers want in a dust cloth.

"Here's how to make one," says Alice Peavy, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist. "First obtain a one-half yard square of hemmed cheesecloth, medium grade. To one quart of boiling water, add one tablespoon linseed oil, one tablespoon kerosene, and one tablespoon turpentine. Keep this mixture in a closed container. After it cools, soak the cloth thoroughly in the solution, wring it out, and hang it up to dry. Wash when necessary and repeat treatment."

NATURE'S BEST RAT TRAPS OFTEN KILLED

Auburn, Ala. — Nature provides a much better rat trap than the farmer when owls, hawks, skunks, snakes and weasels are allowed on the farm.

Many of these "live" rat traps are often killed by the farmer for the sheer pleasure of killing. However, since they eat mice that have been known to destroy as much as 50 per cent of the corn shocked in a field and as much as 75 per cent of an alfalfa crop, Earl F. Kennamer, A.P.I Extension Service wildlife specialist, urges that they not be killed. All these animals ask in return is a little protection—which they should get unless they begin to raid the chicken yard.

FARMERS MAKE USE OF P.M.A. FUNDS

Records indicate that Alabama farmers will make a good showing in the use of Production and Marketing Administration funds available to them this year.

According to D. R. Harbor, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist, here are some of the things which may be done with approval of the P.M.A. county committee between now and January 1. Farmers may apply one or more of the following on permanent pastures: Superphosphate, basic slag, potash, 0-14-10, and lime. Also, lime may be used on cropland.

Harbor adds that if you have approval from your county committee to carry out one or more P.M.A. practices and have not yet done so, now is the time to do this work or change the practices to ones that can be carried out before January 1, 1950.

To remove onion odor from your hands, "soap" them with an unpeeled raw potato in cold running water.

These Things Will Happen If The Anti-Trust Lawyers Have Their Way

When the anti-trust lawyers from Washington filed their suit against A&P, we told the American people, our customers, our suppliers and our employees how this attack would affect them.

We said that this attack, if successful, would mean the end of A&P as you know it.

We said that it would mean higher food prices for American consumers.

We said that if they succeed in destroying A&P the way would be cleared for the destruction of other efficient large-scale retailers.

We thought the American people were entitled to know about this threat to their welfare and standard of living.

Since that time, however, the anti-trust lawyers have been making speeches, talking over the radio, writing letters and giving stories to the newspapers, in which they say we are all wrong.

They say that this suit will not close a single A&P store; and that instead of raising food prices it will lower them.

And they have tried to give the impression that nobody will be hurt by this decision except the present owners of A&P.

We don't think that the American people want to be confused by these statements. We know that when they have the facts, they will understand that this case can affect the living standards and the way of life of every American citizen.

Here are the facts:

It Will Destroy A&P

The anti-trust lawyers have repeatedly stated that "the suit will not result in the closing of a single A&P store", and that "the purpose of the suit is to enjoin A&P from continuing activity which has been held to violate the law."

The fact is that the suit is designed not only to "enjoin" A&P from alleged illegal activities, but actually to destroy the company.

Here is what they have asked the court to do:

Break up A&P's retail stores into seven groups, each of which must be sold to different owners, and operated under new management.

Order us to sell A&P's factories, which produce many of the fine foods you find in our stores, to still other new owners.

Prevent any of the seven groups of stores from operating any of the factories.

None of the present owners, who have made A&P what it is today, can have anything to do with either the stores or the factories.

The first A&P store was opened 90 years ago. For the past 50 years the company has been managed by George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford.

These are the men who have pioneered the policy of low-cost, low-profit, low-price food retailing which has won A&P the patronage of millions of American families and given them more good food for their money.

If the anti-trust lawyers have their way, these men and other company executives will be completely out of the picture. No one can predict what the policies of the new owners of the various parts of A&P will be.

No one can predict that they will sell the same quality food at the same low prices, or that they will keep the same employees, or give them the same high wages, short hours, pensions and security.

Nor, despite the anti-trust lawyers' statement, can anyone tell how many A&P stores will remain open or will be closed.

So, while there may be a food store where your A&P is now located, it won't be your A&P store.

Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers win their suit it will mean the end of A&P as you know it.

Your Food Will Cost More

The anti-trust lawyers have repeatedly stated that the suit will not increase, but should decrease, grocery prices.

Anybody who has ever shopped in an A&P store, or has ever taken a high-school course in economics, knows better than that.

Everyone knows that A&P's policy has always been to keep costs and profits at a minimum so that it can sell good food cheap.

The very heart of the anti-trust lawyers' case is that A&P's methods, which they claim are illegal, have enabled the company to undersell competitors.

How can anyone possibly say that you will get lower food prices by eliminating the company that has done so much to bring them down?

Actually, there is no question that this suit, if successful, will mean higher food prices for A&P customers.

Here is just one of a number of reasons:

We manufacture many of the quality foods we sell in our stores, such as Bokar, Red Circle and Eight O'Clock coffees, Ann Page foods, White House milk, and many others.

The anti-trust lawyers admit that we pass along these manufacturing savings to our customers in the form of lower prices.

But, the anti-trust lawyers have asked the court to order us to get rid of our manufacturing facilities, which would put an end to all these savings.

This means that if these A&P brands continued to be manufactured, you would have to pay higher prices for them wherever you found them.

The anti-trust lawyers say that food prices would go down in other stores. They claim that food manufacturers would be able to sell cheaper to other grocers because they would not have to make up alleged losses they now incur in selling to A&P.

This, of course, is pure nonsense. The suppliers who voluntarily seek our business and are now rushing to our defense obviously find it profitable to deal with A&P. Actually, their sales to this company enable them to build up their volume, reduce their costs, and sell more cheaply to all grocers.

The elimination of A&P from the picture would tend to increase, rather than decrease, the wholesale cost of food; and this, in turn, will be reflected in increases in retail prices.

Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in putting A&P out of business you will find your food bill is higher.

Others Will Be Hurt

The anti-trust lawyers have insisted that this suit will not affect other distributors, "nor will it destroy any efficiencies of mass distribution."

The fact is that the anti-trust lawyers ask the court to break up the company, make it get rid of its admittedly legal manufacturing operations and in general destroy many of the efficiencies which have enabled it to sell food cheaper.

If such an attack is successful, it immediately raises the likelihood of similar attacks on other chain stores.

The anti-trust lawyers are saying that they "do not contemplate any other suits of this nature at this time."

But that does not mean that they cannot undertake such suits at any future time if they win this case.

As a matter of fact, the anti-trust lawyers made practically the same allegations against two of our largest competitors that they are making against us.

And it can also be used as the basis for an attack against other grocers and merchants in other lines.

There are today literally thousands of chain stores, voluntary groups and individual merchants operating with the same methods and in the same pattern here under attack.

If A&P is destroyed, no businessman could safely pursue an aggressive sales policy designed to lower prices and give his customers a better deal if by so doing he takes business away from any competitor.

Even if the anti-trust lawyers have no intention now of prosecuting other suits, a decision against A&P will establish a precedent that could be used by the present anti-trust lawyers, or any future anti-trust lawyers, to destroy any efficient business that buys cheaply, sells cheaply, and grows big in the process.

Such a decision would mean the end of the vigorous, healthy price competition which has given this country the highest standard of living ever enjoyed by any people anywhere in the history of the world.

The anti-trust lawyers are trying to give a new interpretation to the anti-trust laws that, instead of preserving competition, will reduce competition.

They are trying, by court decision, to impose a new kind of economic policy on the people of this country.

Make no mistake about it. If they succeed in destroying A&P they will be destroying the method of distribution that has helped make the American standard of living the envy of the world.

Proposed Constitutional Amendments

The Legislature of Alabama has submitted to the State's voters nine proposed amendments to the Constitution, to be acted upon December 13. Two of the proposals are extremely important and of statewide interest, particularly in counties and communities faced with the financing of hospital facilities. The others are local. All of the proposed amendments seem to us to be sound and to deserve the support of the voting public.

For the benefit of our municipal readers, we present here the summary of the proposals recently prepared and published by The Dothan Eagle:

"Amendment No. One would permit the Governor to issue $2,000,000 in bonds to be paid back over a ten-year period out of State revenue with the money earmarked for matching Federal hospital funds. This $2,000,000 available for eventual hospital spending in Alabama for this reason:

"This State money, before being matched by Federal funds, would have to be matched by local funds which means a total of $4,000,000. Federal money would be matched at the rate of two-to-one, or $8,000,000. Thus the State's $2,000,000 and the local matching of $2,000,000 adds up to $12,000,000 when the Federal government's $8,000,000 is included.

"No. Two — To let Marion County issue hospital bonds just like No. Three permits all counties to do. Marion County wanted this amendment just in case No. Three fails to pass.

"Amendment No. Three would permit counties, except Jefferson and Mobile, to spend local hospital tax revenue in advance of its collection. In other words, Houston County could float bonds to put up its share of a hospital's cost and pledge the ad valorem tax recently approved by voters for payment of the bonds. A general law passed by the 1949 legislature authorizes the same thing, but approval of the amendment would clear up any question of the constitutionality of such financing.

"No. Four — Would let the legislature fix and regulate fees, commissions, and allowances of Franklin County officials. In other words, put them on a salary basis.

"No. Five — Prohibit Phenix City from granting utility franchises longer than 30 years.

"No. Six — Authorize St. Clair County to levy a special five-mill school tax.

"No. Seven — Authorize Cherokee County to levy a similiar tax.

"No. Eight — Provide for creation of a special school district taking in the town of Courtland in Lawrence County and for issuance of $100,000 in bonds to build a new school. The county would be authorized to levy a special five-mill district tax to pay off the bonds.

"No. Nine — Authorize Madison County to vote a five-mill school tax for the school district in which the City of Huntsville is located." — Local Government Journal.

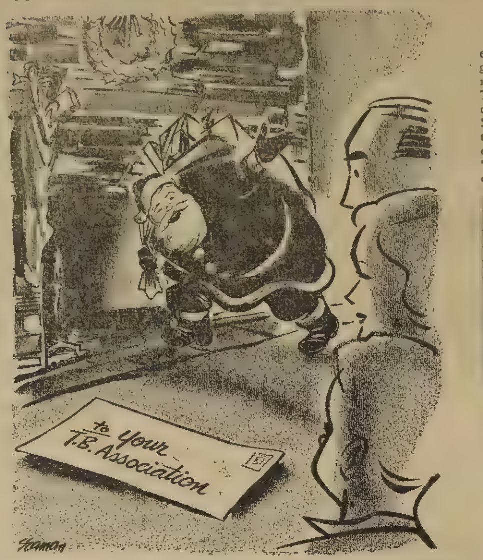
Merry Christmas! And Don't Forget to Mail That Christmas Seal Letter!



Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

After all these years we received our first letter from Santa Claus this week. We have written plenty. Hundreds have been handed us to "mail" through the years, but now we have received one. It was mailed last Friday by the Sherrods who were visiting in Santa Claus, Ind. Mrs. Sherrod's folks live there, or near there. Well, now having proof there is a Santa Claus, we will get down to writing that letter we had postponed mailing since we were ten years old.

J. E. Easterling says not to mention the new lighting effect in the windows and about the front of his Dixie Cafe. So-o-o, we'll skip the whole thing. Couldn't possibly throw any light on a fancy job like that anyway.

"Chick" Wade, Jr., spent the week with his grandparents in Oneonta the other week. Mr. and Mrs. Wade spent the week end there and little 'Chick" remained for a week. That, you might say isn't news, and you would be right —except for the fact that "Chick," Jr., is only six weeks old.

Millard Lancaster was in to visit with us this week. Millard and his Missus are going to California on the tenth. They will make the trip with Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson who are going out to visit their children and to see the Rose Bowl football game. Millard tells us he will not come back with the Woodsons and Mrs. Lancaster, but will fly back on December 21st to be at the Rebel for the Christmas rush.

Cohen Stapp and the Country Club Turkey Shoot Committee really double crossed us about that turkey shoot down there last week. After we had already run our story about the "shoot," they changed the date of same, and held it a week sooner than had been announced and planned. Of course they were right in changing the date as November 23, was too close to Thanksgiving to hold a turkey shoot. Winners wouldn't have had time to prepare their bird in time for the big event.

Starting a series of articles in the Chilton County News this week, "Builders Of Clanton." In this series we will give you the background of our leading citizens, and hope you can get to know them better. One will appear each week. Watch for them.

Our deepest sympathy to the Marcus Polk family in their trouble. Buddy was seriously injured in an accident last Friday when a companion shot him with a double barreled shotgun. As this is written he is dangeriously ill in a Birmingham hospital. His right arm has already been taken off at the shoulder. His many friends, and friends of the Polk family, are deeply grieved at the seriousness of his condition.

Danger Signals Of Cancer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles on the symptoms of early cancer, furnished the Chilton County News by members of the Chilton County Medical Society:

Red always has been a sign of danger.

But danger, when recognized, means safety.

In secretions from the body, red or reddish-brown tinges are always a sign that something has gone wrong, and should demand immediate attention by a competent doctor.

Unnatural and irregular bleeding or discharge from the body is an important symptom that must be recognized by the general public if significant progress is to be made in bringing cancer under control.

Among women, more cancers develop in the reproductive organs than in any other part of the body. Usually the first symptom is irregular bleeding or "spotting," or a brownish-tinged discharge. Usually there is no pain, and most patients tend to ignore this symptom that could mean the difference between life and death to them.

Fortunately, most cancers of the reproductive organs are curable if discovered and treated by a competent physician during their early stages.

Presence of blood in the urine also is an important symptom that should not be ignored. Frequently, it indicates cancer of the kidney or the bladder. And it always indicates the presence of some adnormal condition that should be corrected.

Bloody discharge, usually mixed with the stool, also can indicate cancer of the colon or the rectum. No patient should ignore this symptom in the belief that it is only "bleeding piles."

In all cases of abnormal bleeding or blood-tinged secretions, the patient should seek medical advice. The fact that the bleeding stops should not be taken by the patient to mean that his trouble is not serious. In cases of cancer, bleeding is characteristically intermittent. Because it stops for a time does not mean that its cause has been removed.

Tinges of blood in phlegm that is coughed up, also is a signal for examination by a competent doctor. This can be a symptom of cancer of the lung or other parts of the respiratory system. It also can be a symptom of other serious diseases in the same region and should not be ignored. No matter what the trouble may be, early diagnosis and treatment greatly increases the chances of cure.

The fourth article in this series will appear in the Chilton County News next week. 1950 COTTON

Farmers who have to buy planting seed should place orders for breeder or certified cotton seed now.

CROP RESIDUES

Crop residues, not burned but disced into the soil, not only assist in maintaining soil fertility and organic matter but have the effect of making the soil more friable and increase its water holding capacity.

The Tongue

The tongue of man has great power. What would we do without a tongue? We could not talk, eat, or sing, not even cry if we had no tongue. The power which lies in the tongue can cause life and it can cause death. Surely the Bible is right in saying that, "Death and life are in the power of the tongue." Some one has said, "Give not thy tongue too great a liberty, lest it take thee prisoner." The tongue holds many in prison today. They would be free men and women if they had not given their tongues too great a liberty, too free with their words. Some men have made fortunes with the power of their virtues; others with the power of their tongue. But whether fortunes are made by virtue, or by tongue, they can be lost quickly by the power of the tongue.

A. T. HICKMAN

The apostle James speaks of the tongue as a little member that boasteth great things. And it is true the tongue can be responsible for great pleasure in life, or it can be responsible for great trouble. Just as a little fire can so spread and cause great damage so can the tongue kindle strife and hate, and even cause death and bloodshed which is not gotten over in a life time. For the word unspoken is like a sword in the scabbard, but how quickly it can be vented and then the damage is done. Friend, if you desire to be wise, be so wise as to hold thy tongue. James further speaks of the tongue as a fire, and a world of iniquity. He compares it to beasts, birds and serpents. And while all these can be tamed, and are tamed by man, yet the tongue can no man tame. For it is an unruly evil, and full of deadly poison.

Now, if any man seem to be religious, and cannot bridle or hold his tongue, this man's religion is vain. So guard against the evil power that is in thy tongue if it be given too great a liberty. Commit this unruly member to God, and to the power of his grace then your words will be fitly spoken, and will be like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HUNTING

The small game season is open in Alabama. Large animals will be shot, too—namely, humans. Almost 1,000 persons are shot fatally by accident in the United States every year, and these deaths listed as accidental result mainly from carelessness. More than a third of accidental deaths by firearms occurs in the last three months of the year.

The first day of the hunting season in Alabama usually sees many accidental shootings of humans. Hunters are trigger-happy, over-enthusiastic, they forget the rules of safety.

About half of the gunshot wounds gotten by hunters in the field are self-inflicted. A hunter stumbles or falls and his gun is fired. He climbs through a fence or over a fallen tree and the loaded gun catches on something and is discharged. He hurriedly lifts a gun from an automobile and it goes off.

Every gun should be treated with the respect due a loaded and death dealing weapon. Never point a gun at anything you do not wish to shoot. Do not mix gunpowder with alcohol. Do not mistake the hunter for the hunted.

"Something moved in that bush—shoot it!"

"Sorry, pal, I thought you were a rabbit!"

Don't be a party to such a disaster —either the one shot or the one shooting.

WINTER HEN HOUSE

Provide good ventilation without drafts in the hen house this winter by closing all ventilators on three sides of the house and allowing the fourth side to remain open.

QUALITY PECANS

Pecans should be harvested regularly. Do not leave them on the ground for more than two or three days, especially in rainy weather.

If You Are 85, 45 or 3, Hadacol Helps All Ages

HADACOL is good for all ages, bringing five of nature's B vitamins and important minerals to the young and old alike. Recently the HADACOL folks received the good news that among the countless thousands who had been benefited by HADACOL were a lady of 85, a man of 45 who felt like he was 18, and a beautiful little girl only three years old.

Mrs. Edmond Doucet, of Church Point, La., is 85 years old, having thousands of friends in the picturesque Evangeline section of Louisiana where she was born and has spent all of her life. These friends are happy to know that Mrs. Doucet feels better now than at any time in two years and gives the credit to HADACOL.

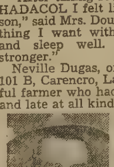
MRS. DOUCET

"I had been sick for almost two years and was suffering with gastric disturbances and bloating. I was run down, had lost weight and had to stay in bed most of the time. I lost courage and felt that there was no hope for me."

Mrs. Doucet had tried many preparations without apparent beneficial results when she heard the glorious news about HADACOL.

"After taking several bottles of HADACOL I felt like a new person," said Mrs. Doucet. "I eat anything I want without ill effects and sleep well. I feel much stronger."

Neville Dugas, of Route 1, Box 101 B, Carencro, La., is a successful farmer who had worked early and late at all kinds of hard work and it wasn't so long ago that he wondered if he would ever be able to work that way again. He had tried many medicines, but felt no better.



MR. DUGAS

"I had all kinds of stomach disturbances," said Mr. Dugas. "My stomach was so bloated that it felt like it would swell up and burst. I suffered with gastric disturbances, heartburn and was run down and nervous. I had no appetite and suffered with headaches and I couldn't sleep at night. I was so drawn and pale that my friends had difficulty in recognizing me. After the third bottle of HADACOL I felt a real improvement and after the twelfth bottle of HADACOL I felt like I was 18 instead of 45. I am feeling perfectly well."

"My three year old daughter, Joan, had lost her appetite," said Mr. Dugas. "Her cheeks were pale and she cried often. I started giving Joan HADACOL and after three of the large economy size bottles she is now healthy, has an excellent appetite and her disposition is perfect."

JOAN

All three of these people were suffering from a lack of B vitamins and the minerals which HADACOL contains. HADACOL comes to you in liquid form, easily assimilated in the blood stream so that it can go to work right away. It is easy to understand, therefore, why countless thousands have been benefited by this amazing tonic, HADACOL.

A lack of only a small amount of B vitamins and certain minerals will cause digestive disturbances . . . Your food will not agree with you. . . . You will have an upset stomach. . . . You will suffer from heartburn, gas pains and your food will sour on your stomach and you will not be able to eat the things you like for fear of being in misery afterwards. Many people also suffer from constipation. And while these symptoms may be the results of other causes, they are surely and certainly the symptoms and signs of lack of B vitamins and minerals which HADACOL contains. And if you suffer from such a deficiency disorder, there is no known cure except the administration of the vitamins and minerals which your system lacks.

It is easy to understand, therefore, why countless thousands have been benefited by this amazing tonic, HADACOL.

So it matters not how old you are or who you are . . . it matters not where you live or if you have tried all the medicines under the sun, give this wonderful preparation, HADACOL, a trial. Don't go on suffering. Don't continue to lead a miserable life. Many persons who have suffered and waited for 10 to 20 years or even longer, are able now to live happy, comfortable lives because HADACOL supplied the vitamins and minerals which their systems needed. Be fair to yourself. Temporary relief is not enough for you. Give HADACOL a trial!—Adv

Two Youths Confess Holdup Slaying Of Andrew Price

Sheriff J. A. Nivens is holding two Birmingham youths in the county jail here on charges of murder and robbery, following the holdup and killing of Andrew M. Price, 53, last Thursday night.

Full confessions have been signed by the two youths, whose participation in the holdup-slaying of the Chilton County herb doctor set off a full-scale manhunt in central Alabama.

Sheriff Nivens identified the two men as James L. Lawley, 19, and William R. McDonald, 20, both of Birmingham.

The sheriff said McDonald admitted shooting Price, who was slain while giving chase to the two men who had robbed him of about $500.

A running three-mile gun battle followed the holdup, and that night Lawley was captured. The 11-hour manhunt ended in a wooded area in Shelby County near Pelham, when McDonald was captured by highway patrolmen, county officers and state investigators.

Additional charges of assault with intent to murder and robbery are placed against McDonald for an attack last Thursday evening on Reese Mims of Clanton, who was robbed of his automobile by a masked man.

Price Funeral Held

Funeral services for Mr. Price were held at 11:00 a.m. Sunday morning in Tuscaloosa at Wilcutt's Memorial Tabernacle. The Rev. C. C. Wilcutt and the Rev. Tillery officiated.

Mr. Price was a member of the Jemison Lodge, A.F. & A.M.

Jemison Masons acted as pallbearers, with J. Mell Martin & Sons in charge.

Mr. Price is survived by his wife, Mrs. Christi Price; a sister, Mrs. Sally J. Tillery; two sons, Bruce and Llewellyn; and five daughters, Gwendolyn, Barbara Jean, Joan, Moseata and Mausella Price.

Also attending the meeting were several members of the Dallas County Council.

Yeager, chairman, James Carl Martin and Dr. Joe Earl Gowan; Finance, Reedie Taylor, chairman, Leo Thompson, Joe Graham, Howard Boockholdt and Jack Hayes; Organization and Extension, J. B. Buddy Polk Due Back

Buddy has been critically ill following amputation of his right arm about 10 days ago. He was accidentally shot in the shoulder while hunting on Thanksgiving Day.

Chilton Busy On Christmas Chest Drive

With about $400.00 donated and pledged already, the compaign for the Chilton County Christmas Chest has started off with a bang with the full committee ready to go to work this week under the guidance of Reverend A. T. Hickman, Christmas Chest chairman.

Final plans were mapped at a meeting of the committees in the studios of WKLF last Monday night. At the same time the chairmen of the finance committees and the publicity committees made their reports of what already had been done and planned. Outlines for the other commitees were made by the Chest Chairman and their functions are expected to be already in progress.

The finance committee chairman, Russell Williams, made public the following donations that have already been made: Mr. Hick's Sunday School Class, $100.00; Pilot Club of Clanton, $25.00; the V. J. Elmore Store of Clanton, $25.00; the Pure Oil Company $25.00; the Clanton Methodist Church, $50.00; Miss Ethel Alexander DeBose, $5.00; the Hill Grocery Company, $50.00; the Clanton Baptist Church, $100.00. The total of this amount along with the balance left from last year's donations bring the total so far to about $400.00.

Rev. Hickman announced to last Monday night's meeting that he expected the total drive will be well over $1,500. At the same time it was reported that toy donations were lagging behind and workers were urged to get all the available toys into the county schools as soon as possbile so that vocational departments will have as much time as possible for renovation before delivery time to Chilton County's needy children so that they

Forest Fires Reported Over County

Forest fires have been raging unchecked in the northeast and northwest sections of Chilton County, and uncontrolled fires in wooded areas are being reported almost every day.

During this season, which conservation authorities say is the worst during the year for such fires, citizens are requested to be extra careful in protecting the woods from damage caused by matches, cigarettes and untended trash fires.

Part of Chilton County's wealth is in its timber. It's of no use to anybody when it goes up in smoke.

You are urged to do everything you can to protect our forests.

Illness Of The Star Witness Forces Delay Of Trials

Special trials of 10 people accused of mishandling Chilton County funds have been postponed due to the illness of Mrs. Delene Wyatt, one of the defendants and star witness for the other accused persons.

Her case was indefinitely postponed by Special Trial Judge W. J. Haralson, of Fort Payne, after he heard doctor's testimony that Mrs. Wyatt was in West End Baptist Hospital in Birmingham facing a serious operation.

When lawyers for the other defendants declared that Mrs. Wyatt's testimony was necessary for full presentation of their cases, Judge Haralson postponed all the rest of the trials which had been set up, and the special court term ended the day it started.

"It wouldn't be fair in any of these cases to try them in the absence of Mrs. Wyatt," Judge Haralson declared.

He did not set a future date for resumption of trials, but the testimony of Dr. Byrn Williamson regarding Mrs. Wyatt's condition was that she could not attend court or do any physical work for 90 days.

In the doctor's opinion, Mrs. Wyatt might be able to stand trial in about six weeks after the operation.

But even after the operation, the doctor said, he could not guarantee that Mrs. Wyatt would not have a nervous breakdown.

Indictments against Mrs. Wyatt and nine others were handed out two weeks ago by a Chilton County Grand Jury, charging mishandling of county funds totaling $237,236.

Builders Of Clanton

MR. C. C. CRAIG

Over at the Western Auto Associate Store in Clanton, Mr. C. C. Craig has just finished up his 13th year in Chilton County.

In that time, he has well earned his title as one of the "Builders of Clanton."

Clanton has come a long way since the depression, and when "C.C."—or "Claud" as some of his friends call him—decided to settle here, it was after a lot of thinking.

He had been traveling the state and was looking for a place to settle down. Born in North Alabama, he knew every section of the state and had pretty well made up his mind that the Central section was going to be his final choice, but he didn't know just which community it would be.

"There's no doubt I was right when I picked Clanton," he told us. "Chilton County has made steady progress and looks set to keep on going strong."

"It's not a boom development that might fade away later," he continued. "This county is building on a firm foundation that our children and their children will enjoy benefits from."

Speaking of children, C. C. has three fine kids—C. C., Jr., who's in the second grade; Charles, who is three years old, and little Cecilia, his 16-months-old daughter.

C. C. married Elinor Kuhn, of Ensley, and they make their home out on the Selma Road.

One of the finest assortments of fishing tackle anywhere in the state is on display at the Western Auto Associate Store on Highway 31. C. C. likes fishing himself — says it gives him plenty of time to think—and his store specializes in sporting equipment as well as automobile supplies, electric appliances and other lines.

As owner and operator of the store, C. C. has watched Clanton get "bigger and better"—and he is satisfied that there's steady growth and progress in the years ahead.

Chilton County TrainingSchool Burns to Ashes

The Chilton County Training School for Negroes burned to the ground Tuesday night about seven o'clock. Nothing was saved but the vocational department. The estimated loss was put at around twenty-five thousand dollars by Superintendent of Education Howard Boockholdt.

Temporary plans are for the senior high school to hold classes in the remaining vocational education building and the junior grades and elementary grades will attend classes at the Clanton Colored School.

Just two years ago the Clanton School burned and a new structure was put in its place. The school that burned Tuesday had been used for the past twenty-five years. Estimates are that it will take $30,000 to rebuild. The Clanton Fire Department answered the call and fought for hours to keep the fire under control.

GROCERY STORES TO REMAIN OPEN ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS

Through the month of December the Clanton Grocery Stores will remain open on Wednesday afternoons, according to Cecil Ramsey, spokesman for the group.

Mr. Ramsey stated that as agreed earlier in the year from now through Christmas all grocery stores would be open six days each week so that customers could plan their Christmas shopping at any time convenient.

"THE CASE OF THE PARROT PANIC"

The "Human Interest" story behind some of the great medical discoveries that are enabling doctors to save thousands of lives today is being brought to radio listeners in a series of unusual programs—The "S" Men —sponsored jointly by the Chilton County Unit of the American Cancer Society and Radio Station WKLF.

Fourth program in the series, "The Mase of the Parrot Panic," will be broadcast Tuesday, December 13th, at 1:00 p.m. It will be narrated by Mr. Joe Campbell, Chairman Men's Organization, Chilton County, American Cancer Society and Dr. Joe W. Moore.

Each one of the programs draws an interesting parallel between the fight being waged against cancer today and some of the great medical feats of the past that won victories over death.

AMERICAN LEGION HONOR VETERANS

The American Legion Auxiliary of Chilton County, Unit No. 6, entertained at a seated tea last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Lambert in South Clanton.

The purpose of the event was a shower for the disabled veterans of the Veterans' Hospital in Montgomery. The gifts, which were displayed on the large dining table, centered with a miniature Xmas tree arrangement of colorful Xmas balls, will be put on display in the gift shop of the hospital on December 16 and 17, for the men to select Xmas gifts from for their families and loved ones.

Refreshments were served to seventeen guests who called during the tea hours. Many other gifts were sent in by members of the auxiliary and friends.

Mrs. Lambert was assisted in receiving by her daughter, Sylvia, and Mrs. G. C. Walker.

Those Who Miss The Oaks Will Find Comfort Here

When they cut down the old oak trees around the Chilton County court house, many people in Clanton felt that something of historical and natural beauty had been destroyed.

Judge Walter B. Jones's elegy on the five elm trees in front of the Montgomery County court house, which were also cut down recently, seems to express very well the feelings of the people who wanted to keep the oak trees here.

With Judge Jones's permission, we are quoting his article from The Montgomery Advertiser:

Court House Trees Destroyed

Those of us who have labored at the County court house for many, many years were unpleasantly surprised and deeply distressed when we got to the court house Thursday morning and found that the five venerable elm trees in front of the court house on Washington Avenue, between Lawrence and Perry Streets, had been cut down and were being carted away by the city authorities. Perhaps the lovely trees were destroyed because they stood in the way of what is sometimes mistakenly called "modern progress,' and perhaps they had to go to make way for the unsightly and unshapely light poles that have taken their place. Be that as it may, when the trees were destroyed court house folk and many thousand other citizens felt they had lost five faithful friends. These great elms had been in front of the court house ever since I can remember. They seemed to shade and guard the old building. They protected many a tired witness, juror and litigant from the blazing sun of heated summer days, and they had a beauty and loveliness about them which man can never put into his light poles. These old court house elms served Montgomery County folks having business at the court house long and usefully, and there is general regret, that the "march of progress,' if such it can be called in the present instance, demanded their sudden destruction.

The elm trees cut down Thursday in front of the court house belonged to a branch of the elm family noted for their graceful form and pleasing symmetry. They came from a family of trees which have enjoyed a prominent place in American history and many of their forebears were silent witnesses to some of the memorable events in American history. There is the great elm at Palmer, Miss., a venerable giant, which in its young days saw and heard George Washington address his Continental Army. On the capitol grounds at Washington are many elms which are well known to visitors to our capital city. Among these is one planted by John Quincy Adams when he was president, and also the Washington Elm, a native tree that watched the erection of the capital building. Until 1810 there was another famous tree, the Penn Treaty Elm where the great and good William Penn made his treaty with the Indians in Central Park, N. Y., there is the Friendship Elm, planted there in 1860 by a Prince of Wales, who was later to become King Edward VII of England.

Our five faithful and friendly elms planted by servants of God in ancient days, are gone forever, only their ugly stumps and roots remain. But we court house folks who knew and loved them, and who were the beneficiaries of their beauty and usefulness, feel that we have lost a great deal, and that nothing the authorities can do in front of the court house can ever take the place of these silent and friendly trees. Into their strength was forged the robin's song, the freshness of morning's mists, the sunset gold of Montgomery afternoons, and they knew the music of marching days. It took a lot of things to build these old court house trees—Alabama soil, kindly rain, skies of blue, and frost and gale, and scores and scores of summer months and winter days. Man has destroyed in a few seconds what it took God with all His power years and years to make.

Shelton Truck & Tractor, Inc. Show New L-Line of Trucks

Completely re-designed and re-engineered International trucks from International Harvester's new L-line were introduced Wednesday at the [illegible] room of Shelton Truck & Tractor, Inc., Clanton, Ala.

The new International truck line consists of 87 basic truck chassis models designed to handle any type of hauling job, Mr. Russ Shelton said.

Mr. Shelton said the heavy-duty engineered L-line presented a completely new design in motor trucks, at once apparent from the massive front end to the smartly styled cab. He pointed out that many new mechanical and engineering improvemens, designed to promote operating efficiency and economy,. were features of the new line.

Advanced Design, Engineering

Outstanding advances in design and engineering, Mr. Shelton said, include:

1. New chassis dimension engineering permitting better load distribution, greater maneuverability, improved engine accessibility and short overall lengths while maintaining or increasing load-carrying lengths.
2. New, improved valve-in-head International truck series engines, including an all-new Silver Diamond engine.
3. A newly designed cab offering more roominess, added comfort and convenience and all-around visibility, factors in safer operation.
4. Complete restyling that blends a new modern truck streamlining with extreme practicability.

The new trucks, introduced after years of exhaustive testing and research, required the greatest expenditure of any new models in International history. More than $30,000,000 was spent for the vast production changeover involving the widespread revamping of facilities, layouts and assembly lines in the company's Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, Ind., and Springfield, Ohio, plants. Thousands of new machines, tools, dies, patterns, gauges and fixtures were acquired, and many new buildings were added along with extensions to existing facilities.

Trucks Sternly Tested

Additional expenditures were made to provide more than three years' road testing which went into proving the new trucks. This intensive program included laboratory and track testing in addition to over 3,000,000 miles of road driving under all kinds of operating, weather and road conditions.

The new L-line is spearheaded by four classifications of four-wheel model trucks, ranging in gross vehicle weight from 4,200 pounds to 30,000 pounds. The new International line further features new multi-stop units, product of the company's Bridgeport, Conn., plant; a new group of six-wheel chassis units ranging in GVW from 22,000 to 50,000 pounds, and a new group of cab-forward chassis units, ranging upward from 14,000 pounds.

The company's "West Coast" trucks—manufactured in the Emeryville, Calif., International Harvester plant, include two highway and four off-highway vehicles, ranging in gross vehicle weight from 30,000 to 90,000 pounds.

Scores of body sizes and styles are offered in the new line.

New Chassis Dimensions

Dimensions of the chassis of the new L-line have been engineered to provide better load distribution, greater maneuverability, shorter overall lengths and improved engine accessibility. Biggest change in chassis dimensions is in the wheelbases, which have been shortened as much as seven inches in some models.

The shorter wheelbases, together with reproportioned cab-to-rear axle dimensions, have resulted in a shifting of load weight, so that it is in balance between front and rear axles.

The shorter wheelbases and rearrangement of other chassis dimensions have made possible shorter overall lengths with no actual decrease in load-carrying lengths. In some cases, greater load-carrying lengths are available within the shorter overall lengths of the trucks.

Better maneuverability results from the shorter turning radius of the shorter wheelbases, as well as from the widened axle treads. The turning angle on practically all models throughout the line has been increased to a minimum of 37 degrees, for both popular and standard tire sizes.

New Light Engine

The new Silver Diamond engine, used in the company's light and medium duty trucks, is a valve-in-head, six-cylinder power plant built in two sizes—the 220 cubic inch displacement size developing 100 horsepower, and the 240 cubic inch power plant which develops 108 horsepower. Improved engines are the Super Blue Diamond and the Super Red Diamond, both incorporating numerous engineering refinements. The Super Blue Diamond has a displacement of 260 cubic inches and a horsepower rating of 100.. Compression ratio is 6.3 to 1. The Super Red Diamond is available in three sizes. The 372 cubic inch displacement size develops 144 horsepower; the 406 cubic inch displacement size, 154 horsepower, and the 450 cubic inch displacement size, 162 horsepower. Super Red Diamond compression ratio is 6.3 to 1.

The L-Line offers a complete selection of transmissions to meet every hauling requirement. Main transmissions available include two sizes of three-speed Syncro-shift; a four-speed sliding gear; a new four-speed Syncro-shift; four sizes of heavy-duty, five-speed constant mesh, with direct or overdrive in fifth; and five-speed syncro-shift, with direct or overdrive in fifth. A number of auxiliary transmissions also are available.

Wider, sturdier rear axles, engineered to handle any job, are available in the new models. Hypoid axles are introduced in the L-Line.

New Styling, Colors

The new cabs have been designed to provide greater roominess and convenience. The many features include a smartly-styled curved contour instrument panel, a large, one-piece windshield, curved to minimize eyestrain and reduce glare, and conveniently clustered instruments.

New brighter colors are offered in the L-line. Standard colors include Harvester red, Adirondack green, Apache yellow and Arizona blue. Optional colors, at no extra cost, include Salt River Sand, Door County green, Black Canyon black, Valencia orange, Palomino cream and Chesapeake gray. —Adv.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS MEETS

The Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church of Clanton held its regular monthly meeting on Friday, November 18th, at the home of Mrs. Annie Lane, with Mesdames Lorraine Eubanks, Edith Blanton and Erma Corbett as co-hostesses. The program committee consisted of Mrs. Gertrude Nivens and Mrs. Bessie Fiquette. A very inspiring Thanksgiving devotional was given by Miss Martha Dawson, Young People's director of the Baptist Church, followed by prayer. Joe Douglas Grooms honored the ladies by singing, "Thanks Be To God." Joe was accompanied at the piano by Bobbie Gray.

Miss Jean Lake, from the County Welfare Department, talked on "The Needy of Chilton County."

Each class member brought a gift for a Thanksgiving basket, which was turned over to Miss Lake, to place where she thought best.

The minutes of the October class meeting were read and approved. Names were drawn for the Christmas tree party which will be held at the church on December 16th.

After the business session, refreshments were served to several guests and twenty class members.

HAY RIDE

On last Friday night, members of the Young People's Department of the First Baptist Church of Clanton, met at the church and from there, left for a hay ride in the large rubber-tired wagon owned by the Laura Ann Dairy. The wagon was drawn by a small tractor of Miller's Dairy. After riding around for some time, singing and having fun, the party went to the Country Club, where they built a large bon fire and enjoyed toasting marshmellows. Sandwiches and soft drinks were served to about twenty. Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Taylor enjoyed the fun as chaperons.

New Laws For Motorists

During the past session of the State Legislature certain new laws that will vitally affect your driving for the future were enacted and a copy of these new laws has just reached our desk, compliments of the local Highway Patrolmen.

One of the first new rulings we noticed was that you cannot install a television set in your automobile. But, listen! there are several new laws that will interest you.

There is a new way to make a left turn. Where in the past it has been manditory that each vehicle go to the center of the intersection before turning left, in the future, or after January 1, 1950, you can give your left turn signal and start turning before you reach the center of the intersection—or in front of the oncoming vehicle providing he is making a left turn also.

It makes passing on the right legal in some instances and gives the highway patrolmen the right to make arrests where a driver is going too slow and obstructing traffic. It forbids more than three people riding in the front seat if it obstructs the view of the driver.

The new laws include a change in the fines that can be assessed and all conform with a "Uniform Code for Highway Safety" recommended by President Truman's Highway Safety Conference in 1946.

All changes, we understand, were made in an effort to have Alabama's highway laws the same as other states. This is as it should be and would take much of the worry off motorists who travel often in neighboring states. In the past some of the rules and regulations observed on our highways could get you thirty days in other states of our United States.

Bad Publicity

Looks like Chilton County is bound to get bad publicity even if it has to come in from other counties.

Seems like our most recent headlines were natives of Jefferson County, and believe us, we would just as soon they find other fields in which to do their devilment.

Football Adieu

What we want to know is what to do with our Saturday afternoons until next football season? For the past ten weeks we have been using the excuse, "Can't, got to listen to my football game," in answer to every errand thought of by the wife. With the exception of the New Year's Day game that is all over now. Let's see, now—wonder why they don't play basketball on Saturday afternoon?

It's Different When It Happens To You

An old head and an old story, but they always will hold truth.

How would you like to own a 1,000-acre tract of top-grade standing timber? Just think, that would be a nice nest egg for you and your wife in your coming old age. But that's only a small part of the story. It seems that you could just sit back and watch your money grow, but you must take into consideration the one factor that is predominant in your failure or success.

This factor is known as carelessness. In this instance we are speaking of carelessness with fire.

Just pick up any late paper and you will find a report of at least one forest fire. It doesn't do any good to read the report and say its a horrible thing. It will do much more good to be careful with your fire.

It is very seldom that you will see a man throw down a lighted match or cigarette near his own timber, but throwing one down near another man's is a common occurance.

There is no wonder that lumber is high when every day thousands of acres of it are going up in smoke because of carelessness. Why not do unto others as you would have them do unto you—only do it first.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Peoples' carelessness and thoughtlessness in calling the local fire department are costing the City of Clanton plenty of money. Our information comes direct from one of our more dependable sources which according to law, we do not have to divulge, thank goodness. But seriously, the past week the fire departmest answered nearly a dozen calls that were "false" or unnecessary. Whenever the fire siren sounds it costs us a tidy sum, to say the least, and the right of all to call the department upon their discretion should not be taken lightly. And that is not taking into consideration the trouble it puts the members who have to drop their work to answer the call. You know, to a great extent, being a member of a volunteer fire department is a labor of love and the pay for this work is very little. Certainly not enough to pay for the trouble the members go to, to make ours one of the best volunteer fire departments in the state. Next time, don't wait until your home burns down, but be sure the boys are needed before you place a call to the department. And if your cat is up a tree and can't get down, find another means of getting him. Let's save our money and efforts for the real needs.

Personal and aside to Chilton County Fathers: Has daughter been thoughtful of your feelings lately? Has mother been over anxious to grant your every wish and gone out of her way to please you? Has sonny asked about your health each day, and brought the paper to you without exacting a favor in return or a promise of the family car for that date next week end? All this is happening at our house, and until today we hadn't been able to figure out the reason. Course it's kinda dumb on our part, but come to think of it, they start acting like that every year about this time. Must have something to do with the old man with the long whiskers.

When asked the other day why a certain fellow we know was so quiet, someone answered in a hurry: "He has a lot to be quiet about." Which reminds us of the time someone told us: "You know less about more things."

Aren't those asphalt shoulders north and south of the business district a great help to the motorists? If somebody scrouges you off the street now you don't get in the rough. Things won't be right any more though along U. S. 31 until a new four-lane highway is built from the Tennessee State line to the Gulf of Mexico. And if traffic continues to increase it is going to ge a "must" before too many years.

The Chilton County trials scheduled to start here Monday came to an abrupt halt before the day was over when the star witness and principal defendant failed to show up. Mrs. Delene Wyatt was in a Birmingham hospital where she is under the care of Dr. Byrn Williamson. After hearing the doctor's testimony when he was called from Birmingham Monday afternoon to testify, the presiding Judge, Harelson, of Fort Payne, adjourned this court session.

The Christmas Chest Committee met Monday night and completed plans for the December drive for the underprivileged children of the county. Plans are for a bigger effort this year and many more names have been added to the list of eligibles. Now is the time to get the Christmas spirit and give until it hurts so that some little tyke will have a merry Christmas at your expense. Can you think of a more enjoyable way to suffer?

While we're on the subject of Christmas, wouldn't it be wonderful if we could have a pretty decorated business section like other cities have. In driving up and down the state there are few places the size of Clanton that haven't gone all out with their decorating and made their home town beautiful for the season. It's a custom that pays off for any town. Folks feel like buying when they get the spirit of Christmas in their bones. A little money spent on this would stop a lot of money from going to nearby cities where our residents are doing their Christmas shopping. We urge at all times our people to spend their money at home but our business people must do their part to encourage home trading and spending.

Messianic Prophecies

The first prophetic promise we have in the Bible of a Redeemer is found in Genesis 3:15. The words which God spoke to the Serpent, the devil, saying, "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed, and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

A. T. HICKMAN

This is not only a Messianic prophecy of the Coming of the Christ as the Seed of the woman, the Virgin Birth of the Saviour; but also a prophecy relating to his death, or the conflict which was to be between Jesus and satan. That satan would bruise his heel, but while so doing, the Seed of the woman would crush the head of the old serpent. In every conflict between the Messiah and satan, the Messias was always the victor.

The promise here is made that the Redeemer would be the seed of the woman, not of man. This coincides with the beautiful story of the Virgin Birth of Jesus in the New Testament. For when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal. 4:4. Every one should read the story given by St. Luke in his Gospel. Chapter one and two. Also the first chapter of the Gospel of Matthew.

The next prophetic promise we have of the Messiah is found in Genesis 12:3. The promise and covenant which God made to Abraham. God said to him, "I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." These last words contain the promise of the Messiah; "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." . . For out from the lions of Abraham came the Promised One, and through Him, and by Him all families of the earth are blessed. For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men. Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world. Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ. Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. Thank God that we have Christ for our Redeemer, and we who know Him, know what Christmas is to the world.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

INTESTINAL OBSTRUCTION

Intestinal obstruction is not a disease but a group of symptoms caused by some disease or abnormal condition. Three outstanding symptoms of intestinal obstruction are constipation, nausea or vomiting, and distention or bloating.

When obstruction occurs, there is a severe pain in the abdominal region; and the pain is spasmodic in character. It usually seems to be all over the area so that the sufferer cannot tell the physician where it hurts the most.

The contents of the bowel, being unable to pass the obstruction, cause severe vomiting. The stagnant contents contain undigested food and stomach juices, and fermentation sets in. A poisonous substance is formed which is absorbed by the body, causing another complication.

As a rule, constipation is most noticeable, the abdomen becomes distended with gas and peritonitis is apt to develop. With the protracted vomiting, the patient is apt to become dehydrated and it is necessary to feed him intravenously.

A scar or band of adhesions, resulting from previous surgery, may cause an obstruction. Then again tumors, be they cancerous or not, might grow into the bowel, causing a blockage which would prevent the onward passage of its contents. Some children are born with a narrow outlet to the stomach and occasionally a hernia or rupture may be responsible.

While constipation is a symptom of intestinal obstruction, the condition itself is not truly obstruction. Constipation by itself, however, should not be neglected. When it exists with the other symptoms, intestinal obstruction may be present.

Intestinal obstruction is a serious complication and everyone should be alert to the symptoms. Nearly always it has to be relieved surgically and, if neglected, it may result in death.

Danger Signals of Cancer

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles on the symptoms of early cancer furnished the Chilton County News by members of the Chilton County Medical Society.

Most people have moles or warts.

And most moles and warts are perfectly harmless.

But they can cause trouble if they begin to change size or color.

Moles and warts, when flesh colored, usually are harmless growths. Occasionally, after prolonged irritation they may show signs of activity and may even develop a darker color.

All such growths should be watched for changes in size, color or character of the surface, and if any change is noted, they should be completely removed.

Brown or black moles, relatively, are more dangerous than those which are colorless. Any such mole elevated above the skin surface and subjected to constant irritation might well be removed as precautionary measure.

One of the most dangerous forms of cancer — called melanoma — can arise from the darkly pigmented moles. It is dangerous because once it has become cancerous, it spreads through the body very rapidly. Once this spread has taken place, there is little hope for the patient. Removal of the melanoma, while it is still localized usually results in a permanent cure for the patient.

Simple freckles do not turn into cancer, but flat moles that look like dark freckles or birthmarks can turn into cancer and should be watched for any change.

Changes in warts, moles or birthmarks do not necessarily mean that cancer is developing. But they do mean that a doctor should be consulted at once because they might be cancer. Failure to do so is taking a big chance with life itself.

In types of cancer that arise from moles, warts and birthmarks—as in all other types of cancer—early treatment at the hands of a competent physician can mean the difference between life and death.

The patient must recognize the symptoms that indicate the possibility of cancer and must get to his doctor at once if he has the slightest suspicion. Only a trained medical man can say for sure whether or not cancer is present.

If cancer is found, chances for a cure are good, if the patient has come in time. If cancer is not present, no harm has been done, and the patient's peace of mind is well worth the trouble it took to seek medical advice.

The fifth in this series of articles will appear in the Chilton County News next week. For additional information about today's subject, write for the free booklet "What Most People Don't Know About Cancer." Addres your request to "Cancer," Clanton, Ala.

Such bonds shall be callable at any time upon the payment of the principal amount thereof plus a premium equal to one year's interest thereon. The bonds shall not be a general obligation of the City of Huntsville or of Madison County and shall not be charged to the constitutional debt limit of the City of Huntsville or Madison County.

Four-Lane Highways Criss-Crossing State Proposed By Folsom

Four-lane toll highways running east-west and north-south across Alabama are being planned by Gov. Folsom.

The governor's announcement followed his trip to the Southern Governors' Conference, where the the idea was first discussed by the Dixie's chief executives.

The Alabama Bridge Commission has been asked by Folsom to begin negotiations for the toll roads. The governor's proposal is based on a multi-million dollar loan from the RFC.

Tolls would be used to repay the loan.

The new four-lane highways will carry through traffic across the state in record time.

New members of the bridge commission, recently appointed by Gov. Folsom, include former State Senator Jim Smith of Tuscumbia, Clifford Stiles of Birmingham, and M. A. Dees of Newton.

Equal Education Facilities Must Be Provided, Says Jim

Alabama must face the task of providing equal schooling for whites and negroes, Gov. Folsom recently declared.

"Sooner or later we've got to do it," Folsom told the State Board of Education. He was speaking at a time when the board was meeting to allocate funds to the regional education program.

Four negroes recently asked the State Bar Association for permission to practice law without taking an examination.

Law graduates of the University of Alabama do not have to take an examination, as do graduates of out-of-state schools. The negroes contended in their request that they were prevented from attending the state university, and therefore should be exempt from the exam.

This situation was on the governor's mind when he made his declaration about equal educational facilities.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Oh, these holidays! How about it kids, wasn't it grand? Four whole days of "No Lessons," and you've always got the consolation that Christmas holidays are just around the corner.

Well, the circus was here and I do believe everyone enjoyed it thoroughly. It was worth whatever they paid for it and besides we got out of school for a WHOLE period.

Say, kids, if there's anyone who doesn't like the way I write my column I sure wish they would tell ME about it. You know, I'm not writing it just to kill time, I am writing it for your benefit and if you want the old gossip back (which I thoroughly dislike), well, I'll write gossip, but if YOU'ALL don't like it the way I write it, now, well, why don't you give me some news (newsy news, that it), or pointers. I would appreciate it very much.

Boy, does Tom Frank Scott go for the girls, and boy, do the girls go for Tom Frank Scott. He's a regular lady killer.

Don't EVER git in front of that last period class. Those included are Reedie Taylor, James Paul Easterling and others. Man, they come out of the building like a bunch of charging bulls. Miss Griffin ought to know, she tried to slow them down the other day, WOW!

Looks sorta like the lunch room has a surplus of apples (not that I dislike it by a long shot) doesn't it, kids? An apple a day helps you pass tests. (I wish).

Why doesn't SOMEBODY have a party? Man, haven't had one all year or rather in a long time. Come on, keeds, let's get hep.

Well, kids, football gone for the year and it leaves me with nothing to taik about except basketball and I don't go for basketball very enthusiastically.

Man, isn't the Drive-In going over swell, kids? Nearly every night I go up there which to my sorrow is very seldom) the place is running over with cars.

Report cards are here (to the regret of some upstanding students, including myself, not that I'm upstanding) and I'm afraid the Christmas holidays won't be as merry as some I remember. Anyway, I still hope I'm dreaming.

There sure are a lot of sorrowful young fellows having to take health now that football practice is over. Oh well, "Such is the way of Life." No one except the history students will understand that quotation so the rest of you just guess (if you want to know, that is.)

Say, kids, if it's all right with you I'm going to add a "Mystery Person," to my column. There will be no winners and no prizes. It's just like a guessing game.

This week's person has blonde hair, blue eyes (I think, I haven't been able to get that close to her), a cute figure; height is about 5 ft. 3 in. and she weighs about 105 pounds. She's a little flirty. She was heard a great deal on Club Request, Station WKLF, during the last part of school last year and in the summer.

Watch Out For The Symptoms!

Laughed out loud when I heard Hoot Davis was down with Chicken Pox. A man of forty-five catching a kid's disease!

So I went to see him, armed with jokes about "second childhood" but forgot them fast when I got there. Hoot looked terrible and had quite a fever.

While we talked, I come to think of how Chicken Pox is a lot like other "diseases"—diseases of the character, such as intolerance, self-righteousness or just plain ignorance. They're excusable in children, but when they come out in adults they're ten times as bad—and can be mighty "contagious."

From where I sit, we should all watch out for the "symptoms"—little things like criticizing a person's preference for a friendly glass of temperate beer or ale. We've seen personal freedom wither away in other countries, when individual intolerance was allowed to get out of hand and become a nation-wide epidemic.

FOLSOM SAYS VOTER CURB DEFEAT MOST IMPORTANT ACTIVITY OF LEGISLATURE

Defeat of the new Boswell amendment gets Gov. James E. Folsom's vote as the most important accomplishment of the 1947-49 legislatures sessions.

He paid tribute recently to the members responsible for the filibuster which killed it.

"Here we are preaching the franchise all over the world," he said, "and trying to take it away from our people at home. It's just not consistent."

The voter qualification amendment to which the governor referred sought to write new voting restrictions into the State Constitution.

They were to replace those knocked out when the U. S. Supreme Court held the Boswell amendment unconstitutional last January.

Folsom spoke against ratification of the Boswell amendment when it came up for a referendum two years ago.

SELMA A AND B TEAMS ROMP OVER CLANTON IN BIG CLASH LAST TUESDAY NIGHT

(By BOBBY TUCKER)

Selma A—44	Clanton A—28
Selma B—33	Clanton B—29

Parrish High of Selma and Chilton High clashed Tuesday night in a well fought game. Good sportsmanship stood out in every player but it was a rough game. On the A team, Freddie and Joe Popwell stood out. Freddie, in the first half rung up three good pointers for Clanton and in the second half made four more. Joe, who plays guard, did not score but played hard in the first half and missed out in the second. Royce Seales, forward for Clanton, shot two field goals, both good, and six foul goals and made four of them, thus giving him a total of eight well made points.

On the Selma A squad, Knight and Osborn burned up the floor with some dazzling footwork. Knight, who plays forward, scored three field goals and one foul in the first half. In the second half he scored five field goals and two fouls. He was the highest scoring man for Parrish High. Osborn, Parrish's hard playing guard stacked up two points in the first half and nine in the second half. He's not such a large fellow but he is really good. Foster and McKenzie also played good games.

There were quite a few personal fouls on both teams and Parrish made a great deal more free shots than Clanton. The Clanton team handles the ball really well and it looked like they could get it most any time they wanted it, but the Selma team just always rung up a shot too many and therefore came out in the lead.

The B team from both schools did exceptionally well from what the people thought they were going to do. On Clanton's team, Ogburn and Lawrence both played good basketball, Ogburn ringing up the highest score. I. Smith had a chance at many foul goals but failed to make them. The Selma B team had a boy by the name of Wilkerson that could really handle that ball. Long, from Parrish, and Wilkerson tied on the highest scores for their team.

CLANTON GRAMMAR P.-T.A. MET

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Clanton Grammar School held their meeting for December on Tuesday night at the Presbyterian Church with a very good attendance.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Herbert Klinner, and the business of the Association was dispersed with, after which Mrs. Klinner turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Mrs. John Smith. Mrs. Smith asked Rev. Smith to read the Christmas Story from the Bible and give the devotional prayer. She then presented Mrs. Jimmie Clear who directed a group of the fifth and sixth grade pupils in singing a number of Christmas carols. She was assisted at the piano by Mrs. Jones. The children gave a most enjoyable musical program.

MISS HAYES, MR. BARTON HONORED AFTER REHEARSAL

Miss Bess Hayes and Douglas Barton, whose marriage took place at 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon, November 26th, at the First Baptist Church in Clanton, were honored on Thursday evening at a buffet supper following the rehearsal. The reception rooms were artistically decorated with flower arrangements in tones of yellow, bronze and white. Miss Helen Hayes and Mrs. Bill Thompson served the guests in the dining room. They were assisted by Mrs. Harold Lawrence and Mrs. Grady Broadhead.

The table was beautiful in its appointments. An exquisite white cloth of maderia embroidery and medallions covered the table, with a silver candelabra holding tall white candles circled with bows of white net and satin ribbons with white camellias making the centerpiece. On the buffet an arrangement of yellow carnations, yellow roses, white stock and white snapdragons in a silver bowl, with white candles in silver holders on each side, formed a most attractive background for this supper served by candlelight.

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1949, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said Amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 13, 1949; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the said 13th day of December, 1949:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December 1949, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"(a) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto heretofore adopted, the Governor shall from time to time issue negotiable interest bearing bonds for the purposes and in the manner and subject to the limitations stated in this amendment. The bonds shall be the general obligation of the State of Alabama and the full faith and credit and taxing power of the State are hereby pledged to the punctual payment of the bonds and the interest thereon. The aggregate principal amount of all bonds issued hereunder shall not exceed two million dollars ($2,000,000) and they shall mature within ten years from the date of issuance.

"The proceeds from the sale of such bonds are hereby appropriated and shall be used solely for the construction of hospitals and hospital facilities pursuant to Act No. 211, S. 107, approved July 7, 1945 (General Acts of Alabama, 1945, page 330), or any act supplemental thereto or amendatory thereof; provided, that the funds appropriated hereby shall be used only for the construction of hospitals, clinics, or health centers under contracts which have been or are let on or after May 1, 1949, and that the funds shall be used to match federal funds available for hospital, clinic or health center purposes, and that the local governments in the area where each hospital, clinic or health center is to be built shall contribute at least as much money for the construction as does the State; and provided further that the State shall not contribute more than three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000) to the construction of any one hospital, clinic or health center.

"In determining where a hospital, clinic or health center to be constructed with the funds appropriated herein shall be located, first consideration shall be given to communities which have no hospital, clinic or health center facilities. Each county having no hospital, clinic or health center facilities shall be entitled to an allotment of not less than sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) for such facilities if application is made therefor before January 1 of each year. Any funds available for hospital, clinic or health center facilities remaining on January 1 of each year after allotments have been made to those counties having no such facilities and having not already received an allotment and which have made application therefor may be alloted to those counties having such facilities which have made application therefor. However, counties receiving prior allotments hereunder shall not be precluded from receiving a larger allotment or an additional allotment at the discretion of the State Board of Health.

"District tuberculosis sanitoria in the districts set up in Act No. 287, S. 22, approved July 7, 1945, shall be eligible for construction under the provisions of this amendment, and 25 percent of the proceeds from the sale of bonds authorized by this Amendment shall be reserved for the construction of tuberculosis sanitoria; provided, at the end of each calendar year funds not obligated for either general or tuberculosis hospital construction may be used during the next year for either type construction; and provided further, that the local government or authorities in the area where the sanitorium is to be built shall contribute at least as much money as does the State. A sum not to exceed forty thousand dollars ($40,000) may be used by the State Board of Health for hospital administration for each of the two (2) years ending in 1950 and 1951; this appropriation shall be cumulative.

"(b) All bonds issued hereunder and the interest thereon shall be payable from any funds in the State treasury not otherwise appropriated. The bonds shall be payable in substantially equal installments of principal and interest beginning in the next fiscal year after their date; they shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding two percent per annum payable semi-annually; and they shall contain a provision for their call for payment at such a time or times prior to maturity, and at such a premium, if any, as the Governor may prescribe. All bonds, issued hereunder shall be sold to the highest bidder at a duly advertised public sale, on sealed bids or at auction, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest; provided, bidders may be invited to name the rate of interest which the bonds are to bear, in which case the bonds shall not be sold at a price which would yield more than two percent according to standard bond tables, taking into account the discount and call privilege."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 13th day of December 1949, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

Whenever the tax shall be voted the governing body of the county may anticipate the proceeds therefrom for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall be voted by issuing, without further election, interest bearing tax anticipation bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said county payable solely from and secured by a pledge of not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeds from said tax received by the county.

"The governing body of each county in which the said tax may be voted shall have the further power to designate as the agency of the county to acquire, construct, equip, operate and maintain public hospital facilities any public corporation heretofore or hereafter organized for hospital purposes in the county under any general law heretofore or hereafter enacted by the Legislature. When a public corporation shall be so designated, the proceeds of said tax thereafter collected shall be paid over to it and shall be used by it for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted; provided, that payment of the proceeds of said tax to said public corporation shall be made only to such extent as will not result in the impairment of the obligation of any contract theretofore made with respect to said tax. Said public corporation may anticipate the proceeds from said tax so required to be paid to it by issuing, for any one or more of the purposes for which the tax shall have been voted, the bonds, warrants, or certificates of indebtedness of said public corporation, and may pledge for the payment of the principal thereof and interest thereon not exceeding 75% of the annual proceeeds from said tax so paid to it.

"Each county in which the tax shall be voted and in the event a public corporation shall have been designated as the agency of such county pursuant to the provisions hereof then said public corporation, shall have the power to contract with any other county or similar public corporation with respect to the acquisition by purchase, lease, or otherwise, and the construction, equipment, operation, and maintenance of public hospital facilities outside of the county and within any zone or region of which the county may be a part, and which may have heretofore been established or may hereafter be established for public hospital purposes by the Legislature or by any agency designated by it, the obligations of such contract to be payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax; provided, that the proceeds of said tax shall not be used outside of the county for any purpose for which the proceeds could not be used in the county, and shall not be used with respect to public hospital facilities located outside of the county if the tax is voted specifically for public hospital facilities located in the county.

"No securities issued or contracts made by a county under the authority of this amendment, which are payable solely out of the proceeds of said tax, and no securities issued or contracts made by any such public corporation, whether or not issued or made under the authority of this amendment, shall be construed to be bonds of the county or of a political subdivision thereof within the meaning of Section 222 of the Constitution, or construed to create or constitute an indebtedness of the county within the meaning of Section 224 of the constitution. Said securities shall be construed to be negotiable instruments notwithstanding the fact that they may be payable solely from a limited source. All pledges of said tax and all contracts made with respect thereto pursuant to the provisions of this amendment shall take precedence in the order in which they are made and shall create a charge on the proceeds of said tax prior to the expenses of operating and maintaining any public hospital facilities.

"In each instance in which a special county tax for any one or more of the purposes included within the meaning of the term public hospital purposes has heretofore been authorized at an election held in a county pursuant to the provisions of any amendment to the constitution heretofore adopted, all provisions of this amendment shall be applicable in said county to the same extent as if said election had been held after the adoption of this amendment.

SHAPING PEACH TREES BY PRUNING PROPERLY

The first three years of pruning peach trees should be a matter of spreading them out and maintaining an open top.

Explaining this statement, J. C. Ford, A.P.I. Extension Service orchard specialist, says that trees should be pruned so they will grow a balanced frame of strong main branches with plenty of smaller fruiting limbs evenly distributed.

In building the frame of main branches, Ford recommends the three-three-three system. In other words, three main branches from the original trunk; three branches from each of these making nine; ;and three from each of the nine making 27.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Sudsless detergents result in more efficient performance in automatic washers than do sudsy soaps. Suds buffer the washing action and there is not enough water to remove them.

Barton-Hayes Vows Pledged

The nuptial vows of Miss Bess Celeste Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hayes, of Clanton, and Douglas Lavern Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Barton, of Tuscaloosa, were solemnized before a large assemblage of relatives and friends in the First Baptist Church of Clanton on Friday, November 25th, at the twilight hour, with Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchison officiating.

The stained glass windows of the church were made resplendent by the golden rays of the setting sun. These same brilliant golden hues were repeated in the scene of rare Autumnal beauty created to accent the loveliness of the titian-haired bride.

The chancel was transformed by a screen of traditional wedding greenery which silhouetted an arch extending the breadth of the church composed of luminous cathedral candles of gold in patterns of seven placed in an ascending order, interspersed with sunburst arrangements of specimen chrysanthemums in rich tones of bronze, copper, gold, amber, and topaz. These same regal colors framed the center aisles. The pews were marked with bronzed candelabra, each holding three luminous cathedral candles of gold caught with burnished satin streamers and copper toned pom poms.

As the setting sun's last rays vanished the candles were lighted by Sam Johnson and James Barton.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Erle E. Ellis and Leonard Farley, Jr., organists; and Mrs. Ellis, soprano, Henry Grady Heflin, Jr., baritone, and Milton C. Barth, tenor. Mrs. Ellis sang, "Through the Years," and Mr. Barth rendered, "Because." During the ceremony "Liebestraum," "Claire de Lune," and "O, Promise Me" were played. The wedding vows were sealed with solemn beauty when "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as a duet by Mrs. Ellis and Mr. Heflin.

The bride's attendants wore gowns fashioned on identical lines; the colors chosen to emphasize the brilliant Autumnal hues. Miss Helen Hayes, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a leaf-green taffeta with sweetheart neck line and fitted bodice. The hoop skirt had Victorian puffs of self-material in tier arrangements to form a heart shaped panel down the front, and appearing again to form a bustle and to band the short puff sleeves.

To complete her ensemble Miss Hayes chose matching gauntlets and coronet. Her arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums and Talisman roses was tied with ribbon of copper satin.

The attendants were Mrs. Bill Thompson of Gadsden, and Miss Elizabeth Jones of Birmingham. They wore gowns of copper taffeta fashioned like the one chosen by Miss Helen Hayes. Their bouquets were identical to that of Miss Hayes except theirs were caught with gold ribbons.

The Junior attendants were Miss Linda Wade, and Miss Maryetta Propst, both of Clanton. Their dresses were of gold taffeta and their bouquets were tied with leaf-green ribbons.

MRS. DOUGLAS LAVERN BARTON

Master James Q. Wade, Jr., tiny cousin of the bride, served as ring-bearer. Clad in a miniature dinner suit he carried the ring in the heart of a lily.

Serving his brother as best man was Arthur M. Barton. Ushers were Preston Nason and William Overton of Birmingham, Sam Johnson of Clanton, and James Barton of Tuscaloosa.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was radiant in a magnolia duchess satin bridal gown, a Maurer original, fashioned with sweetheart neckline embroidered in seed pearls, a princess bodice and long, fitted sleeves ending in calla lily points that fell over the hands. The circular skirt flowed into a cathedral train. A full length veil of imported illusion fell from a white satin tiara studded with orange blossoms designed of seed pearls.

For sentiment the bride wore a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom. And she carried two diminutive wedding handkerchiefs, the one her maternal grandmother's, the other her mother's.

The bride's shower bouquet consisted of a single snow-white orchid with yellow throat encircled by lily petals framed in misty tulle with split carnations and valley lilies cascading.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception in their home. The bride's mother received in a brown crepe dinner dress trimmed in lace. With this she wore a matching, imported velour cloche encrusted with seed pearls. Her corsage was a bronze orchid. The groom's mother wore an aqua crepe adorned with a belt of cut steel beading. A bronze orchid was her corsage.

The reception rooms were lighted with luminous cathedral candles of gold in brass candelabra. Elaborate arrangements of specimen chrysanthemums in Autumnal shades of bronze and gold were enhanced by their containers of lustrous antique brass.

The bridal party received before a fan-shaped arrangement of waxed magnolia leaves held in a floor urn of old brass, and surmounted by a large mirror in which the copper tints of the bride's tresses were reflected by soft candlelight.

Assisting at the reception were the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. J. P. Hayes of Clanton and Mrs. W. E. Floyd of Clayton. Other relatives and friends assisting were Mesdames James Wade, Jack Hayes, Samuel E. Johnson, Grady Broadhead, J. C. Ware, Harold Lawrence, O. H. Armstrong and Burton Mullins. The bride's book was kept by Mrs. Louie Smith. Music was rendered by Mrs. W. E. Huddleston.

The bride's table was covered with a cloth of gold satin overlaid with a banquet cloth of exquisite Venetian lace. Centering the table was the bride's ring cake mounted on a mirrored plaque bordered with a ruffle of white satin overlaid with a ruffle of snowy illusion banded in white satin. A single snow-white orchid with yellow throat, companion to the one in the bride's bouquet, was held in an embossed epergne' which stemmed from the center of the ring cake. The epergne' also held four hand molded burning white tapers. Cascading from the edges of the cake were confecioner's hand molded wedding bells filled with valley lilies and rapture roses also hand molded with della robbia perfection.

Mounted fans of French maline trimmed in rows of dainty lace and adorned with clusters of confectioner's hand molded bridal flowers graced the ends of the table. Handsome white satin streamers swirled from the fans displaying rapture roses of confectioner's artistry. Twin compotes of silver contained assorted mints of bridal inspiration, bells, rings, hearts, orchids, lilies and rapture roses. The pristine beauty of the bride's table was reflected in an heirloom wall mirror framed in old gold.

The complete the appointments of the dining room seven-branched candelabra of antique silver with burning white tapers were used with a silver bowl of stock and rapture roses.

With a miniature sabre of antique silver Mrs. John Hollis cut the bride's cake. Guests were served a lily molded of French ice cream and individual embossed wedding cakes. Serving were Misses Evelyn Lowe, Melba Studdard, Peggy Ramsey, Margaret Jo Williamson, Patricia Huddleston and Annette Huddleston.

For going away the bride chose a suit of emerald green embroidered in silk soutache and a petite chapeau of emerald green velvet. Her accessories were brown and her corsage a bronze orchid. After a short wedding trip the bridal couple will reside in Tuscaloosa.

Among the out of town guests attending the wedding from Birmingham Mr. John Hobbs, Mr. John Chapman, Mrs. June Brittian, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Self, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ware, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Nason, Dr. Hal D. Broadhead, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Laffree, Mr. Alex Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Myles Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kelley and Nancy, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burgess of Wetumpka; and from Montgomery were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hagget, Mrs. G. D. Broadhead, Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, Miss Elizabeth Bryan, Miss Mary Lou King, Mrs. Frank Zeble; and Mrs. W. E. Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. M. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. James Barton, Mrs. Florence Elmore, Mr. William Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allinden, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Boyd and Jenny, and Mrs. E. G. Carpenter of Tuscaloosa. From Georgia were Mr. and Mrs. Adger Ellison of Waverly Hall; Mrs. Jim Gordy of Ellieislie; Misses Willie Neal and Mary Kate Dixon of Winston Salem, North Carolina; Mr. Alex Hayes, Tallahassee, Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bentley of Springfield, Tennessee.

What is it worth TO YOUR FAMILY?

It takes more than arithmetic to add up the full value of the telephone when Grandmother calls up to say, "Happy Birthday" . . . when Mother wants to tell the druggist, "Rush the order, please" . . . or when Junior hears the magic words, "I'm giving a party—you're invited."

Between the calls you make and the calls you receive, the telephone is such an active partner in your daily life it's almost one of the family! Day and night, rain or shine, it serves the whole family in countless ways—running errands, spreading cheer, bringing friends and loved ones closer.

When you stop to think how much it does for you, at the price you pay, telephone service stands out as one of today's biggest bargains. And it grows bigger as the number of people you can call keeps increasing and the service becomes faster and better.

School News—

It might be entertaining to many to know about the Maplesville football team for the past season. The Maplesville "Red Devils" have won five out of ten games this year, winning over Plantersville two games, Verbena, Billingsley and Selma B team.

Captain Charles Chapman has been the outstanding back field man, both defensive and offensive. He scored 107 points. We consider that outstanding.

Full-back Cecil Smith has also played good ball this year. He has scored 46 points. Right half, Billy Moore, played very good ball. He scored only 7 points. However, he did a very good job on offensive.

Quarterback Marshall Atcheson did an outstanding job of handling the ball. He scored 38 points and threw 9 touchdown passes.

Coach Kelley has done a very fine job of coaching. He is liked very much by all the boys who play ball and everyone hopes very much to have him as their coach next year.

Maplesville P.-T.A. will meet December 19th, at the school auditorium at 6:30 p.m. There will be pot luck supper and Christmas party. Party Committee: Mrs. Pierson, Mrs Barnes, Mr. John Herrod, Mrs. Higginbotham and Mrs. Hymon Atcheson.

LALLIE HUDGINGS—QUEEN OF COTTON

Wise Alabama Farmers Plan Better Cotton Crops In 1950

FARMERS looking ahead in Alabama are thinking now about how their next year's cotton will grow and produce. They know the first thing they must do to insure a good crop is to get the right kind of seed.

Getting good seed for planting is simple at this time of year; it may be hard next Spring. Some farmers will find them right in their own communities; if they buy from a neighbor, good seed one year from the breeder, their worry along that line is settled.

Other growers may order seed from one-variety communities scattered over Central and North Alabama. The community groups are producing first year certified seed that are grown under inspection, reginned, treated and bagged.

Prepare Land, Too

These seed handling practices are recommended to all producers by API Extension agronomists.

After the seed problem is solved, the farmer's next thought is his land. Land preparation started in December is easily followed through in the Spring when time is important. Every cotton grower in the state can cut cotton or corn stalks left on his land with a heavy stalk cutter or disc harrow.

Some farmers are already flat breaking land and many others are middle-busting on the contour. But of course this plowing is limited to heavier soils and land not subject to being washed away by Winter rains.

More Than A Beauty

Alabama Cotton Queen Girl Of Many Talents

A sparkling-eyed brunette of Fort Payne is still agog over being Miss Alabama Queen of Cotton.

Lots of nice things have happened to her during the past two months—parties, press interviews, banquets, a state-wide tour by plane.

But Lallie Hudgings, a graceful, talented 20-year-old Vanderbilt University student, is just as gracious and unassuming as she was when crowned at the State Fair in Birmingham early in October.

She was selected from among 73 contestants, representing every county, to compete in the Maid of Cotton contest in Memphis, January 2-3.

"Nothing so wonderful has ever happened to me," Miss Hudgings exclaimed. "People over Alabama have been wonderful.

"Cotton is a great king to support a queen in such a grand manner."

People in this cotton state would readily agree that the industry she represents is great. As Miss Hudgings well knows, cotton last year brought over $200 million to Alabama farmers and provided employment for a million people in 775 cotton gins and 71 mills. The king of crops vitally affects the entire economy.

College Senior

Miss Hudgings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. T. Hudgings of Fort Payne, is a graduate of the Gulf Park Junior College at Gulfport and is now a senior at Vanderbilt University where she is majoring in sociology and biology.

Quite active on the Vanderbilt campus, Miss Hudgings serves as president of the Woman's Advisory Council and is co-chairman of the Vanderbilt University Radio Council. She is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and represents this group on the Senior Panhellenic Council.

She is a member of the Woman's Student Government and on the General Cabinet of the Student Christian Association. Last year she was elected by popular vote as the Queen of the Junior Prom. She is a staff member of "The Hustler," Vandy's school paper.

Miss Hudgings has also done some modeling in addition to her radio and dramatic work. She likes to swim, ride horses, fly an airplane, and paint and is an expert marksman.

And she's a beautiful girl along with all this. Alabama is justly proud of her representative in the regional contest.

Woman Cabinet Maker

MRS. Leonard Dean of Branchville had nursed her dream of a modern, convenient kitchen for a long time. She had in her mind a perfect picture of what the kitchen should look like, but somehow or other, it seemed the dream just wouldn't materialize.

A few weeks ago, this St. Clair farm woman became tired of waiting and decided to see what she could do about it.

Being a good home demonstration member, she knew how to improvise when she started to make something. So Mrs. Dean rounded up an old safe, a dresser and several orange crates to use in her carpentry work. Borrowing her father's tools, she set to work with hammer and saw to build her kitchen cabinets.

Too Many Tools

Mrs. Dean is the first to admit that she had several tools she could find no use for, and she had a lot of trouble using the T-square. But when she finished her work and with bruised fingers carried the cabinets into her kitchen, they fitted nicely into place. She then painted the cabinets white.

The club woman is especially proud of her new kitchen. She says the extra space and neat appearance are worth all the trouble she went to.

While giving a demonstration recently on kitchen conveniences, Home Agent Margaret Parrish took the local club to see Mrs. Dean's handiwork. The home agent doesn't recommend that all women do their own carpentry work, but she does encourage more convenient kitchens.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Montgomery, Ala. — Chilton County was not one of the 13 Alabama counties in which rabid foxes were found during the first nine months of this year, according to the State Department of Health.

The Department's Bureau of Laboratories has prepared a county-by-county tabulation showing that its staff examined 91 rabid fox heads from January to September, inclusive. Only 76 were examined during all of last year. The counties from which positive fox heads were received this year prior to October, with the number received from each, were as follows:

Barbour, 2; Bullock, 1; Colbert, 3; Cullman, 1; Dale, 25; Dallas, 1; Franklin, 5; Geneva, 4; Henry, 11; Houston, 30; Jefferson, 1; Russell, 3.

In making this tabulation public, the State Health Department pointed out that later reports from branch laboratories might send this year's January-through-September total beyond 91.

PARABLE OF THE TALENTS

Alabama will soon receive national attention because a Jacksonville preacher believed what he read in the Bible.

Hartzell Spence, famous author of "One Foot in Heaven," has been in the state writing up the story of the parable of the talents for one of the big magazines.

Last January the Rev. Robert B McNeill, 34, "had a dream" that the parable of the talents in the Bible could be applied to modern finance He passed out $5, $10 and $15 from the church's treasury to the members and they agreed to put the money and their own talents "to work for the Lord."

The $810 loaned out came back with interest that totaled $6,854.

Six-year-old Sumner Thomas told his story:

"I bought pecans with my $5. I shelled them. I sold them for $35."

Little Tommy was followed by some 70 others among the 100 members of the little church here, each dropping an envelope into the box and telling how he or she made the money work for the church. Miss Erie Currier sold flowers and shrubs from her garden for $90, Mrs. C. F. Watts made $115 off rummage sales, Mrs. Eleanor Johnson crocheted and sold her handiwork for $50 and Miss Louise Bullock put on two puppet shows.

One youth promoted a softball game between the Presbyterians and the Methodists and made up $40 after he had split with the Methodists.

And the John Nisbet family, with father, mother, two sons and two daughters working, added a total of $350 to the church treasury with an outlay of $50. One son raised a Jersey calf, another sold penny peanut venders and the mother and daughters raised chickens. Mr. and Mrs. Solon Glover made mayonnaise with a new automatic mixer and sold it for $82.

As a result of the parable of the talents, the little Presbyterian Church has or will have a new organ, a new roof, a redecoration outside and inside, new lights, choir robes and about $1,000 in the bank.

The Rev. McNeill, a native of Birmingham who studied at the University of Kentucky and the University of Texas, ended his sermon:

"Well done, good and faithful servant."

Christmas Chest Drive

might have as merry a Christmas as possible.

Following a report from the needy committee Chairman Hickman reported that there will not be a needy family in the county that will not be taken care of this year. Elaborate plans and preparations have been made to see to it that everyone is taken care of this Christmas, that no needy family will go without, and that there will be no duplications in any case.

It has been reported to several members of the general committee that several persons from throughout the county have donations that they would like to make to the Chest, but have not known to whom the donations should be made. These donations should be made to any member of the general committee and more especially to the finance committee. Mr. Williams announced at the meeting that if anyone has a donation and is unable to turn it in then they can call Clanton 85, and a member of the finance committee will come by and collect it. Other members of the committee besides Mr. Williams include: Judge W. L. Parrish, Leo Thompson, Roy Roper, Fred Smith, Jemison; Leonard Bosworth, Thorsby; Mrs. Gladys DeRamus, Verbena; Joe Graham, Maplesville; and the presidents of the P.-T.A.'s throughout the county.

It was further announced that the collection point for all donations of clothing, food, etc., would be the same as that of last year, the showrooms of the Clanton Motors. All donations of this type should be taken to the Clanton Motors, which will also be the distribution and packing point.

At the close of last Monday night's meeting it was decided that another meeting of the full committee should be conducted this next Monday night at 7:00 p.m., in the auditorium of Radio Station WKLF and all members are urgently requested to attend.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

The Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County will receive sealed bids for the following:

One carload corrugated galvanized pipe 12" in diameter to 72" in diameter at random length.

Said sealed bids will be received until 10:00 a.m., December 12th, and will be opened in the presence of the Court. The lowest and best bid will be received, however, they reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

MOBILE BECOMES BILLION DOLLAR PORT

Huntsville — "The port of Mobile, for the first time in its more than 200-year old history, became a billion dollar port in 1949," Henry Sweet said before a courthouse gathering in this city Monday.

A billion dollars worth of goods from all parts of the world flowed in and out of Mobile port during this year.

Director Sweet also told the people that a $5,000,000 expansion program had just been completed, and now a new $2,000,000 project is underway. "Every penny of this expansion money has been paid for from profits earned by the docks themselves, and none of it has come from the taxpayers," Sweet said.

Sweet told the Tennessee Valley people that Congress had approved, but has yet to appropriate funds for the construction of a canal connecting the Tombigee with the Tennessee River. The proposed canal will shorten by 750 miles the water distance between Mobile and river ports of the Middle West.

Sweet pointed out that financially the Mobile State Docks have been a success. "During 1949," he said, "the docks averaged six per cent return on the over-all investment, besides paying all operating costs."

BACK TO FRONT, and front to back. That is what Mrs. Fletcher Hudson, Walker County home demonstration club woman, had to do with her house when the road turned to pass behind the original building.

Shown at right is the attractive new entrance she designed. Making this change required making changes in every room in the house except one. From the back porch she made a modern kitchen; two back bedrooms were converted into a living room and bath; the kitchen was made into a dining room, with double doors leading into the living room; and the old living room and dining room were changed into bedrooms.

In the picture Mrs. Hudson is seated on her new front porch.

A nice living room resulted when Mrs. Hudson changed the floor plan of her home. The living room, shown below, was made by combining two bedrooms. The farm woman is very proud of the large new mirror, her new drapes, and other decorations added during the remodeling.

With Mrs. Hudson in the living room is Jeanette McPhail, left, Walker County home demonstration agent.

The Road Changed--So Did The Hudson Home

MRS. Fletcher Hudson, president of the North Jasper Home Demonstration Club in Walker County, has just completed doing what hundreds of other ladies in Alabama would like to do.

This farm woman spent several enjoyable weeks making plans and working on the job of remodeling her home. Not content with beautifying the exterior for passers-by to see, she carried her work inside the house and redecorated her home completely.

The Hudson family built their farm home in 1937. It was a cozy little home but lacked many of the modern features it now has. Last year, Mrs. Hudson looked around and realized that she needed more room for her family. The house they had built was too small for their growing children. Besides, there was another problem.

When the new highway was built in the community, it turned and passed the back of their house, and one of the big jobs facing her was to make the back of the house into an attractive front entrance.

The back porch was converted into a modern kitchen, and two back bedrooms were combined to make a large living room. The original living room and dining room were made into bedrooms. Only the front bedroom remained the same; it has now become the back bedroom.

Home Agent Helps

While completely revising the order of her house, the home demonstration club president had a bathroom added. She also added some new furniture, refinished other pieces and added mirrors, new curtains, and bric-a-brac throughout the house. She was ably assisted in making the many changes by Miss Jeanette McPhail, home demonstration agent.

After finishing the interior except for painting, Mrs. Hudson waited several days to see a demonstration by Miss McPhail before going ahead with her work. She says the demonstration, "Color in the Home," which was given at 40 home demonstration clubs in the county, was most helpful. She believes that color is the most important factor in redecorating.

Substituting Cows For Cotton In The Tennessee Valley Area

WHEN allotments come along to cut down on the number of cotton acres being planted, many a good Alabama farmer will be looking around for a cash crop substitute. Some of them will find the answer in dairy cows.

Facts and figures derived from experiments and demonstrations show that the milk cow will make a very good substitute for cotton. One cow, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, requires about the same amount of work as an acre of cotton. And results on demonstration farms in the Tennessee Valley show that on a per-acre basis cows make more money.

A recent study by R. M. Reaves, assistant A.P.I. Extension district agent, and his co-workers at Athens, shows how dairying can be used profitably in combination with cotton on the average size farm. Comparing 1948 records of 10 cotton farmers and 10 cotton-dairy farmers in the UTD program, they found that the cotton group did 50 per cent more work for 40 per cent less income. The farms were all approximately the same size.

While the cotton farms produced an average labor income of $1,940 for 29 families, the combination farms gave 19 families an average of $2,411. The cotton farms had an average of 57 acres of cotton. On the other farms 15 cows were substituted for 42 acres of cotton, with the 42 acres being used to feed the 15 milk producers.

Better Chestnuts For The South

By J. C. MOORE, Assistant Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

THE chestnut tree that traditionally furnished wholesome food and enjoyment to many people on farms of the South and East has been practically wiped out by blight in the last few years.

This destruction has brought about search into foreign countries by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for types of chestnuts more resistant to blight. Chestnuts from China, Japan, Italy, France, and Spain were introduced for tests in the southern part of the United States by the USDA.

The A.P.I. Agricultural Experimenl Station made chestnut plantings at the Main Station and at the Gulf Coast Substation in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture. From these plantings a few promising selections have been made. The Chinese types have proved superior in quality, color, texture, blight-resistance, and vigor of tree to the other types.

Although some of the selections are highly resistant to blight and produce nuts of medium to large sizes, of good quality, texture, flavor, shape and color, they do not keep well in storage without special treatment. Storage methods, however, have been developed by the Experiment Station for preserving and keeping the nuts in good condition for six to 12 months.

The better Chinese selections bear young and produce heavy erops. Yields of 50 pounds per tree have been obtained from 10-year-old trees. Young trees seem to thrive well in a permanent sod of lespedeza sericea. Apparently the best spacing is 40 by 40 feet.

Chestnuts offered by nurseries at present are generally seedlings. If produced from seed from Chinese trees of high-quality nuts, isolated from other types, a good percentage of the seedlings should be of good quality, although they will be variable.

Coosa 4-H Chicken Chain Clicks

THE 4-H Club Poultry Chain is pulling more and more youngsters into the flourishing poultry industry of Coosa County.

With broilers and laying flocks becoming increasingly important to the economy of that section, farm boys and girls are setting a rapid pace for other chicken growers to follow. The poultry projects they have started on their own initiative are being helped along by the poultry chain which gives 10 members 100 free chicks each year.

When a boy or girl receives his chicks in the Spring, he has only one obligation—that of helping another member get a start next year. He pays this debt by selling 12 pullets in the Fall and buying 100 chicks for the new member. After these are sold, the remainder of the layers are his to do with as he sees fit. Most members are growing into the poultry business with these flocks.

The chain members who had chicks this year all did exceptionally good jobs of growing them into hens, report Jim Hubbard and Tom Cassidy, assistant county agents. In most cases, youngsters sell their roosters at broiler age for enough to pay for getting the pullets almost grown. The agents say this chain, sponsored by Sears-Roebuck and Company, Sylacauga, Alabama, has done much to assist 4-H members and arouse interest.

The year's work by the young poultrymen is climaxed in the Fall with a show in Rockford. Each member brings 12 of his best birds to compete for cash awards. Judges place them in three groups (Danish System) and each contestant receives a prize.

TWO PROUD WINNERS in the Coosa County Poultry Show this Fall were Baxter Davis, Equality, and Martha Laura Boyett, Rockford. They each won $20 for exhibiting blue ribbon pullets from their poultry chain flocks.

Baxter is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Lamar Davis, and Martha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Boyett. Both youngsters are outstanding members of their local 4-H Clubs.

Shown here with the two champions are E. D. Kitchens, left, manager of Sears-Roebuck and Company, Sylacauga; County Agent A. D. Jackson, and Home Agent Joyce Levins.

Million Bushels Sweetpotatoes Stored For Winter In Cullman

CULLMAN County farmers are working successfully toward regaining their position as leaders in sweetpotato production.

Potato growers in the county planted more than 6,500 acres this year and expect to harvest over a million bushels.

Realizing that the price for their crop will be much higher next January, February and March, many of the producers are storing their potatoes and will put them on the market when the price goes up.

Wallace Hathcock, Cullman, Rt. 6, is one producer who plans to take advantage of this price fluctuation. He planted 36 acres this year and plans to store about 3,000 bushels to sell later in the Winter. His storage house with a capacity of 5,000 bushels is heated with a wood burning stove. Hathcock located his stove in the cellar of the building in order to take advantage of the rising heat in getting good circulation.

The potato grower harvested 10 acres of his potatoes early in order to get them on the market for early high prices. He said this cut his yield but that the high price more than made the difference. And even then he made an average yield of close to 200 bushels per acre.

Farmer Hathcock and others, like Carl Peinhardt, Cullman, Rt. 4, say they plan to put more acres in potatoes next year and fewer acres in crops like cotton.

Peinhardt says he has long since learned that cotton just won't make the grade as the only source of income. He has seven acres of potatoes this year and wishes the thirteen he had in cotton had been in potatoes, or something else. In addition to cotton and potatoes Carl has a six-cow Grade A dairy.

Carl A. Peinhardt, Cullman, Rt. 4, is shown at left harvesting a seven-acre field of potatoes. Note that he is grading and crating his product in the field; this lessens the need for handling.

At right, H. G. Pinkston, left, Cullman County agent, and Wallace Hathcock, Cullman, Rt. 6, examine some of the 3,000 bushels of potatoes Wallace has in his storage house. The farmer will sell these next January, February, and March when the price is higher than it is now.

Along the Way

P. O. DAVIS

DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

AT the end of each year it is timely to look backward to see what happened during the year. Many things of high importance happened on Alabama farms in 1949.

The weather was more unusual than usual. Excess rains cost Alabama farmers many millions of dollars on cotton alone..

Last winter, we recall, was a very warm winter. Last summer was very rainy in most of Alabama. It was ideal for boll weevils.

For the first time in a quarter of a century boll weevils were very destructive on Sand Mountain and in most of the Tennessee Valley.

In addition to severe losses due to less cotton there were heavy costs in poisoning. One farmer told me that he poisoned 13 times. The cost was high but the practice paid.

In spite of all the handicaps of the year in cotton production I noticed that some farmers made more than others. Usually, these were farmers who planted at the right time, fertilized properly, and poisoned adequately.

So we now have good opportunity for farmers to learn by studying what their neighbors did; and also by discussing these matters with their county agents.

The Battle Rages On

I am told that there are still farmers who are doubtful about poisoning boll weevils. I doubt, however, if one who dusted properly has this feeling, even though rain after rain made poisoning very difficult and expensive.

But boll weevils were not all. Screw worms were with us in a big way.

And other insects were busy, too. In fact, our battle with bugs never ends.

Talks with farmers, and my observations over the state, reimpressed me with the safety and the high importance of livestock farming. It is true, of course, that feed crops are responsive to droughts and to excessive rains; but, still, there are fewer hazards with livestock for those farmers who are producing their own feed and doing a good job of livestock management.

As we review 1949, we recall that it was a year of unlimited planting of cotton. This may not be true for many years in the future. Cotton growers, on December 15, will vote on marketing quotas. If more than two-thirds vote for quotas, production control will become effective in 1950 with acreage allotments.

Quotas And Supports

If less than two-thirds vote for these quotas, there will be no quotas but unlimited planting in 1950; but also unsupported prices of cotton.

During all the years of marketing quotas I have endorsed them. If I were a cotton grower I would vote for marketing quotas this year, on December 15. But each grower, will vote his own wishes in the matter.

I wish that every farmer could be free to produce as much as he can of any product that he wants to produce, but I realize that this is not possible with support of prices. In other words, unlimited production and supported prices don't go together. Experience has demonstrated this conclusively.

With or without controls, 1950 will call for the best farming possible on the part of all operators. Costs will be high and prices may be lower.

So, whatever we do we must cut costs to produce at a low cost per pound or per bushel. And we must improve our land.

To do this we'll need all of the sound information available; and we'll need to make full use of it.

Four Generations Grow Corn

SIXTY-FOUR years ago A. E. Burkett had his young hands full trying to help his father clear off corn land in what is now the Avant community of Butler County.

The other day Mr. Burkett, now a youthful 82, was reminiscing. Early day corn yields in the community were usually about 12 to 20 bushels per acre. Farmers figured that was pretty fair and nobody gave much thought to making more.

But this season the fourth generation of Burketts—14-year-old Max—showed the folks something new. He made 128 bushels on one acre. Avant people visited the field, looked at the rich green stalks, and went away shaking their head. More than 100 bushels per acre! That's unheard of in this area!

But, above, "Mr. A. E.," grandson Max, and Max's father, Ernest, seem well pleased about the corn that it took four generations to make.

Spring Gardens Call For Winter Preparation

By J. C. FORD, Garden Specialist
A.P.I. Extension Service

THE farmer with an eye to growing the best Spring vegetables in the community will want to start early with plans for his garden. And December is a good time to begin preparation.

One thing he will want to think about is lime needs of the soil. Gardens should have lime once every four or five years, except on the lime soils of the Black Belt (the black and white lands). Either fine ground limestone, basic slag, Selma chalk or Ocala lime may be used.

Sandy soils need one ton of ground limestone or two tons of the other forms per acre. That is 100 pounds to a spot 22 by 100 feet or 44 by 50 feet in size. Clay soils need twice as much lime for gardens as do sandy soils.

Organic Matter

Another thing the garden needs is organic matter; every year it should have a heavy application. Animal manure is the best form of organic matter to use, though all forms are good. The best time to apply large amounts of manure is in the late Fall or early Winter before the ground gets too wet to plow. Then the manure is well rotted before dry weather threatens in the Spring or Summer.

Twenty tons of manure per acre (5 tons of poultry manure) is recommended for gardens. Two big cotton baskets to 100 feet of row is about the right amount to apply on small areas.

Garden spots that tend to be wet and cold in the Spring should be bedded out before Christmas. With water furrows between the beds, the tops of the beds can be worked slightly and planted early. It might be several weeks later before land left flat during the Winter could be planted.

Question Of Cotton Quotas

ON December 15, Alabama farmers will vote to settle the question of cotton quotas for the 1950 crop. They will also elect PMA farmer committeemen.

In discussing the referendum this week, State PMA Executive Officer B. L. Collins said the question of price supports will also be at stake in the voting. He explained that if quotas are approved growers will be assured of support prices on their 1950 cotton, but that acreage will be limited.

If quotas are not approved, acres will not be limited, but support prices will be held to 50 per cent of the support level.

Collins urged all farmers to go to the polls and vote their convictions. He said county offices were ready to give them full information about the question if there are parts they do not understand.

To supply one-sixth of the day's protein requirement, the main dish for each meal must contain about one-half ounce of protein for each person. The protein can come from a variety of foods.

Dying Land Brought Back To Life On Hale County Farm

"NOTHING does the heart of a farmer more good than to see an old, worn-out piece of land brought back to life."

A Hale County farmer made that statement while watching the land reclamation project under way on the McCann farm near Newbern.

Farmers of that section are seeing an excellent demonstration in this project, but what's more important to Mr. McCann, he is adding forty acres of good farming land to his place. The field he is bringing back into production is one that has been classed as wasteland for 40 years.

Engineering work in the field was done by Eugene Donovan of Marion. With his up-to-date heavy equipment he filled in gullies and ditches, constructed drains, cleared away growth, and built terraces. The land was then, broken with a bush-bog harrow, fertilized with 600 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre, and planted in Caley peas at the rate of 50 pounds per acre. Low places were seeded in Kentucky 31 fescue.

County Agent John Deavours told farmers that Caley peas restore life to Black Belt soil faster than any other crop. He explained that fescue was planted in the low areas to prevent washing.

As this forty-acre field returns to life and begins to pay for its reclamation, Deavours believes other farmers will begin to eye their own "dead" areas and make plans for putting them back to work.

A DAIRYMEN'S BANQUET, held recently on the A.P.I. campus, honored DHIA supervisors and dairymen for outstanding work and herd improvement. The banquet climaxed a two weeks DHIA short course for new supervisors.

The following supervisors received awards for accomplishments during the past year. First place, T. R. Meadows, Marengo County; second, J. S. Davis, Hale; third, C. C. Tucker, Shelby; and fourth, Neil Campbell, Jefferson.

Winning dairymen were, first place, J. A. Russell, Marengo; second, P. A. Tutwiler, Hale; third, Charles Bailey, Shelby; and fourth, H. G. Muir, Jefferson.

Above, Supervisor Meadows, left, is awarded first prize of $50 by J. Everette Flora, representative of Southern Dairies, Washington, D. C., whose company sponsored the contest. The sponsor also gave bronze plaques to the two first place winners.

Albertville Man Turns Inventor Makes Electric Well Windlass

A victim of polio when nine months old, Hoyt H. Bohannon grew up unable to be of much help around his home.

He tried hard enough. On wash days he insisted on drawing water. It was a tough job, clinging desperately to the well's side with one arm and turning the windlass with the other.

That courage, plus a sharp mind, made it possible for Bohannon to invent a simple device to take the drudgery out of drawing water.

This Albertville man has begun manufacturing his boyhood dream—what he calls the electric well windlass.

The simple windlass consists of an electric ¼ H.P. motor having a weatherproof cover of aluminum and a metal spool for the rope. This spool slides along the main shaft, to which the large wheel is attached and is thrown in and out of gear with the large wheel.

In operation, the bucket is lowered into the water by a free wheeling or unwinding effect when the spool is disengaged from the large wheel. As the bucket is lowered, its speed is checked by pulling a chain at the right hand end of the unit.

When the bucket has filled, the spool of rope is pushed in gear with the large wheel, the switch is turned on, and up comes the water at a speed about equal to drawing by hand.

Onto a small platform built at the well the electric windlass is bolted down with only two bolts. The device can be readily fastened to the top of a curb without building a platform.

A Million More Acres At Hand

ALABAMA farmers have at their feet literally thousands of unused acres that could be making them money.

These acres are in the low field areas and swamps that could be drained and reclaimed at a nominal cost. Most of them are in small areas that could be handled by individual farmers.

Recent checks on acreages of wet land show Alabama with 988,000 acres that could be made into profitable open land. A.P.I. Extension engineers say the needed drainage can be done with either heavy machinery or explosives—that in the long run these operations will pay for themselves.

Channels should be located early and blasted out during the wet season between December and April.

THE MONROEVILLE REGIONAL HOG SHOW, inaugurated last year for the showing of purebred Durocs and OICs, has become an annual event in Southwest Alabama. The show there this Fall attracted 250 entries by breeders from 15 Alabama counties.

At left, Monroe County farmer Millard Cole, Excel, displays the loving cup he was awarded for exhibiting the grand champion boar at the Monroeville event. With him is his champion, a young Duroc male of Cole's own breeding.

FEEDING hogs corn alone is like feeding people a bread diet. In finishing hogs on corn, 100 pounds of supplement saves 500 to 600 pounds of grain, makes hogs gain faster, and puts on more meat with less lard.

FALL dropped beef calves are proving more profitable than Spring and Summer calves in Alabama herds. If your beef bulls have been away from the herd, now is the time to turn them with the cows to get Fall calves next year.

USE Winter days to make your farm a more profitable business. Land reclamation, drainage work, strengthening terraces, repairing gates, building fences, and improving field roads and bridges—all these things make your farm more efficient and profitable.

ALABAMA gardens, except in lime areas of the Black Belt, need liming once every four or five years; stiff clay soils need twice as much lime as sandy soils. One ton of crushed limestone per acre on sand and two tons on clay are recommended. If basic slag, Selma chalk, or Ocala lime are used, double that amount is required.

YOU may need your general purpose garden dust to control vegetable weevils, worms, lice and leafspot on Winter gardens. So keep a supply on hand and be ready to use it.

ORCHARDS may be pruned as soon as cold weather makes the trees completely dormant; following pruning they will need spraying with oil emulsion. See your county agent about details of these important jobs.

IN South Alabama, December is the right time to begin planting forestry seedlings. Farther north, a little later is better and in the northern part of the state planting is more successfully done in February.

IF your Winter grazing is good, it's paying off this month. For that reason, December is a good month to test green feed crops and find out which ones are filling the bill. Then check back on how the best crops were handled—the information will come in handy next year.

Building Better Barns

Dairyman McEwen has been in the Grade B business for six years and is starting to produce Grade A milk with 20 cows that are fed the year around on grazing.

Picture 2. Pierce A. Garrett, left, Calera, Rt. 1, demonstrates for Assistant County Agent Buck Clarke the new aluminum type windows he is using in constructing his 10-stanchion Grade A barn. Garrett has been in the dairy business for 20 years and has a herd of 38 cows. He sold his first Grade A milk this Fall.

Picture 3. Mary Pearle Stone, daughter of Sam Stone, Wilsonville, Rt. 2, takes pride in showing County Agent A. A. Lauderdale the interior of her dad's new milking barn. She tells the county agent that she did the painting on the inside. Sam Stone, Grade B producer since 1943, had been selling Grade A milk one week when the above picture was taken.

Picture 4. One of the needs in operating a Grade A dairy is plenty of running water. In this picture Pierce Garrett was caught tinkering in the new pump house built along with his dairy barn. He even drilled a new well in getting ready for the new type of operation.

Shoot Wild Game Only!

NOW is the time of year when hunters begin thinking of slipping into the woods. Remember that some of these outdoorsmen will be carried home or will limp home wounded. Carelessness in the field takes a terrific toll among hunters every year.

Follow these 10 steps and enjoy happy hunting in safety:

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
2. Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the actions open, into your automobile, camp or home.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle.
5. Be certain of your target before you pull the trigger.
6. Never point your gun at anything you do not want to shoot.
7. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.
8. Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.
9. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water.
10. Don't mix gunpowder and alcohol.

The Missing Link

WHAT has been called the missing link in the livestock program of Alabama's Black Belt has now been added.

That link is a processing and storage facility for grain. It has been built by the Black Belt Elevator and Feed Company, an organization of farmers and business men. The plant, located at Selma, can manufacture feed at the rate of 100 tons in eight hours and is built to store 100,000 bushels of grain.

The plant was built primarily to serve farmers in Dallas, Perry, Wilcox, Chilton, Marengo, Bibb, Shelby, Montgomery, Hale, Lowndes, and Autauga Counties. In these counties alone 550,000 acres of corn are grown each year. With higher yields and more diversified farming, it is expected that even more corn will be produced. And in the past farmers have had inadequate marketing facilities for their grain.

At the same time $2,500,000 worth of feed is shipped annually into Selma for distribution to livestock farmers. In providing a market for grain, the plant will make available locally-produced feed for Black Belt farmers.

Operators at the facility have applied for qualification to store grain under the PMA program.

Shelby Sets Rapid Pace In Dairy Expansion

THE rate at which new Grade A dairy barns are springing up on green hillsides and in fertile valleys of Shelby County is enough to frighten refrigerator cars out of the Birmingham area.

Since last Spring 21 new barns, built to accommodate more than 600 cows, have been added to the already flourishing dairy industry of this small county. It is estimated that the new dairymen will supply about 12,900 additional pounds of Grade A milk per day to consumers in Birmingham.

And what's more important in Shelby is the fact that sales of this milk will put almost $800 a day into the pockets of local farmers.

Dairying has long been an important part of the county's agriculture, but County Agent A. A. Lauderdale and his assistant Buck Clark are encouraging more expansion.

Forty Per Cent Increase

"The new barns constructed this Summer make a forty per cent increase in the number of Grade A dairies," says Lauderdale. "But we know it is a sound business and that the market is wide open. As long as Birmingham hauls milk from other states to supply her population, we have too few dairies in this area."

The agent points out that the new Grade A dairymen are not new to the business of producing milk. Most of them have been selling Grade B products for several years and know the ropes. They have good herds already established, and their pastures and feeding systems are as good as can be found in the South.

"Meeting the qualifications for Grade A production will double the returns these farmers get from their cows," continues Lauderdale. "While their feeding expenses remain about the same, there will actually be less labor involved because of the conveniences afforded them in the new barns."

Converting to Grade A production calls for building barns, buying cooling equipment, heaters, etc. But the county agent is confident these expenses will be paid in short order. With the milk selling at more than twice the price paid for Grade B, he does not see how it can miss.

There is room for all kinds of dairying in Shelby County, and these changes from one type to another do not mean that the amount of Grade B milk sold will decrease to any large degree. New farmers are going into the business every month.

NEW CATTLE TOO are being added to the dairy herds in Shelby County's expanding dairy program. These twin heifer calves belong to the Shelby Springs Dairy Farm owned by Howard Hall, Calera, Rt. 2. They are registered Jerseys of high breeding. With the calves and their dam are Billy Morrison, dairy herdsman, and Howard Hall, Jr.

This dairy, operating with 50 good milk cows, now boasts a 31-stanchion barn. It was built this Fall from a two-year-old 11-stanchion barn.

He Wouldn't Give Up

Butler County Boy Makes Potato Project Pay

THERE are plenty of good things you could say about Lavaughn Skipper.

He's a handsome 16-year-old youngster with a wide smile and warm eyes. An earnest hardworking student, he does more than his share of the chores on his father's farm near McKenzie.

But somehow it seems that those who know Lavaughn best keep pointing out one trait above all others. "That boy has plenty of heart. Things don't beat him. I call it 'stickability'," remarked one friend.

That's a pretty fair measure of this Butler County farm boy who forgets about odds against him and goes on battling—and winning.

For example, look at what happened last Spring.

Lavaughn had his heart set on growing commercial sweetpotatoes, recalls George McMillan, assistant county agent. Plants were far from cheap and his dad couldn't see the way clear to put much on a crop that might not work out so well. After all, a small farm takes in just so much cash—and growing potatoes for market would be something new.

Decision Is Made

At the same time Lavaughn was agreeing with his dad on this, ways to get the plants raced through his mind.

Why not grow my own plants? he reasoned. Of course that took money, but not as much as buying plants. It meant risk—more risk than was involved in simply buying plants.

But Lavaughn had his mind made up. Using scraps of lumber, he built a bed in which 20 bushels of sweetpotatoes could be planted. The Butler County Sweetpotato Association listened to Lavaughn's plan, then loaned him money to buy the 20 bushels of certified Porta Ricans.

Once the bed was planted, the youngster lived and breathed potatoes. Seldom would he stray far from the spot in which he had so much hope invested.

The wood-fired bed never got too hot nor too cool. Weeds were carefully picked out. The tender slips never suffered from lack of water.

Finally that day arrived when the plants were taken out of the bed and put into the field. Lavaughn had seen to it that the ground had been made mellow and fertile.

No sooner had the field plantings been made than the skies opened up and rains came intermittently for days on end. The crop grew; the weeds grew faster.

Lavaughn's father, T. N. Skipper, anxiously watched a leaden sky, a weedy potato patch, and a grim son.

Weeks passed; the rains continued. "Well, son, it looks like the grass has got your potatoes. Give it up. We'll try again next year," the father suggested kindly.

"No. Not yet. Not ever," said Lavaughn.

Mud And Weeds

"That boy—and I helped him when I caught a chance—got into that field barefooted and pulled weeds in ankle-deep mud. He pulled, pulled, pulled. I thought his back would break—and maybe his heart," recalled Mr. Skipper, with a glint of pride in his eyes.

"He whipped that grass. Beat it worse than I ever saw it beaten," continued the father. "Those potatoes were laid by cleaner than a whistle. And then that ground seemed to turn to potatoes."

McMillan, who has worked with Lavaughn in many 4-H projects, went on to finish the story:

"The bed yielded 17,000 plants needed to set one and one-half acres, plus enough for sale to cover all expense of growing the plants.

"Some of Lavaughn's bumper crop was sold at a premium on the early market. Three-quarters of an acre set from field cuttings will be stored for sale when the market is highest. Too, he will have his own certified seed potatoes for bedding next year."

Happy over the financial outcome of Lavaughn's work and happier over his son's victory, Mr. Skipper, the other day, decided there should be a bigger sweetpotato crop next year.

Neighbors decided they would use certified plants from now on.

And Lavaughn? Well, he didn't have any decision to make for the moment.

But he thought that determination, backed by "stickability," is the way to get things done.

Friends say Lavaughn Skipper (center), of McKenzie, has what it takes to succeed at almost anything—determination. The Butler County 4-H Club boy's experience with a crop of sweetpotatoes proved it. Above he is in his potato field with his father, T. N. Skipper (left), and George McMillan, assistant county agent.

Fruit And Truck Crop Growers Plan For Better Years Ahead

THE best that can be said of the fruit and vegetable crop in Alabama this year is that it was not very profitable.

John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension specialist in commercial horticulture, made that statement at Auburn recently and explained it by pointing out that weather conditions, insects, and disease joined hands to give the farmer a bad year.

"This may sound pessimistic, but it does not mean that the fruit and vegetable producer is doomed," said Bagby. "It simply means he must concentrate more on controlling production yields and quality of product."

The farmer can do little to control the weather, but he can do something about other factors affecting production. For example, where earliness is of prime importance, he can plant at the right time. He can also plant his truck crops on good land. Otherwise they do not pay.

Certainly he can do something about diseases and insects. The wise grower remembers that most of these pests can be controlled by thorough use of recommended sprays or dusts. The cost of these materials and the labor involved is usually more than paid by quantity and quality of products grown.

The return per acre on truck crops is high. And this fact helps compensate for the risk and expense of production. Bagby says truck crops will be even more profitable to growers who keep the above suggestions in mind.

The Turkey Market

ALABAMA turkey growers were advised this week to consider ways of developing better local markets for their product.

Turkey is not found on Thanksgiving, Christmas and Sunday dinner tables in Alabama as often as in other parts of the country. Extension Poultryman John Weeks believes this is because markets are not well developed.

If we ate as much turkey as the average American eats each year, turkey growers in the state could sell 843,000 turkeys at home. But latest figures indicate we will produce only about 146,000 turkeys.

It's true some farmers may have trouble selling their birds. Even during years when smaller numbers were produced they had trouble. But Weeks says there is no good reason for this if growers have a quality product to offer. Trouble in marketing, he believes, is caused by overloading one market and neglecting another.

Too often cities are looked upon as the only available place to sell turkeys. Actually, these markets are glutted with turkeys that could be sold nearer the producer. Last year one Alabama grower sold a $11,000 turkey crop in a town with a population of less than 8,000 people. At the same time he established a lasting reputation that will help him dispose of turkeys when they are hard to sell.

There are many communities in Alabama where the housewife does not have an opportunity to buy a top quality turkey in an attractive package. They would be glad to buy from a nearby grower who has good birds he can deliver ready for the oven.

"Alabama has a wonderful market for turkeys," Weeks declares. "It just needs developing, and this will be done only through the full efforts and support of turkey growers."

Chilton County Ministers Will Work Together

The Rev. W. Brunson Atkinson, Minister of the First Methodist Church, of Clanton, Alabama, was elected to the presidency of the Chilton County Ministerial Association at a meeting held Monday of this week. The Rev. J. H. Alpin was elected as the secretary, according to an announcement made today by the Rev. John Smith, Minister of the Presbyterian Church and but-going secretary of the organization.

The Ministerial Association formerly was composed of only the ministers serving churches in the City of Clanton, but according to the new plans set in motion Monday, every minister serving a church or churches in Chilton county is eligible for membership in the Association.

"We sincerely believe that there is a need for every minister in our county to join hands and hearts in the work of building God's Kingdom here and now", the newly elected President stated. "And, it is equally important for each church to reach those for whom they are responsible. There is no place in Christ's plan for the Christian church for competition, but every Christian is anxious for everyone to be reached with the message of Jesus" he added.

The next meeting of the Chilton County Ministerial Association will be held at the First Methodist Church, Clanton, on January , 1950, at 10 o'clock, in the Wesley Fellowship classroom. Every minister of the county is invited and urged to attend.

The award is for $300, and was presented during a recent Home Economics convocation in Tuscaloosa. In order to win the Barden Award, it is required that at least two courses in foods have been completed.

Miss Studdard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Studdard.

Builders of Clanton ONE OF A SERIES

"The cash register is ringing about the same way it was last year," declared Mr. Lester Jones of the Big Four Hardware Company. "I've heard some grumbling around town, but I believe that business is good and will get better."

Thats the kind of confidence that has made Lester Jones one of the "Builders of Clanton." He was born and raised in Chilton County, farmed for a while and then worked around sawmills. He settled down here in March of 1923, and hasn't got any plans to move anywhere. He likes it here.

"We've had our ups and downs," he said when we interviewed him this week. "At times it looked bad, but we hung on and I'm glad we did. Central Alabama is good territory for my business, and I think it's going to get better."

At the Big Four, where Lester is general manager and principal owner, they supply building materials, electric appliances and other hardware lines to Clanton and the surrounding communities.

Lester is proud of the hedges and lawn he and his wife have put on the grounds of their house on the Selma Road. Lester married Miss Glennie Thompson, daughter of Mrs. G. W. Thompson, about three years ago.

For recreation, he has taken up golf, and says his game is getting better. "It couldn't get any worse, so it had to get better," he laughed, and declares he plays a "fair game" now.

The way he has worked himself up in the community is a good sign that Clanton is a city of opportunity—and we wish him a lot of luck as the years go by.

Alabama Says 'Yes' On Vote For Hospitals

Chilton County went along with the rest of Alabama last Tuesday in favoring the hospital aid amendments to the state constitution.

Although the county vote will not be tabulated in this county until Friday, unofficial returns indicated that Chilton favored the hospital amendments by about two or three to one.

Seven other amendments, all of local interest to other counties, also got a "yes" vote from the citizens at the polls.

Etowah County was the only county in the state that went against the hospital aid amendments. The vote up there was a decisive "no."

There was a light vote everywhere in the state, due to lack of organized campaigns either for or against the measures, and it looks as though the vote won't total much over 75,000 altogether. Usually, Alabama votes up to 250,000 to 300,000 ballots.

APPRECIATION

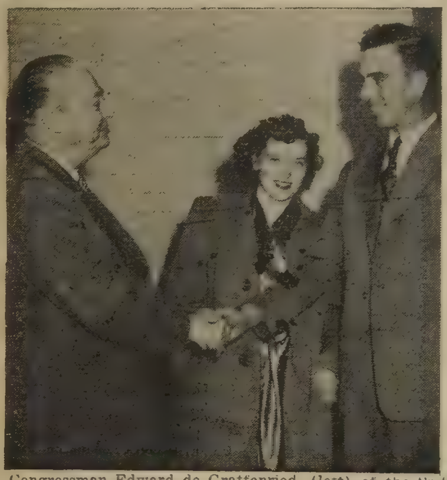
Public Ceremony To Mark First Farm Housing Loan



Congressman Edward de Graffenried, (left) of the Sixth district, congratulates Mr. and Mrs. James E. Donovan, newlyweds of Rte 2, Maplesvile, Ala., upon their approval to receive the first farm housing loan in his District under the new Housing Act of the Congress. The loan will be closed in a public ceremony at the Chilton County courthouse at 10:30 a.m. on December 21. Mr. and Mrs. Donovan have been married two months. He is a World War II veteran and owns an 80 acre farm without a home, barn or building of any kind on it.

Program For District Starts With Approval Of Maplesville Couple

The first of a series of farm housing loans in the Sixth Congressional District under the new Housing Act of the Congress, will be closed in a public ceremony at the Courthouse at 10:30 a.m. on December 21, with Congressman Edward de Graffenried as the principal speaker.

The loan will be made to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Donovan, newlyweds of Rte 2 Maplesville, who own a fine 80 acre farm without a home, barn or building of any kind on it. They will receive a check for $4,300 to construct a modern six room bungalow for $3,000 and $800 barn, a water system and other improvements. They have been renting an old house for which they pay $120 a year rent. They will have a maximum of 33 years to repay the housing loan at four per cent interest and their annual payments will be approximately $240.00.

The event is jointly sponsored by the Clanton Chamber of Commerce, the Lions and Kiwanis clubs and the County Committee of the Farmer's Home Administration. Besides Congressman de Graffenried, speakers will include representatives of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Agricultural leaders and others. Cohen Stapp, secretary-treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside, Ben Tucker, Chamber of Commerce director, is joint chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The check will be presented by Julian Brown, State Director of the Farmer's Home Administration.

According to Mr. Stapp, the ceremony will be a tribute to Congressman de Graffenried for his work in behalf of farm housing legislation and will spotlight the agricultural and industrial progress of Chilton county. Under this new act, he said, the farmer now has a parity of opportunity with the city resident to obtain long term low interest loans for home construction and repair. The building of farm homes, he said, will bring increased activity in the construction industry and all lines of business.

Two Teen-Age Boys Held For Swiping A Taxi

When a taxi driver has to walk home—that's news. And two teenagers are in jail today because they stole Clifford Easterling's Snyder Taxi last Thursday night.

According to the story that's told about it, Toney Price, 17, and Edsel Moates, 17, hired Easterling to drive them cut the Billingsley Highway about 9 o'clock last Thursday night.

After he was ordered to stop the car about five miles down the highway, Easterling reported that he was choked and hit over the head with a shoe. While a knife was held on him, he got into the back seat. After a short ways, the driver slowed down for a big bump in the road, and when he did Easterling jumped from the car and made his way to a nearby farm house and summoned officers.

Moates was picked up after midnight at his home, and Price was taken at the home of his brother about the same time. The taxi was found five miles south of Clanton where the boys told the officers they had left it.

Chest Drive In High Gear As End Nears

With the slogan: "Give as much as you can, but give, to the Chilton County Christmas Chest," the Christmas Chest drive is soaring with over $700 already donated and several hundred more pledged to make this Christmas one of the merriest for the underpriviledged of Chilton County.

Next to the final meeting of the Chest workers was held last Monday night in the studios of WKLF and confidence of the success of the drive was expressed by Rev. A. T. Hickman, general chairman. Rev. Hickman complimented every worker present, and said that he believed this year's Christmas Chest would be more successful than last year's.

Cooperation from all ministers from throughout the conty has been assured. Each one appearing on Radio Station WKLF has agreed to push the drive as much as possible as well as reminding every church goer from the pulpit to: Give as much as you can, but give to the Chilton County Christmas Chest.

During the past week up until Tuesday morning the following new donations were received: Chicago Sales Co., $10.00; WKLF, $10.00; Alabama Power Co., $5.00; Woodmen of The World, $50.00; Clanton Lions Club $25.00; The Homemakers Class Baptist church, $25.00; and the Catholic Resurrection, $10.00. This brings the total in the Chilton County Christmas Chest fund up to $702.79, with a goal of $1,500 to be reached by next Tuesdday night.

Rev. Hickman warned his chest workers that with less than one to go it will be necessary for extra effort to be put into the last stretch of the drive in order to meet the goal set. He further explained that this deadline, December 20, was set in order that the buying and distributing and packing committees might have plenty of time to get heir work done before the big boxes are distributed to Chilton county's needy.

The next and final meeaing of the full committee and workers is scheduled to be conducted Tuesday night, December 20, at 7:00 p.m. in the Clanton City Hall. Chairman Hickman urged that all workers that can possibly attend be at the meeting. He further put out a call for all those working outside Clanton to get their donations in as soon as possible and urged that they in particular attend Tuesday night's meeting.

First Methodist Plans Its Annual White Christmas

The annual White Christmas Program of the First Methodist Church will be held in the Sanctuary at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 18, according to an anouncement made today by Mrs. Joe W. Campbell, the General Chairman.

"The entire Children's Division of the Church School will participate in the Program this year, and we are expecting a record crowd in attendance." Mrs. Campbell said. "Everyone is urged to attend and to be prepared to make their usual offering "for our Other Children," who are being cared for by our Church at the Methodist Children's Home in Selma," the Chairman added.

Outside Nativity Scene

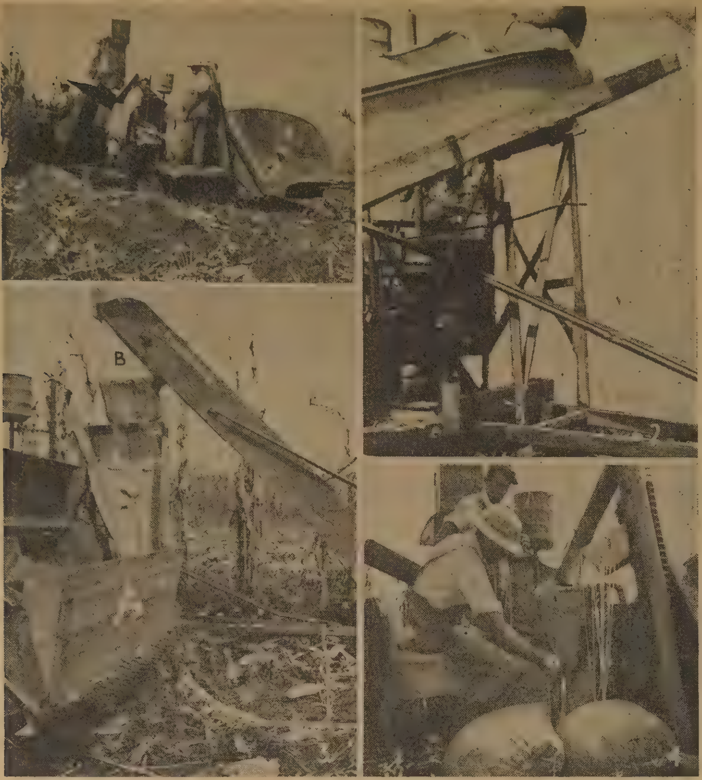
An added feature to this year's Christmas Program of the First Methodist Church is an outside, lighted nativity scene, which will be erected, in life-size, by a committee headed by Mrs. C. C. Fiquette. This scene will be located on the lawn between the Church and the Parsonage, and will be constructed by the committee and ready for display on the 19th of December, according to plans.

Christmas carols will be heard from the tower system and the organ during next week, at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 5 p.m., it was announced.

On The Air Sunday

The morning worship at the First Methodist Church next Sunday morning, December 18, will be broadcast over Station WKLF, according to the Radio Log. Special Christmas music and message will be featured, and our great host of shut-ins will join in this service. Appreciation is extended to Manager Bob Taber and the staff of WKLF for this community service rendered by them to Chilton County and surrounding territory.

Last Sunday was "Methodist Men's Club Sunday' at the First Methodist Church, and a great crowd of men in attendance at the morning hour, when the minister, the Rev. W. Brunson Atkinson, delivered a message on, "Carry A Little Honey." The adult choir rendered special music. Friendliness and Christian fellowship prevailed. The general public is always invited to attend any and all the services. Everyone is urged to be in their place in their church next Sunday, and throughout the New Year.



Two-In-One Corn Harvester Used At Tallassee Breeding Unit

A farmer who has a corn picker and a combine available can save two big labor jobs by picking and shelling dry corn in the field.

The combination of the two implements, with some adjustments and changes, was used successfully to harvest and shell dry corn in one operation last Fall at the A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station's Plant Breeding Unit near Tallassee (Figure 1 above).

The two-in-one operation saved two labor jobs—storage of ear corn and later removal and shelling, says E. F. Schultz, Jr., assistant plant breeder, who developed the necessary changes for combined use of the two pieces of equipment. The addition of the combine did not slow down picking. The combination, he said, has picked and shelled daily as much as 500 bushels of dry corn from 10 acres at the Plant Breeding Unit. The cost of making the changes amounted to about $10 for materials and $20 for labor.

The combine cylinder was adjusted to do the best shelling job possible, which in this case was raised to a clearance of fifteen-sixteenths of an inch. Six additional angle bars were added to the cylinder, and the combine was slowed down to about 400 to 500 r. p. m.

A light angle iron frame (Figure 2) was built on the "A" frame of the combine to support a chute built of ordinary sheet metal, which carries the corn from the picker into the combine's cylinder.

Wood framing was used to close off the header of the six-foot combine (Figure 3-A) and to form a hopper at the cylinder. A wood box frame was built to fit the rear of the picker elevator (Figure 3-B). This deflects the corn coming off the elevator into the chute and then into the cylinder.

The shelled corn is bagged (Figure 4), and the sacks are picked up from the ends of rows with a truck.

Is She A Better Cow?

WHEN a cow jumps her production by 600 per cent, she's approaching some kind of a record. But there's always a reason for such rapid increases.

One Limestone County family found the reason in the case of their milk cow—they saw the change come about when she was started on good, green Winter grazing.

Mrs. William Abernathy of the J. W. Tillman farm says, "While our cow was producing on stall feeding alone she was giving one-half gallon of milk per day, but after three weeks of grazing on ryegrass and clover she increased the amount to three gallons."

County Agent F. K. Agee says this case is unusual in that the cow had no grazing at all before she was turned on the ryegrass and clover. He explains that this farm is one that has been reclaimed only two months and that the grazing program was started "from scratch." But he can cite no better example of what green grazing means to livestock.

The agent points out that if this farm, after two months of operation, can have that kind of grazing, almost any farm in the South can do the same.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Four of us were lined up at the coffee emporium the other day when a fellow townsman came in and remarked: "Now there are four aces if I ever saw them." One of the waitresses is still arguing with us that it wasn't 'aces,' that the fellow said.

Don't know whether there is more poverty and want in the county this year than usual or we are just hearing more about it. Seldom a day passes that our attention isn't brought to a deserving case. It would take a millionaire to do the things that you would like to do, if it were possible. A letter which was received the past week ended with the apology: "I regret that we are placed in this position," which was an understatement we are sure. The letter asked for help from the Christmas Chest for three little girls and two little boys. None will receive any Christmas without the help of those in the county who are able and unselfish enough to give part of their "blessings" to those who are less fortunate. Stir about for the next few days and see for yourself the hunger and suffering in our own Chilton County, Alabama. And then contact Rev. A. T. Hickman and offer a little of your services and a lot of your cash to the Christmas Chest. You'll digest your turkey dinner better for having made a small heart happy.

James, the colored courthouse janitor, who in the past few months has been called before juries, auditors, lawyers, etc., many, many times in connection with the investigation of county funds, was at a local establishment the other evening mopping. He was bent over rubbing for dear life when someone dropped a huge bucket that made an awful noise. "Lordy goodness," said James, "don't do anything like that. I'se already mighty nervous."

Christmas shopping feather set in the past week end. We told you to do your Christmas shopping early like nearly everybody else always don't.

Danger Signals Of Cancer

Editor's note: This is the fifth of a series of articles of early cancer, furnished the Chilton County News by fefbers of the Chilton County Medicol Society.

By E. M. Moore, M. D.

Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing may be the symptom of the most common and most deadly of all types of cancer— cancer of the digestive tract. Almost half of all cancer deaths are charged to cancer in this portion of the body, although well under a third of all cancers develop in the digestive tract.

The reason for the disproportionately high number of deaths from digestive tract cancers is that most of these patients first seek medical attention when their cases are rather far advanced.

The reason is that the general public is not sufficiently aware of the symptoms that may indicate cancer is developing. Unfortunately the early symptoms of digestive cancer are the kind that many people usually ignore for many months. Over and over again, patients have a history of self-medication for weeks and even months before they went to their doctors.

Vague indigestion, loss of appetite, gas and belching may be the only signs present in the early stages. Unexplained loss of weight —a little later symptom— may be the first sign the patient heeds. And sime patients wait until nausea and anemia drive them to seek medical advice. Severe pain usually is a late symptom, and at this point, chances of cure are not good.

A sticking sensation when swallowing food or a fulness or heaviness behind the breast bone should be investigated. Distaste for certain foods particularly meat, sometimes is a warning. So are stomach ulcer pains that do not clear up rapidly under a medically prescribed diet.

All, or any, of these symptoms, especially for people over 40, demand a thorough examination probably including X-ray, by a competent physician, if they persist beyond two weeks.

The tendency by many people to minimize definite, though mild, changes from normal is one of cancer's greatest allies. because it tends to spread early to other parts of the body, cancer of the digestive tract must be treated early to be cured.

But in spite of the difficulty in detecting malignant tumors of the digestive thact, these cancers, like others, can be cured if recognized and treated in time.

The responsibility for getting early treatment lies with the patient who must recognize the earliest symptoms of the disease and put himself in competent medical hands at once.

Why Join Church?

The church is the greatest insitution in the world. It is described and compared in the Bible to a Household; as a Temple; as the Bride of Christ; as a living organism; as the Light of the world, as the salt of the earth. And the Church of Jesus Christ is all this and then some. But you cannot join the church of the living God. You can join clubs, lodges and other organizations, but when it comes to joining the real Church of Jesus Christ, you cannot. The Lord adds to the Church such as are saved. In order to be a member of God's Church any one has to be born of the Spirit, quickened and made alive in Jesus Christ.

REV. HICKMAN

This being true, why do not our ministers put more emphasis on being saved, than on joining the church? Today, about all the emphasis is put on church joining, and church membership. It is not "how many were saved or born of the Spirit during a revival," but they talk of the "additions." How many they got to join the church.

Dear reader, I cannot over emphasize that church membership will not save the soul. No one should offer himself or herself for church membership who has not first witnessed being born of the Spirit of God, witnessed a change of heart and life, saved by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. I have been in the Gospel ministry since 1921, and I have never emphasized church joining, but I have seen thousands of souls find their way to Christ, and experience true repentance, and regeneration at an old fashioned altar of prayer. Such witnessed something in their heart and life that makes them know that they are new creaturs in Christ Jesus, old things having passed away, and new things coming into their lives. Every Christian should unite with some local church, and work for the advancement of the cause of Christ and his Kingdom on earth, but wait about joining the church until you are saved by the grace of God.

The story is told of a young girl, while spending vacation with an aunt, she joined the church and was baptized during a protracted meeting. When she returned home, she told her mother, saying, "Oh, mother, I joined the church and was baptized." The mother said, "Sit down and tell me all about it." The daughter replied, "That is all there is to it." Friend, there should be more than that to it when we join the church and be baptized. We should have witnessed a changed heart and life by the grace and Spirit of God.—Amen.

BAPTIST W.M.U. MEETS

The circles of the Womens Missionary Union of the First Baptist Church of Clanton met on Monday, December 12th, as follows:

Teel gave the devotional, reading from the Book of Mark and other books of the Bible about the Xmas Story. Mrs. Teel also told of how other countries celebrate Xmas. After the business session Mrs. W. J. Duke dismissed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served to ten members.

Mrs. G. C. Walker entertained Circle 5. Program theme was Tidings for All The World. Luke 2:10-11.

Devotional by Mrs. A. L. Robinson. The Xmas Story. Luke 2:8-11, Mark 1:16-17. Christ Born Unto Jesus, the Gentiles, the Common People, the Sinners and He was Born Unto You.

The books and records of the Town of Thorsby were audited last week by a State Auditor.

We had the pleasure of meeting this man, and in conversation with him, he made a statement which made us rather proud. He stated that he was very much surprised to come to such a small town to audit its affairs, and to find such a perfect set of books, well kept and everything in complete balance.

He stated that this was the 21st municipality which he had audited this year, and that he found here the most complete set of books that he had audited so far. He even said he would like for some folks down his way to come up here and take some lessons.

Our hats are off to our Mr. Sam Mims, who set up this bookkeeping system, also, of course, to our City Clerk, Mrs. Clyde Livingston, who collects and keeps the records.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marcus and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Collins returned Saturday night from Florida, where they went on a fishing trip. They had a good trip and some nice fishing, and that is not just a "fish story" either, for we had a nice mess of fish which they brought back to us, and it was certainly fine.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Collins of Birmingham spent the week end with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker.

Another Christmas season is just around the corner. Already, Christmas greetings have started coming in. A time when one hears from old acquaintances who are perhaps not heard from at any other time. Among our cards we note one especially from an old-time, Clyde Mead and family. Clyde is still working on construction of big power dams and is now in Auberry, Calif.

We drove down to the "Drive-In" Theatre the other night, and noticed quite a transformation over the last trip we made down there. The place had been made attractive with shrubbery of various kinds, as well as bird baths and different yard ornaments. We learned that our able Wayside Gardner, Mr. Lloyd Howard had been down there and landscaped the place and planted the shrubbery. He has recently erected a hugh Christmas tree which will be illuminated during the Christmas season.

So far we have noticed the absence of fire works. Usually at this time we were pestered with these things being thrown right and left, and it was far from enjoyable to hear the shooting of fire crackers at Christmas time when the spirit of peace and quiet should prevail. We are certainly proud of the fact that our State has finally outlawed the things and we sincerely hope that the laws will be upheld. After reading of the tragedy which happened to one of our Chilton County boys, we should all be glad that they have been outlawed in our home State.

MAPLESVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

Maplesville F. F. A.—

The Maplesville Future Farmers of America met last Saturday for their second wood cutting.

The wood cuttings are put on by the boys and are for the purpose of equiping the vocational agricultural shop. The shortage of coal provided one way by which the chapter could earn some money for equipment. They decided that they could fire the furnace with wood, therefore the idea was carried to the board with the proposition. The Agriculture teacher, Mr. Carlos Owens, and the FFA boys told the board, "We will fire the furnace if you fill give us the money otherwise spent for coal." The board did what the FFA asked. They were given $350.00 plus $2.00 which the board matched.

Now the FFA boys keep close check on the school's wood pile. When it gets low they have a Saturday working. They bring tractors, cut-off saws and trucks.

The service stations in Maplesville have made liberal donations of gasoline to operate the machinery, which is greatly appreciated.

The cooperation of the boys, their fathers and brothers, the service stations and the school's principal, Mr. J. E. Daniel, has been one hundred per cent.

The FFA, thru wood cutting, contests, magazine selling and other activities, have raised $718.25. Of this amount $621.11 has already been spent for shop tools.

The shop is open to the public each Monday night and they invite the people of Maplesville and vicinity to come to see them, repair your farm machnery or use their shop in any other way which you like.

Mr. Owens, the Vocational Agricultural teacher is to be commended for the fine work he is doing here in this phase of teaching.

Parole Board Upheld By Folsom; Hospital Amendments Praised

Governor Tells What He Has Done On Welfare, Roads

Gov. James E. Folsom, in a talk scheduled for delivery at Birmingham Dec. 12, upheld the Pardon and Parole Board and reviewed the progress his administration has made in the past three years.

Gov. Folsom said:

We are here in Birmingham today, holding the sixth in a series of regional cabinet meetings, in an effort to take the government home to the people. It has always been my policy and belief that the government which operates closest to the people, is the government which renders the best and fullest service to the people.

And so we are here today—me and my entire cabinet, the heads of your state government—to lay the cards face up on the table. We are here to report to you on the trusteeship of your government which the voters of Alabama entrusted to us.

That trusteeship was based upon a program which I advocated when I was a candidate for the office of governor. I am glad to say, that after almost three years of the Folsom administration, that program in its entirety, has remained the one great goal toward which this administration has worked without let-up and without compromise.

True and Loyal

This administration has remained true and loyal to its campaign program, a program which the voters of this state supported with the largest overwhelming vote ever cast in any gubernatorial race in the history of Alabama.

Time and time and time again I have returned to the people, to report on the progress of those campaign promises—to tell the people about the things which have been accomplished, and to tell them about the things yet to be done. That is why I am here today. That is why I have been holding regional cabinet meetings in all corners of the state. That is why I have been back to every county seat in the state at least twice since I became governor. And that is why I'll keep going back to the people as long as I'm in the Governor's chair.

Branch-head Networks

People in certain quarters have criticized me for what they call my "branch-head" method of government. They dislike the way I have kept the branch-head folks informed about their government. They dislike the branch-head folks having an active part in their government.

To those critics, I would like to say, There are a lot more branch-heads in Alabama than there are boulevards!

In the past, the country folks of Alabama have had very little opportunity to have an active voice in their government. They have had very little chance to talk with the governor and the department heads. It is true that they have marked their X's on election day, but beyond that, they have been the great neglected element of our population. One of the high purposes of this administration has been to give to those people a fair and just voice in the decisions and policies of their state government.

We all know that the cities will always have their voice registered in government because they have the money, the politicians and the lobbyists who look out for their interests, who make known their desires, who see that favorable laws are passed in their belief.

Evening Things Up

This administration has simply tried to put things on an even keel—to give everybody an equal say-so. And if I am called a "Branch-head Governor" for doing that, then I want to state that I am proud to be a "Branch-head Governor."

There is not a single part of the program which I have advocated, but what helps the cities just as much as it does the country folks. In fact, in almost every single instance, the city has benefitted from this program more than the country.

There are more destitute people per capita in cities who are drawing old age assistance than there are in the country. The farm-to-market roads have been a commercial boost to the cities, just as much as they have to the farmers. And on down the line.

Now for a few minutes, let's review that program, the program which the people voted for so overwhelmingly.

What Of Old Folks?

What about the old folks, the folks who toiled and sweated to make this state the land of opportunity that it is today? What about them? I presented to the legislature a plan to give every person who had reached 65 years of age, and who qualified under Federal rules, the sum of $50 per month. And what's more, I presented a budget program, along with my proposal to the legislature, showing definite ways and means by which that program could be financed. While it received magnificent support from many legislators, there were certain sore-heads who blocked every attempt to provide for the welfare of the old folks of this state.

Progress Is Made

Yet, despite all the hamstringing and the hold-backs, progress has been made. Today there are 102,000 people in Alabama who are being assisted by the Welfare program. These people are the old folks, the blind, the orphans, the crippled and handicapped. They are people who must have help if they are to maintain the bare essentials of food, fibre, and shelter. Those 102,000 people represents a total of 44,000 more than were getting help when I took office. I am proud of that increase. It means that there are 44,000 more homes in Alabama today that are assured food on the table, medicine in the cabinet, and a roof over their heads, than there were less than three years ago.

Of the 102,000 who are being helped, 80,000 of them are old folks, and there are 33,000 more of them getting aid today than were being helped three years ago. And I am happy to report that we are putting an average of 2,000 old folks every month on the assistance list.

I regret indeed that Alabama does not pay each one of these old people a sum sufficient for a decent living. I regret that the amount has to be an average of about $22 instead of the $50 which I recommended to the legislature.

Perhaps the best indication as to how we've been able to increase the aid to the old folks, the blind, the needy, is shown in the fact that during 1949 our Welfare Department distributed $29,000,000 in assistance funds, compared with just over $11,000,000 three years ago.

The Roads Program

And roads, what about roads? What about the black-top roads for the school routes and the mail-boxes, that I advocated? About all we have done is just to make a dent in the real needs. It's true that we've built 2,400 miles of black-top roads during this administration. It may be surprising when you realize that all those roads, built end on end, would stretch from Washington to San Francisco. We have built almost twice as many roads in three years as any other administration ever built in four years. We're proud of that, proud of being able to get farmers and school buses and mailmen out of the mud and ruts of dirt roads.

This has been done despite the fact that neither the $40,000,000 nor the $80,000,000 road program which I proposed to two different sessions of the legislature ever got past the Senate chamber. . . .

I believe that it is good business to build good roads. I believe that good roads are an investment in our people, a boost to our commerce, and a security for our general welfare. I believe that an investment in roads is the safest investment for the tax dollar that is possible.

I believe that the people at large feel that way too. That is why, when I proposed the $80,000,000 road program to the 1949 legislature, I asked them to submit the plan to the people so that they could have an opportunity to vote for, or against, such a road-building program. And I think that it is nothing short of a public disgrace that the Senate of Alabama did not give the people of this state an opportunity to vote on whether or not they wanted a large scale road program.

School Teachers

Back in 1946 I talked a lot about paying school teachers $1800 a year. At that time a lot of folks thought that such a figure was fantastic, and I'll admit that it was rather high sounding. In '46 teachers were getting an average pay of $1239. Today that average payment is $1909. That still does not, by any means, provide for an $1800 minimum for every teacher, but it has been a major relief to their economic burden. This increase has largely been possible through the $25,000,000 hike in funds which the Revenue Department has collected for the Special Education Trust Fund. Half of this amount was made possible by the income tax surplus, but the rest was collected without any increase in taxation—simply by applying the same collection yardstick to every person alike. During 1949 this trust fund for schools received $54,000,000, while in '46 it got $28,000,000. And it looks now that there will still be another increase during the coming year—every dollar of which will insure a fuller measure of education for our children.

Our over-all tax program has undergone a change which should be a source of pride for our people. Revenue Commissioner Phillip Hamm has done such a noteworthy job in administering the tax laws of Alabama, as to attract nationwide favorable comment. The big and the little have been treated without fear or favor, and as a result, $95,000,000 were collected this year, compared with $64,000,000 in '46. That was done without any new increases in taxation.

Matching Funds

In looking back over the past three years, one of the saddest parts of it to me is the millions and millions of dollars we lost by not making full opportunity of Federal matching funds.

Our senators and congressmen go to Washington and pass laws to benefit the welfare of the states, and yet when some states do not put up the first dollar to take advantage of the matching fund, it gives just that much more money to the other states. Hence the rich states become richer at the expense of the poor ones.

From October '48 to October '49, a total of $237,000,000 in tax money went out of Alabama to Washington. And during the same time only $54,000,000 of that was returned to Alabama through the entire federal aid program to all branches of the state government.

That amount should have been doubled, and easily could have been [illegible] if the situation had been sought out and realized. I believe that it is bad financing, and bad business in general for the state not to take fuller advantage of the matching funds. We can travel three times as far and as fast on the road to progress for hospitals, highways, welfare, education, and many other phases of state government by putting up just one-third of the required expenditures.

I trust that the next legislature will take a broader and more long range view of the matching fund business than has been done in the past.

Now there were some things in that 1946 program of mine which didn't get enacted into law.

Reapportionment

Efforts were made during both legislative sessions to get bills passed which would correct some of the ridiculous and scandalous situations which exist today under our present legislative apportionment. No less than a thousand times I have spoken out

AUXILIARY CHRISTMAS PARTY

The ladies of the American Legion Auxiliary of Chilton County, Unit No. 6, entertained their families and friends at a Xmas party on Friday evening of last week, at the Clanton Country Club.

The windows of the club room were artistically decorated with pine-boughs, red and green crepe paper and miniature Xmas figures. A large pine tree, which was beautifully decorated, stood between two windows. Under the tree were piled pretty wrapped packages for each one present.

A delicious buffet supper was served from a table decorated with green pine and red Xmas candles.

Each guest carried a gift to put under the tree, numbers were drawn and about this time 'Ole Santa arrived to present the gifts.

After the social hour Mr. George Cameron from the rehabilitation office in Montgomery was introduced as guest speaker by Commander Raymond Mims of Chilton County American Legion. Mr. Cameron gave a very inspiring talk on "Rehabilitation of Our War Veterans."

Mrs. Cameron accompanied her husband to Clanton for the Xmas party. Chairman of the Committee was Miss Sylvia Lambert, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Morrison, Mrs. E. J. Morris and Miss Carolyn Montgomery.

There were forty who enjoyed the lovely party.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones Explains Auditorium And Sewer Question

Editor Chilton County News:

There is considerable talk now that we need a larger auditorium and much interest is being manifested in the matter. The city officials are being encouraged to take immediate action and go forward with plans and arrangements to construct the building in the immediate future.

I readily admit the need of an auditorium, and I am sure the entire council will agree. However, the purpose of this letter is to inform the public generally of some improvements far more necessary to our comfort, advancement and general development than an auditorium at this time, and should by all means be provided first for the direct benefit of all our people.

A sewage disposal plant has been in demand for several years. A damage suit is pending against the city on account of our emptying the sewage in the creek. The plaintiff has been very patient with the city for a long time, but it appears imperative now that we arrange for funds to erect this plant. It will cost many thousand dollars and the money will have to be borrowed. The operation of this plant will be at the expense of the tax payers, and without profit.

The present water system and water filtering plant was designed, and expected to be adequate for our requirements for twenty five years from 1938. But due to the fast and unexpected increase in our population, and the great increase in water consumption, before long it will be necessary to add one or two filturing units to the water filtering plant. Very likely we will have to enlarge our pumping facilities at the creek four miles in the country. Another pipe line may be required to bring the water into the city. The cost will be great, and the money will be borrowed.

There are many requests for additional water supply sanitary sewer lines and fire protection from West Clanton, Candler Terrace, Glendale, and from Raynolds Addition in East Clanton. To satisfy these demands six inch water pipe will be necessary. I estimate the distance at about two miles to serve each street, and the cost will not be less than $25,000. We hope to finance the extension of these water lines from our current income, and to complete the task within two years by use of our own street crew, and street foreman, Mr. Brown, and save the contractor's profit.

The things I have mentioned above are absolutely essential to our comfort and health, and should be had even with borrowed money. Question is, should we borrow money to build an auditorium? How many of our people would vote to increase their taxes to pay for the building? Greater the debt we owe, the more taxes we must pay. It is not unreasonable to expect the next legislature to co-operate with the Federal government in erecting an armory here, so why not hope for this, and continue to get on with the space available. I think it would be unwise for the city to build an auditorium on state property in connection with either school now being conducted in the city.

I am personally opposed to any increase in taxes, and opposed to increasing the amount we owe except to supply water and sanitation for comfort and good health.—C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.

WAYS TO KEEP HERD FREE OF MASTITIS

Auburn, Ala. — It's true that a combination of drugs now shows great promise of materially reducing losses from mastitis.

"However," warns J. R. Parrish, A. P.I. Extension Service dairyman, "it must be remembered that no treatment is a guarantee against re-infection or against the spread of mastitis unless it is combined with good herd management."

This being the case, he urges that dairymen adopt good feeding practices, eliminate all hazards found in barns and pastures that are likely to cause inurjy to animals, follow proper milking methods, and conduct regular examinations of udders and milk to detect early infection.

Parrish reveals that each day a large number of milking machines are used a second time without being washed. This one thing costs the dairy industry more than anything else, except low producers.

1950 PEANUT ACREAGE ALLOTMENT ANNOUNCED

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama's peanut acreage allotment for the 1950 crop has been set at 274,907 acres. This allotment is 122,413 acres less than last year's.

In making the announcement, B. L. Collins, State P.M.A. executive officer, pointed out that with the help of county and community P.M.A. committees, the State allotment will be divided among peanut producing farms. It is expected that notices of individual farm allotments will be mailed to growers some time in January.

The production from farms on which the picked or threshed peanut acreage in 1950 is not in excess of the farm allotment will be eligible for priec support.

COTTON

Plan to grow a bale or more per acre next year. A bale-or-more-per-acre land, in most cases, is land that warms up early so cotton can be planted on time. Such land must be well drained.

CALCIUM IMPORTANT IN THE HEN'S DIET

Since an egg shell is 95 per cent calcium carbonate, John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension Service poultrypman, points out the two sources from which the hen obtains the mineral.

One of the sources is the feed she receives each day. The other is the calcium that is present in her bones.

"It's true," says Weeks, "that a hen gets a big part of her calcium requirement from the laying mash, but, in addition to this, a hopper of oyster shells or other calcium carrying material should be kept before the hen at all times so she won't have to use too much of the calcium in her bones."

MOTHERS MAY LEARN ROM DAUGHTERS TOO

Auburn, Ala. — Better Homes Week, scheduled in the spring, will afford an opportunity for home economic students, home from college, to put into action some of their knowledge of the science of homemaking.

"amily planning for improved living should include every member of the family, especially the college girl," declares Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist. "It will help her if she can pass on the benefits of her training to her family, and other families through club and community meetings."

Miss Mitchell asks the question: "Why not plan to ask a home economic student to speak to your club next spring when she returns home from college?"

FOLSOM'S SPEECH

against the many evils which beset our legislative machinery. There is nothing under the sun fair about the way the legislative districts are determined. The method is ancient and time worn. And yet many members of the legislature who are elected to make laws for the people, flaunt and make fun of the very Constitution which they have sworn to uphold—when it comes to providing for legislation reapportionment every ten years as the Constitution makes plainly mandatory.

A constitutional amendment was proposed to give every county a resident senator. It passed the Lower Chamber, but it died from neglect in the Upper House. It was a pattern based upon the same method used in the make-up of the United States Senate, and I believe that it had the framework of a much fairer Senatorial representation than the one in existence today

While no bill was passed providing for legislative reapportionment, we have been able to keep the subject before the people, and I believe without a doubt that the time is not far off when a fair and impartial pattern of legislative apportionment will be worked out for this state so that its people can enjoy a true and rightful voice in the shaping of the laws which govern them.

The Poll Tax

I campaigned for a move to abolish the poll tax. I do not believe in [illegible] a prerequisite to voting. I believe that the poll tax is an [illegible] the Constitution of the [illegible] States which guarantees its [illegible] the right of free ballot. The [illegible] ama was originally [illegible] keep large groups of our [illegible] voting. It is a method [illegible] unholy control. And [illegible] to hold forth the [illegible] we cannot [illegible] poll tax law.

[illegible] not successful in [illegible] laws revamped, we [illegible] attempts to pass [illegible] for the prejudiced [illegible] Amendment which the [illegible] Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional.

Big Jim's Efforts

This program that I have been talking about for the past few minutes [illegible] received more attention than any similar program in the history of this state. I and my entire cabinet here have spoken time and again in every corner of this state, working to put across this program.

We not only pleade with the people. We pleaded and worked with the legislature as well. On five different occasions I appeared before the Lower House, and on three occasions before joint sessions of the Legislature, and on three other occasions before legislative committees—and on every one of these occasions, I urged passage of certain phases of this program.

In short, we have worked long and hard to put into effect the above outlined program. At times the going has been difficult, but always the charge has been worthy of the task before us.

And during all the attempts to put across this program, there has been an abundance of squealing, the like of which was never before been heard this side the pork yards of Chicago.

Those opposing this program have squealed about everything under the sun. They started squealing before I ever took office. One man even came up here to Birmingham and made a speech about how awful my administration was going to be.

They started early in January of '47, squealing about the ABC Board and they kept it up for two years. Then when they decided that my appointees perhaps were not gangsters and hoodlums and thugs, they began to let up.

Self-Starter Flop

Then they got all whooped up over the Self-Starter flop during the summer of '47. They tried to scare the people into believing that Big Jim was going to steal everything, including the capitol dome, and they pleaded with the people to give the legislature a free hand to deal with this terrible situation, this awful man in the Governor's chair who had got more votes than any other man who ever ran for the office. Well, the same voters who elected me, took care of that little matter.

Temporary Clerks

Then during 1948 they spent the whole year squealing about me hiring some temporary clerks for the Governor's office. . . .And those same members of the legislature who were squealing the loudest, what did they do? One of their very first moves in May, '49, was to hire 91 temporary clerks for themselves.

The opposition squealed about the prison system, and yet they offered no positive plan of action. They failed to provide the necessary funds in the appropriation to make for any sort of substantial physical improvements in the prison plant.

And lately they've been squealing about holding up certain book contracts. There is apt to be a lot more squealing before this little matter is settled. And on and on, those who opposed this positive program for the people have squealed themselves silly in the throat.

Parole Board

But I believe the loudest squealing that has sounded forth during my entire administration has taken place during the past three months in which my appointees have become a majority of the Pardon and Parole Board. rom a lot that has been said, you'd think that we have opened wide the doors of the state prisons, and let out all the hardened criminals.

Over two years ago I made a public statement to the effect that half the people in prison in Alabama today should be turned out under supervised parole. I am even more certain of that statement today.

Alabama has one of the very highest per capita prison populations in the entire nation. As of this week, prison records show there are 5,087 inmates in the state prison system.

Since I have gotten some voice in the Pardon and Parole system of this state, I have been looking deeply into this matter. And I come up with some amazing information.

Why do we have 5,087 prisoners in Alabama—when our neighboring state of Tennessee, with almost 100,000 more people than are in Alabama, has only 2,812 inmates as of this week? That figure was given to me three days ago by Mr. Pharr, Director of the Prison System of Tennessee.

I have gotten similar information from six other neighboring states besides Tennessee during the past week, and in every instance I find that the states having a fee system have by far the largest per capita prison population. To me that means only one thing: There is something wrong with the fee system. There is only one other southern state besides Alabama that has failed to abolish this outmoded method of sending people to prison.

Vicious Fee System

I firmly believe that the fee system accounts for half the people who are in prison today. And when I compare Alabama's prison population of 5,087 based on the fee system, with the 2,812 in Tennessee, which has no fee system, then I cannot arrive at any other conclusion. It is for this very reason that I made the statement that I believe half of the prisoners should be released on parole. I don't believe that people are any meaner in Alabama than they are in Tennessee.

The real remedy of this situation lies in the hands of the legislature. I confess to you, with much humility, that I was not sufficiently acquainted with these facts in time to make remedying proposals to the 1949 legislative session. I shall recofmend to my successor in office, that no stone be left unturned to correct this evil.

Let's look further into the prison population of Alabama. Sixty-five per cent of the inmates are Negroes, while 35 percent of them are whites. Now how does this compare with the overall population in the state? It is interesting to note that 65 per cent of our people are white, and 35 per cent of our people, according to the latest Federal census, are Negroes. In other words, Negroes who make up 35 per cent of our Alabama population, are responsible for 65 per cent of our prison population.

While I realize that Negroes, due to lack of economic oportunity, education, and life in general do not have the same chance as do the rest of our people, I do not believe on the other hand that they have been given a fair deal at the hand of justice and jury in this state. There are sections of this state where a Negro doesn't stand a Chinaman's chance of getting fair and impartial justice on an equal footing with the white man.

This fee system and the niggardly treatment of Negroes at the bar of justice, are tools which are used to keep the poor white and the Negro subservient and submissive. The method is as ancient as was used in the Middle Ages.

The fee system itself is used to make the poor folks, black and white, the goats of greedy courts. It is a shame and a disgrace, and I am going to do everything within my power to correct these wrongs before I go out of office.

Who's Hollering?

Where is all the hollering coming from—all the venom and spewing about letting these poor folks out on parole? I'll tell you—from the group of people classified as Big Mules and Got Rocks. It's coming from the voice control of Wall Street, the seat of the greatest advocates of exploitation, servitude, and oppression.

I haven't heard any complaints coming from the poor folks back in the mountains and in the piney woods section, and my desk has been piled high every day for the past two months with letters about the Pardon and Parole Board.

There is hardly anyone in Alabama who doesn't have kinfolks or close friends in prison, and I can tell you right now, that they are happy to have a hearing before the Pardon and Parole Board, and to have a fair opportunity to present the human element of their cases, regardless of whether or not a parole is granted. Under a democracy, everybody is entiteld to a hearing.

I believe in an honest and sound Pardon and Parole Board—one which operates fairly and squarely, and one that adheres to long accepted and approved methods. I believe that hardened and incorrigible prisoners who have proved themselves a menace to society and who are beyond rehabilitation — that those prisoners should never be turned loose upon the public. And I want, here and now, to assure the people of this state, that dangerous and hardened criminals will not be allowed to leave the prison walls, regardless of their political influence, their friends, or their bank accounts.

Now, let's look a little closer into the Pardon and Parole Board work. During the year running from October '48 to October '49—when we had a prison population of 5,000—there were 1454 prisoners given hearings by the Board; of that number, only 352 were granted paroles during the entire year. That means that only 7 percent of our entire prison population was judged fit for parole. With the fee system what it is, and with the Negro prison element what it is, it appears to me that far more than a mere 7 percent should have been placed on parole during the past year.

What Is A Parole?

Just what is a parole anyway? It is letting those prisoners out who have proved by their prison record that they are capable of better living, and placing them under the close supervision of parole officers. These officers make constant checks on the parolees and any who take advantage of their favorable releases are immediately returned to serve out the remainder of their sentences.

Before a man is placed on parole, he is given a job, a way to earn a living. He then relieves the taxpayer the expense of feeding him and clothing him. He is given help and encouragement to readjust himself to society, to live a cleaner life, and to obey the laws. A man has a far better chance of never returning to prison if he is let out on parole than if he finishes out his sentence in the customary way. There is a human element about a parole that gives an inmate a second chance to make good before he is labeled an outcast. And then if he proves good on his parole, he has the chance of getting a full pardon.

I spent some time last week surveying the records as kept by the Department of Corrections and Institutions and the Pardon and Parole Board during the past few years.

I noted in particular seven instances in the records which seem to me to be violations of a fair parole system—instances in which hardened criminals were turned loose upon the public.

Look At Record

Here's one's record: In for life, and during his first 18 years of serving, he committed 18 major offenses within the prison walls. Here's what he did: Two attempts to escape, one successful escape, cutting an inmate on two different occasions, a sex offense, carrying a dirk, fighting three different times with a forbidden knife, attacking guards twice, refusing to work and obey guards, and so on. And, yet, such a record, in 1944 he was turned loose upon society by parole, only to return two years later to serve out the remainder of his term of life.

Here is another man: In for life, with five previous offenses before finally being sent up for life, and who, over a period of five years in prison escaped four times, assaulted an officer, and trafficked in narcotics, was then awarded a parole in 1943. Soon afterwards he committed another serious crime and was returned with another life sentence.

And I have the records of five others who are equally as notorious—all of whom were turned loose.

I want to tell you now, that as long as I am Governor, such hardened criminals will not be given freedom. And to add also, that any prisoner who proves himself a better man, a decent human being, will have a fair and equal opportunity of being paroled.

Hospital Amendments

I would like to tell you a little about the hospital amendments you'll be voting on tomorrow.

I'm sure that all of you have heard a lot about them. The plan as proposed by the first three amendments on the ballot is good. They hold the answers for many fine and wonderful hospitals that are now within the grasp of every county in Alabama.

The first amendment provides for a $2,000,000 fund to be established by the state for a hospital program. Then when cities and counties want a hospital, they in turn will match the state money, dollar for dollar. The Federal government will then match the local and state $2 with $4.

So, in effect, this amendmen sets up $2,000,000. The localities will put up an equal $2,000,000. And the government will match that combined $4-000,000 with $8,000,000, thus providing Alabama with a $12,000,0 hospital program.

Amendment number two provides for a hospital plan for Marion County, and Amendment number three provides for the construction and maintainance of hospitals by the several counties.

Vote "Yes"

I hope that tomorrow there will not be a single vote marked up against this golden opportunity to relieve the sick and the suffering in our state.

When election day rolls around tomorrow, don't sit back and depend upon your neighbor to go to the polls and vote for these amendments. This is an important election, and by voting 'Yes' on these first three amendments, you will be voting for better health for yourself, your family, and for the people all over Alabama.

TWIST TYPE RUGS VERSUS TUFT TYPE

Twist-type carpets and rugs are becoming more popular and challenging the long supremacy of the "cut pile" type, such as the Axminster, finds Alice Peavy, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist.

She states that Axminsters still lead all other kinds of carpets in sales, but consumers are showing a preference for the twist-type with the harder surface and nubby or pebbly look.

Reasons consumers give for preferring this type are that it shows soil and footprints less easily, has good scuff resistance, is of plain color yet may give a two tone effect because the uneven surface provides highlights and shadows.

TIMBER MARKETING

One timber agent, instead of accepting the $600 offered for a timber stand, consulted a timber marketing specialist. The agent took the forester's advice and had the timber marked for selective cutting. After this was done, the marked trees sold for $7,000. Many trees were left for future harvests.

Christmas Spirit Is Abroad In Chilton

Mahan Family Can Celebrate All Month Long

While the rest of us are making plans for this holiday season, the Roy Mahans have really got something to brag about.

December is their month! Mr. and Mrs. Mahan already had three fine boys all born in the Christmas month—Ronald DeWitt, born on the 10th; Ray Delaine on the 25th; and Robert Dewey on the '16th.

You'll notice that the boys' given names start with R. and D. —just like their dad—Roy Devel Mahan.

But that's not all. The Mahans have a little girl, too, who was born in December—on Christmas Eve.

And now, just to make it a very merry Christmas, they have just become the proud parents of another fine boy, born last Tuesday night—and named Ralph Donovan Mahan.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahan, we salute you. You've really got the Christmas spirit!

Ouch!

A hen egg weighing one-half pound was brought into the News office this week by Doyle Liveoak of Clanton Route 4.

This egg, measured in the News office, is seven inches in circumference, and eight and one-half inches around lengthwise.

The hen is a Rhode Island Red.

Christmas festivities in Chilton County will make this holiday season one of the most successful in history. All indications point to a big week ahead. As the News goes to press, many activities, both public and private, are being planned in the community.

Coming on Sunday, Christmas will be appropriately honored in the churches by special sermons and unusual musical presentations by choirs and soloists. Holy Communion services are planned at 11:00 a.m. at the First Methodist Church.

Large crowds are expected at all Sunday services.

Monday will also be celebrated as a holiday, when all government offices and stores will be closed.

Around town, holiday decorations are lending a Christmas atmosphere to streets and buildings. In the home-decorating contest sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, many very beautiful decorations have been put up.

In the downtown area, decorations are sponsored by the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, R. C. Williams chairman. He is assisted by the REA boys and Sam Powers and the men from Lay Dam; also by the Alabama Power Company.

Decoration of the holly tree in W. J. Billingsley's yard is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, with the Billingsleys contribution the power.

Last Sunday evening, a Christmas Cantata was given at the Jemison Baptist Church under the direction of Russell Scott. Mrs. G. H. Carroll was pianist, and Mary Julia Blewster was the reader. Special musical renditions were given by Joyce Marie Cobb and Martha Ann Griffin. The choir sang several beautiful numbers, and L. S. Clark was also on the program. The Rev. G. H. Carroll is pastor of the church.

Planning The FHA Housing Ceremony

Making it a real Christmas for a Maplesville couple, the FHA last Wednesday handed a check for $4,300 to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Donovan to build a three-bedroom house, a barn and a water system. Seated, left to right: Julian Evans, president of Lion's Club; Cohen Stapp, Secretary - Treasurer, Clanton Chamber of Commerce; and Joe Campbell, District Governor-Elect of Kiwanis.

Standing: Joe M. Murphree, county FHA supervisor; Congr. Ed deGraffenried, who was the principal speaker and guest of honor at the ceremony; and R. M. Foshee, chairman of Chilton FHA Committee.

The event was jointly sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club and the Clanton Lion's Club.

Greetings From Millard Lancaster In Far California

Greetings from the West—Mae West, that is.

Millard Lancaster left Clanton on the 10th to drive to the Rose Bowl game in California. And it looks like he'll make it. The News received a wire from Millard yesterday afternoon, as follows:

"Greetings from California, Mae West and myself."

We'll certainly be waiting for Millard to get back to Clanton and tell us all about it—the Rose Bowl game, that is.

People In Chilton County Don't Know How Lucky They Are

Lake Success—The Statistical Office of the United Nations has just issued one of those seemingly routine, figure-laden reports which take weeks to prepare and which few people ever see. It is a memorandum on world income in 1948, and ought to be made required reading on both sides of the line which now divides the world.

Here in cold facts are the details about where the wealth of the world was produced last year, and in what quantities. The total, according to U. N. calculations, was 531 billion dollars. Of this amount, 224 billion dollars, or 40 per cent, of the dollar value of all goods and service were produced in the U. S., where live 7 per cent of the world's people. In all of Asia, Africa, South America and Central America, where live almost 1,500,000,000 people, or nearly 75 per cent of the inhabitants of the earth, incomes totaled only slightly more than 90 billion dollars, or 16½ per cent. The Soviet Union, occupying one-sixth of the world's land surface and with about 10 per cent of the world's population, earned 10 per cent of the total income—52 billion dollars, or somewhat less than was earned last year by U. S. farmers and storekeepers alone.

The total income of Europe, excluding the Soviet Union, was calculated at 140 billions, most of which was earned by the industrialized countries of Western Europe.

With these facts in mind, several important lessons are to be drawn about the present state of world politics and of the general standard of living everywhere.

One is that the western, largely democratic and mainly free-enterprise countries of Western Europe and North America are the most productive regions on earth with the highest standards of living. With less than 15 per cent of the globe's population, they produced more than 60 per cent of its income. This is one of those obvious facts, generally known, but the simple statistics are worth recording.

Once again they show how necessary it is for the other vast reaches of the earth to attain industrialization if they are to be pulled up from their low living standards. And they suggest, further, that the runaway birth [illegible] provides and will con[illegible] complications of enor[illegible] Asia, excluding the [illegible], has just about half of [illegible] population and is increas[illegible] millions each year. In [illegible] received only 58 bil[illegible] income, or 11 per cent [illegible], according to the U. N.

[illegible] these figures briefly and [illegible] also, too, about why [illegible] has failed in industrializ[illegible] Europe and why it has [illegible] success among the de[illegible]ses of China. On the one hand, the Soviet Union, after 30 years of Communism, is on the record so far behind Western European countries in standards of living that, despite all the propaganda, the vast majority of Western Europeans are not tempted by Communism. The Asiatics, on the other hand, on the lowest subsistence living standard, resentful against the Western nations for their racial prejudices and imperialistic practices, respond more easily to the call of Moscow.

The Soviets obviously have attained a higher standard of living and a higher degree of industrial and technical competence than have the Chinese, they express sympathetic interest in the welfare of the Chinese masses, they oppose the same Western powers against whom so many Chinese are resentful. Here the Communist system can be presented in terms which seem to offer real promise.

But, struggling with its own industrialization problems, faced with years of heroic labor to raise its own low standard of living, the Soviet Union will almost certainly not be able to deliver in Asia those things which Asia most needs. The Soviets can send in and train a new type of missionary to preach about a new type of promised land. But there is little to indicate that they can help much to raise productivity.

Only the U. S. and Western Europe can provide the capital machinery, the technical skills in the quantities needed to make a real assault upon the starvation level of living which is fastened upon a billion people. Whether the West has the political sense to see that and act upon it is a much more important question than the one about what Russia is going to do next.

The hard facts gathered by the United Nations show the enormous relative power of the West, and the comparative insignificance of the Communist world, in material terms.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HOW WELL CAN YOU HEAR?

Between 15 and 20 million Americans have subnormal hearing, and only about one-tenth of them are fully aware of it. The hard of hearing individual is subject to dangers; his earning power is threatened, and enjoyment of life is lessened. Psychological disorders are also likely to develop in the person whose hearing is affected.

[illegible] types of deafness are present at birth, much hearing loss is due to injury or disease of the delicate ear structures. The outer ear and ear canal pick up sound waves and send them into the ear drum, which amplifies them and sets in motion the [illegible] of hearing. Impulses are then carried to the nerve of hearing which sends sound impressions to the brain. Infection and damage to the ear can be carried not only from the outside through the ear canal but also from the throat through the eustachian tubes.

The eustachian tubes are located back of the nose and they run to the middle ear. Their function is to equalize the air pressure inside and outside the ear drum. During a head cold, infection from the nose and mouth can pass to the ears through these eustachian tubes. Pus draining into the throat from infected sinuses may also be forced into the ears and cause infections.

Infection in the middle ear may also progress through an opening in the cells of the mastoid bone, which is located behind the ear. An uncomfortable, clogged, temporarily deafened, aching, or discharging ear should be examined at once by a physician. Early treatment may save the hearing.

FARMERS VOTE TO DECIDE ON COTTON QUOTAS

Every Alabama farmer who grew cotton in 1948 is eligible to vote December 15 on Secretary of Agriculture Brannan's cotton marketing quota for next year.

At the same time, some 250,000 Alabama farmers will be electing their committeemen to administer the PMA programs for 1950.

B. L. Collins, PMA state executive officer, said in Auburn recently that this will be the seventh time that cotton farmers have had the chance to okeh quotas. Starting in 1938, marketing quotas have been approved in six previous votings. Quotas were called off in 1943 due to the war.

At least two-thirds of the nation's farmers must approve the quotas before they become effective.

Collins explained that the marketing quota and acreage allotment program is designed to serve two major purposes—first, to divide the available market so that each cotton grower receives his fair share and, second, to serve as a means of insuring orderly marketing.

The question of cotton price support also will be at stake in the quota referendum, Collins pointed out. He explained that if quotas are approved, growers will be assured of the full support price on 1950-crop cotton but that acreage will be limited to the amount necessary to produce the marketing quota.

If quotas are not approved, growers will be unrestricted on acreage, but price support will be limited to 50 per cent of the support level, under present legislation. If quotas are in effect, cotton marketed from acreage in excess of a grower's allotment will be similarly penalized.

"Most cotton growers," Collins said, "are familiar with the quota program and its aims. Our county PMA offices stand ready to give growers full information about the marketing quota and acreage allotment plan. We hope every grower will inform himself fully on the question and cast that all-important ballot December 15th.

"Whatever his conviction, we want him to cast the ballot to which he, as a cotton grower, is entitled."

Preacher's Faith Works Miracle For Finance Program of Church

Alabama will soon receive national attention because a Jacksonville preacher believed what he read in the Bible.

Hartzell Spence, famous author of "One Foot in Heaven," has been in the state writing up the story of the parable of the talents for one of the big magazines.

Last January the Rev. Robert B. McNeill, 34, "had a dream" that the parable of the talents in the Bible could be applied to modern finance. He passed out $5, $10 and $15 from the church's treasury to the members and they agreed to put the money and their own talents "to work for the Lord."

The $810 loaned out came back with interest that totaled $6,854.

Six-year-old Sumner Thomas told his story:

"I bought pecans with my $5. I shelled them. I sold them for $35."

Little Tommy was followed by some 70 others among the 100 members of the little church here, each dropping an envelope into the box and telling how he or she made the money work for the church. Miss Erie Currier sold flowers and shrubs from her garden for $90, Mrs. C. F. Watts made $115 off rummage sales, Mrs. Eleanor Johnson crocheted and sold her handiwork for $50 and Miss Louise Bullock put on two puppet shows.

One youth promoted a softball game between the Presbyterians and the Methodists and made up $40 after he had split with the Methodists.

And the John Nisbet family, with father, mother, two sons and two daughters working, added a total of $350 to the church treasury with an outlay of $50. One son raised a Jersey calf, another sold penny peanut venders and the mother and daughters raised chickens. Mr. and Mrs. Solon Glover made mayonnaise with a new automatic mixer and sold it for $82.

As a result of the parable of the talents, the little Presbyterian Church has or will have a new organ, a new roof, a redecoration outside and inside, new lights, choir robes and about $1,000 in the bank.

The Rev. McNeill, a native of Birmingham who studied at the University of Kentucky and the University of Texas, ended his sermon:

"Well done, good and faithful servant."

If they are covered and baked at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for a short time, rather than at a low temperature for a long time, apples will have a better flavor.

Such Lovely FLAMES

By John Scott Douglas

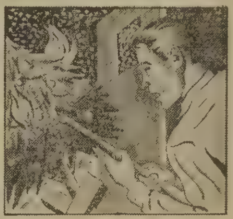
FRED DOBSON plugged in the string of lights and then stood back to admire the blue and red and green candle globes on the Christmas tree. Ellen left the table she was setting to study the effect.

"Nice little tree, Fred. Seems a shame, though, not to be sharing it with someone. This was our year—"

And then she stopped, and her face, still pretty in middle age, grew pink. Fred knew she'd been about to say that it was their year to have the Robbins to Chiristmas dinner. Every year since their children had married and left they had either entertained their neighbors or had been their guests.

But now, by mutual consent, the quarrel with the Robbins was not mentioned. It was characteristic of Ellen not to blame Fred. And that took forbearance because Martha Robbins had been her dearest friend.

Ellen sighed. "Goodness! the turkey must be almost ready."



He was back in a moment with a rake. Lifting the smouldering tree with the tines, he hurled it out onto the snowy lawn.

Fred thought of their quarrel, which had started because of a cocker puppy which wouldn't stay home. Tom, with his usual consideration for his neighbors, had started to build a fence to keep the dog out of the Dobson's garden. Fred thought the fence was a foot within his own property line, and jokingly said so.

Tom had laughed. "Who's paying for it?"

"I'll pay half," Fred had said, "if you'll buy the strip you're using."

The joke, within a matter of days, had taken on an edge, and then they gave up speaking. No longer did they fish and hunt together, or play in their usual Saturday foursomes.

By then, beginning to fume at Tom's high-handedness, Fred had his property surveyed, only to discover that his garden had in reality extended onto his neighbor's property. The fence was where it belonged.

Fred wanted to apologize, but every time he stepped outside, Tom walked into the house.

Within a matter of seconds, Fred was too busy to think of the quarrel. The little Christmas tree was on fire and carckling fiercely. He flung open the door and screamed, "Fire! help! help!" And then, snatching up the hall runner he'd been planning to replace, he knocked over the tree and began beating out the flames.

Behind him Tom called, "Stay with it, pal—I'll get something."

He was back in a moment with a rake. Lifting the smoldering tree with the tines, he hurled it out onto the snowy lawn.

Martha Robbins had appeared by then. Seeing Ellen staring dazedly at the cloud of smoke and the blackened wall where the tree had stood, she opened the windows and then slipped her arm around Ellen's shoulders.

"Poor dear! And just when you were sitting down to your Christmas dinner. After the smoke has thinned out, this room will be freezing. You and Fred are having dinner with us."

Ellen looked happy but flustered. "But this was our year—"

"Nonsense!" Tom said heartily. "We'll eat with you next year."

"That will be swell," Fred said, beaming.

When they started Martha Robbins' bountiful dinner, there was at first a little stiffness. But Tom was soon joking about Fred's "high forehead," and Fred was asking Tom if he'd considered selling his hair to a wire-brush factory.

As they said hearty farewells later, Tom remarked, "Can't say I'm sorry about that fire. We've sure missed you folks."

"And it was all my fault," Fred said. "I was wrong about—"

"Aw, forget it," Tom interrupted. "How about some golf Saturday?"

When they reached home, Fred looked at the blackened wall speculatively. "No real damage done, Ellen. A coat of paint will fix it up."

"How do you suppose the tree ever caught fire?" Ellen asked.

Fred grinned sheepishly. "A match and a bunch of tissue paper may have helped."

EVOLUTION OF SANTA CLAUS

Christmas has rolled around once again and Santa Claus with round red cheeks, jolly smile and chunky figure looks the same as he did nearly 90 years ago.

His creator was Thomas Nast, one of America's greatest cartoonists. During the early 1860's he was asked to illustrate Clement Clark Moore's poem, A Visit to St. Nicholas, better known to us as "'Twas The Night Before Christmas." The result was Santa Claus as we know him.

Santa's creator was born in Bavaria in 1840, son of a musician in a Bavarian army band. When he was a fat little boy of six, Thomas' father left Germany to enlist in the United States navy, and Thomas' mother brought the boy to New York to live.

Along about the time stocky Tommy was 15 he landed his first job as an illustrator for Leslie's Weekly at $4 a week. By the time he was 20 he was sent to England by the New York Illustrated News to sketch the Heenan-Sayers fight, an outstanding sports event of the day.

In 1862 he joined the staff of Harper's Weekly and began the series of emblematic drawings which continued throughout the Civil War. From those he created certain trademarks that have been the inspiration of cartoonists down to the present—notably the Republican elephant and the Democrat donkey.

Famous as the political symbols are today, Nast's Santa Claus probably holds first place in the hearts of Americans. Before Nast's day, a few artists had drawn Santa on one occasion or another, but could not seem to agree on how the old gentleman should look.

Nast changed all that.

He located Santa's home at the North Pole and gave him a sleigh drawn by reindeer. He drew the familiar, fat, merry old fellow with red cheeks and white beard, dressed in red, wearing a cap and boots, carrying a pack of toys and smoking a short pipe.

The artist then gave Santa a spy-glass so that during the year he might pick out the good children from the bad, and also a big book in which to write their names and keep their records.

This conception of Santa Claus first appeared in 1863. Since that time, the pictured Santa has been the same, although the spy-glass and pipe seem to have been dropped by the way.

A Joy No Earthly Wealth Can Give

There is an old tale which becomes apropos chiefly at the Christmas time.

An agnostic—a disbeliever in God—made this offer to a nine-year old:

"I will give you an orange if you will tell me where God is."

The youngster was equal to the challenge. "I will give you two oranges," he said, "if you will tell me where He is not."

Many great men have always felt the spirituality of Christmas, and some have managed to put it into words. For instance, when Woodrow Wilson was asked to prove the greatness of Christianity, whose founder was the Christ-child, he said simply, "Try it."

Cardinal Spellman had a Christmas gift for the mind when he said:

"The joy of Christmas is a joy that war cannot kill, for it is a joy of the soul, and the soul cannot die. Poverty cannot prevent the joy of Christmas, for it is a joy no earthly wealth can give. Time cannot wither Christmas, for it belongs to eternity. The world cannot shatter it, for it is a union with Him who has overcome the world."

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt once illustrated the spirit of Christmas with this story:

"A thief broke into the home of a priest and stole his purse. That night the priest wrote in his diary: 'Let me be thankful. First because I was never robbed before. Second because although he took my purse, he never took my life. Third because although he took all I had it was not much. And fourth because it was he who stole, and not I'."

Christmas 1949

This Christmas, let us give thanks to God, Who guides our destiny, for the many blessings bestowed on America—free worship, free speech, free press, free ballot, free schools and free enterprise.

As we pay homage to the Birth of Christ in our churches and our homes, around the festive board and Christmas tree, let us so value these privileges that we may ever be on the alert to defend our freedom against tyranny. Let us by our actions and deeds give succor and courage to those less fortunate people who suffer from aggression and oppression. Let us pray that America forever stand a Christian bulwark before all the world.

* * * *

Congratulations! You People!

A bouquet is in order for the many civic-minded people here who made the Christmas Season more enjoyable with their beautiful decorations.

Evidence of pride in themselves, the home, and the community, is brought out in the gaily lighted homes and yards. Congratulations! All you people, for the lift you gave those less fortunate.

Appropriate Anywhere

A Christmas Card from Col. Bill Lyerly with the words "Drive Carefully," tends to remind us that the slogan is just as appropriate on a Christmas Card as anywhere.

Bill is with the State Highway Patrol and those boys live and preach "safety" at all times.

Many people will come home for the holidays and many people will go visiting for the holidays. Traffic will be heavy on our out-moded highway system and due to rain and fog visibility will be bad most of the time. A condition that calls for extra care in driving or walking the highways.

Our local Highway Patrolman Braswell gave a most valuable program on the Safety Program over WKLF Saturday last. One point he brought out was that many will be over-celebrating and this will be a cause for the motorists who have more sense than to drink and then drive, to drive doubly careful.

Think of the horror you could bring an otherwise wonderful Christmas by a thoughtless moment.

Drive carefully. The life you save may be your own.

There'll be Christmas crowds on Long Distance, too

Long distance telephone lines will be crowded on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. We'll be on the job doing our best to put calls through. We've added a lot of circuits and rearranged others. Every switchboard will be in service. Even so, there may be delays.

You'll get faster service if you do your calling before Christmas Eve or after Christmas Day.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Clanton is really decorated for the old man with the white whiskers. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Billingsley has the most beautiful decorated tree you ever saw. Being right on the highway coming into town makes it all the more appreciated. And that cute little fat snow man in the window at Polk Brothers looks exactly like the work of May Anniece, who is visiting her dad and mother during the holidays. We could go on, and on. But drive through the residential section of the city and enjoy for yourself the beautiful Christmas decorations. Folk of Clanton really went all-out with their Christmas spirit.

That was a nice ceremony at the courthouse Tuesday morning when James Donovan and his pretty young wife received the first loan check issued in this District by the Farm Housing Administration. Ed de Graffenried, our popular Congressman from the Sixth District, was the principal speaker. He is well liked in Chilton County and worked hard to get the farm loan measure through that enabled the Donovans to get the money to build on their eight-acre farm There will be lots of our young farmers taking advantage of the opportunity to build their own home with aid from the government.

F. C. Gibson doesn't believe in telling a fish story and expecting people to believe it without proof. On another page of the News you will see what we mean. He, along with three friends, caught themselves about a thousand pounds of fish on a recent trip to Orange Beach. That's South Alabama's Gulf Coast, and judging from the photograph bids fair to becoming one of America's favorite fishing grounds. It was a deer hunt the pictured gentlemen were on, but they killed their limit of deer, we believe, and decided to try their luck fishing with the pictured results.

If you get your newspapers by mail this is the time of year when you get yesterday's paper tomorrow.

People should start mailing their Christmas cards the week between Christmas and New Year. There's lots more time than the two weeks before Christmas.

Now, and here, is as good a time and place as we know to wish our friends a merry, merry Christmas. We appreciate you, each and every one. May your Christmas be as happy and joyful as you want it to be, and may all your loved ones realize their slightest wish. We hope Santa is good to you.

Now for those who do not believe in Santa Claus we'll print the "Yes, Virginia," Santa Claus letter:

"Yes, indeed!

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age—they do not believe except what they see—they think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds.

"All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little.

"In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

"He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies!

"You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus — the most real things in the world are those neither children nor men can see.

"Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there—nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, or even the united strength of all the strongest men, that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside the curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond.

"Is it all real? — ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God!—he lives, and he lives forever — a thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

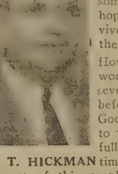
A Child Is Born

"For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end. (Isa. 9.6.)



A. T. HICKMAN

Here the prophet Isaiah is ringing the chimes of Prophecy with a gladsome sound, and hope that will revive all Israel, and the whole world. However, the weary world had to wait seven hundred years before the hands on God's dial pointed to the hour of the fullness of time, the time for the fulfillment of this prophecy; but when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, that he might redeem them that were under the law, that we all by faith in His Son, might receive the adoption of sons; that we might call God our Father.

Near two thousand years ago the Child was born, and the Son was given. This Christmas season tells the story again of this Child born in an obscure village, the Child of a Peasant Woman. And that He grew into manhood in another obscure village. This Man worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty years of age. He became an itinerant preacher and teacher for three and a half years. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never own a home. He had no place to lay His head. He did not have a family. He never attended college. He never was inside of a great city. Did not travel two hundred miles from the place of His birth. He never accomplished one thing which man usually call great. He held no credentials from any organized society.

While still a young man, the tide of popular opinion turned against him. His friends forsook him. One betrayed him. He was taken by his enemies. He went through a mocked trial. He was condemned to die, and was nailed to a cross between two thieves. While he was dying, His executioners gambled for His only piece of property, His robe. When dead, He was buried in another man's tomb.

Almost two thousand years have past, and today, this Man is the inspiration of the human race, the leader of the column of progress. All the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever sailed the seas, all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, combined, could not have effected the destiny of mankind upon this earth as has the life, death and the resurrection of this one Man, Jesus Christ.

Today His followers circle the globe. His influence has touched the lives of Hottentots in the jungles of the dark lands, as well as the people in the most civilized nations of the world.

Friend, do you know Him, Whom to know, is Life Eternal?

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR TEETH

Most of us are anxious to keep our teeth. They may not look like a string of pearls, but they are our own, and they are more satisfactory than those in the window. We have some ways to insure ourselves better dental health according to an article in the health magazine Hygeia.

An excellent beginning can be made by brushing the teeth as soon as possible after eating. Within five minutes after eating refined carbohydrates or sugar, mouth acidity increases and reaches a peak in about 20 minutes. Of course, it is not always possible to brush the teeth immediately after eating, but even rinsing the mouth promptly with water will go a long way toward getting rid of residues and preventing formation of acid.

Giving up sweets would be an even more effective way of reducing dental decay. Many dentists suggest limiting sweets to a sensible and flexible minimum to be eaten at or immediately after meals and promptly followed by a thorough rinsing or brushing of the teeth.

Another way to cut down tooth decay is to brush your teeth with one part of table salt combined with three parts of baking soda and rinsing the mouth with tay water, or using an ammonium tooth powder and rinsing the mouth with a solution of the same powder.

You can keep your teeth by eating the proper foods. Dentists believe that general health and a well-rounded diet have a bearing on dental health. Dental research indicates a possibility of cutting down on the family dental bill by having your child's teeth treated with fluoride solution at the ages of 3, 7, 10, and 13, in order to protect the "baby" teeth and the permanent teeth promptly after they come through the gums. Have your teeth inspected every six months to catch cavities while they are small.

Speaking of Christmas

SPEAKING OF CHRISTMAS . . . Throughout the world wherever Christmas is celebrated it is customary to place a lighted candle in the window . . . The legend is that candles originally were set out to light the Christ child's way as he made his visits through the children . . . One explanation of the custom of hanging stockings on Christmas Eve recalls the baronial halls of England where huge fireplaces were constantly in use . . . Each Christmas a special log, the Yule log, was thrown on the fire . . . This log burned steadily as long as the feasting and celebrating continued. Naturally, it burned with a pungent odor and stockings were hung over the fireplace to absorb some of this odor and to protect the owners from evil spirits . . . Christmas Eve, 1863, saw a near tragedy in Virginia City, Nevada . . . Two friends celebrated with a terrific round of festivity . . . Just as dawn was breaking, they embarked on a perilous promenade over the town's rooftops . . . A policeman, mistaking them for burglars, drew his revolver and prepared to shoot—but a passerby stopped him . . . Had he fired and the bullets found the mark, the world would have been deprived of two great humorists—Artemus Ward (Charles Farrar Browne) and Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) . . . Mince pies, so long a part of our Christmas tradition, originally had a deeply symbolic significance . . . The first mince pies were patterned in oblong shape, after the manger in which Christ was born . . . The crust represented the gold brought by the Three Wise Men; the many spices, the frankincense and myrrh . . . On May 11, 1659, the general court of Massachusetts Bay outlawed Christmas . . . Anyone celebrating, stopping work, serving holiday fare or deviating from normal daily life would be fined five shillings . . . The righteous Puritans were sure they were acting wisely—for how could good Christians condone the pagan origin of Christmas? Did not such a holiday encourage excess in eating and drinking? . . . It was 22 years before that law was repealed.

School Items—

For the FFA boys and teacher, Mr. Carlos Owens, we wish to correct an error in last week's news. Instead of $2.00, it was $200 that the Board of Education matched. The boys fire the furnace with wood; the board gave them $350.00, plus the $200.00, otherwise would have been spent for coal. We are glad to make this correction.

The P.-T.A. of Maplesville school met Monday night of this week instead of Thursday night as scheduled. A large crowd attended, and enjoyed a Christmas program, singing Christmas carols. The hostesses served a very delicious supper furnished by all attending. Hostesses were Mrs. Hymon Atcheson, Mrs. Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. Barnes, and other names we didn't get.

They will leave next week for a trip of an extended duration. They plan to attend the Orange Bowl football game in Miami, Fla., on January 1st. After their trip they will be at home here in their beautiful home, formerly owned by the late Mr. John Foshee. Mr. and Mrs. Latham have a great many friends here who are wishing them many years of happiness together.

MACEDONIA

Those who were present for Sunday School received a grand blessing from the teaching of Mr. Zack Jones. This man has been a great participant in our church, known and loved by everyone as "Uncle Zack." There could never be roses enough to adorn his life; to repay his goodness and kindness; not words enough to tell him how we love and appreciate him. However, there are many others due more thanks and appreciation than anyone could tell. We naturally think of these fine people when we think of Christmas.

Even in the hearts of the most vile of men, there must be a place of warmth for Christmas. When you link Christmas with Easter you have the Salvation of Life. Christ was born on Christmas Day and rose after crucificion on Easter. He lived a perfect life and died that we might live a life as nearly perfect as a Christian can. And as the season approaches nearer, it should be that every head should bow, not from drunken stupor, but for prayer. Prayer of thankfulness for what we have. Let us count our blessings before we ask for more. And it should be in every heart. The greatest wish of all is not worldly things, but peace and happiness and a desire for Christianity in the hearts of every man, woman and child throughout the entire world.

There is no ending for the things one might wish to say at Christmas to those most loved, but for a Christmas more happy than ever. We can see that there are no homes in our community where Santa cannot wait Was it not written, "Tis more blessed to give, than to receive." We can give always. Give smiles, give thought, give deeds, give help, give love, give thanks and give ourselves, for it is true, he who gives the most, lives the most.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rasberry and Hyman's Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Felts.

Thorsby News

(By MISS C. N. TURNQUIST — Correspondent)

"Now is the time to make certain that your Christmas holidays are not marred by fires or other accidents resulting from defective Christmas lighting equipment," warns Chief J. Ellis Jones, of the Thorsby Fire Department.

"You need have no fear," Chief Jones said, "of fires being caused by well made Christmas lighting sets, provided they are not too old and are in good condition. Many people do not realize how long their light strings have been in use." A high percentage are 10 to 20 years old, and defects of one sort or another are bound to be present. It is folly to take chances waiting until the night before Christmas. "Get out your lights now," the Chief advises, "and inspect them carefully. Lay out each string and go over them looking for the following defects:

1. "Is the attachment plug cracked or broken? Are the parts of the plug held together securely? Pull gently on the wires where they enter the plug to see that the connections are not broken.

2. "Bend the wire at close intervals to see if the insulation has hardened and is in danger of breaking off. Frayed insulation indicates a condition that can be dangerous. If the bare metal wires are exposed at any point, short circuiting may occur which are sure fire hazards, and the string should be thrown away.

3. "Inspect each lamp socket for cracks or loose parts. If the inner metal screw shell is loose in the insulated outer shell, the string should be discarded. Pull gently on the wires entering each socket to be sure they are secure.

4. "Keeping the string away from any flammable material, screw lamps in firmly, and plug in the string. Hold each socket firmly and twist the wires slightly to be sure there is no loose connection that will cause a short circuit or spark when the lights are on the tree. If any sparking occurs, the string should not be used under any circumstances."

"If the string is found to be in good condition," says Chief Jones, "it is ready to put on the tree, and there is a recommended way to do that, even. Put the string on the tree (with lamps inserted) before adding any other decorations. This is easier than putting decorations on first, and eliminates the chance of metal foil getting into lamp sockets. This could cause a short and result in fire."

Chief Jones pointed out with emphasis that house lighting circuits should have proper size fuses of correct current rating, and that, if in doubt the company furnishing power should be consulted. Over-size fuses may result in the wiring getting hot enough to start a fire, and usually just where it can not be noticed until the fire is well under way. "Be sure to be safe, says the Chief.

He also stressed one precautionary measure with respect to lighting strings that are actually discarded. They should be cut up so that children who find them will not be tempted to rescue them and put them back in service. "Cut off the sockets," he suggests, "so that it will be impossible for anyone to make use of it."

These are sound words of advice coming from one who knows the potential hazards that do exist where proper precautions are not followed. "I hope every person in this town has a very merry Christmas," the Chief said, "but more than that, I hope they have a safe one so they will be around to enjoy many more."

A Very Merry Christmas To You All, Dear Friends—

Another year has almost passed and we are about to celebrate another Christmas. Already we have enjoyed several Christmas programs. Homes, business houses and outdoor trees have taken on a festive appearance, and everyone is hustling around getting ready for Christmas. May we celebrate this most hallowed day with the true Christmas spirit. May we not forget that we are commemorating the Birth of Christ.

* * *

The pageant at Thorsby Institute on last Friday night started off the Christmas programs and was enjoyed by all who attended, there being a nice crowd. The next program was held at the Lutheran Church on Sunday afternoon, when Rev. David Conrad of Birmingham, assisted by his choir, presented a very lovely Christmas program. The church which was decorated in holly and white candles, with red bells and poinsettas, was filled to overflowing, and the program was enjoyed by all. On Sunday night a program of Christmas carols was presented at the Baptist Church. A large choir, dressed in vesper robes and led by Mrs. Marvin Davenport and Mr. Emmett Billingsley, presented carols that warmed the hearts of all who were fortunate in hearing them. A nice crowd was in attendance.

HOLY COMMUNION AT CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH CHRISTMAS MORNING

Holy Communion will be celebrated on Christmas morning at eleven o'clock at the First Methodist Church, it was announced today. The altar will be arranged with the Last Supper scene, and the communicants will kneel and partake of the elements of the Sacrament, which will be placed before them. The Communion Stewards will direct the congregation to the altar for this most impressive and high service of worship.

Board of Education Meets—

The Board of Education held its monthly meeting Monday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Wesley Fellowship Classroom, with Chairman O. L. Reynolds presiding. Representatives from every division of the church school and every department of the church were present and some very important business and planning were transacted.

Special emphasis will be given to the adult division for the next six weeks according to plans underway by Roy M. Roper, Superintendent of the adult division of the church school. These include the addition of classes for adults and young adults. Also, the operation of a nursery for infants and those of kindergarten age is being planned. The services of a practical nurse will be required in this set-up, it was disclosed.

The youth work was discussed and plans for additional sessions and recreational activities were made.

General superintendent R. C. Williams made some very valuable and timely suggestions to the board. One of the projects adopted was that of a "potluck supper" meeting, with the teachers and workers of the entire church school meeting with the Board of Education the middle of January. Chairman Reynolds gave most able leadership to the meeting.

Nativity Scene—

The outdoor, lighted Nativity scene, located on the church lawn has attracted wide attention and interest on the part of our folk. The work was done by a committee headed by Mrs. C. C. Fiquette. Many assisted in this project, and plans call for an annual preparation of scene. Among those helping Mrs. Fiquette were W. B. Atkinson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Berber Farley, Julian Evans, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Ranson, the Rev. M. C. Henley and Mr. Curtis Deason. Of course, Mr. Fiquette rendered his services as "supervisor," as well as helping to provide certain materials for the exhibit.

98 Years Ago a Lutheran Pastor Set Up the First Tree in Church

December 24 this year, the tradition of the Christmas tree in American church services will be 98 years old—for it was back in 1851 that a Lutheran minister in Cleveland, Ohio, lighted the first tree at such services.

The minister was the Rev. Henry Schwan, pastor of the Zion Lutheran Church on Cleveland's York street and his action brought on a storm of controversy which lasted several years. This was caused by the fact that the Christmas tree had so long been associated with pagan observance of the season that many conservatives believed it had no place in Christian ceremonies.

However, some of Rev. Schwan's congregation, especially the children, thought the beautifully - decorated tree, glowing with candles, was just the spirit of the Christmas season.

But the objectors had their way and they were determined that Rev. Schwan's tree was to be the last of the Christmas trees erected in America.

Through the years that followed, the minister did all in his power to learn of the origins of the Christmas tree tradition in order that he might show that the tradition was far from the "heathen" ceremony it had been called.

He wrote countless letters to friends and acquaintances all over the world; he questioned strangers and made long notes of their conversations. And, when he learned that a particular part of the world already had Christmas trees, he would mark that place on a large map which hung in his study—a dark green tree where the tradition was established, a light green one where Christmas trees, at least, were known.

Pastor Schwan made his search for knowledge of the Christmas tree almost a crusade.

But as Christmas time approached in 1852, Rev. Schwan had not found enough church support for the tradition to light another tree at his Christmas service that year. So, with great regret, he resigned himself to the end of his hope of establishing the custom.

But on December 24, he received from the pastor of one of Cleveland's older churches the present of a new tree. Rev. Schwan realized immediately that the present meant the acceptance of the custom by a churchman far more influential than himself, and his sadness vanished.

There was a Christmas tree in the York street Zion Lutheran church that year—and once accepted in Cleveland, the custom spread all over the United States.

York street where Pastor Schwan's church once stood is changed now and long ago was renamed Hamilton avenue; and the first tree, decorated with candles and a gold star at its top, has given way to trees with brighter, more colorful decorations.

But the tradition of erecting and lighting Christmas trees, which is observed throughout the nation, is the same tradition which Pastor Schwan introduced to this country in the town of Cleveland nearly 100 years ago.

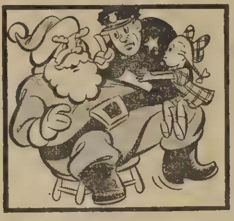
Santa Affected By Restriction's

It's difficult to understand, but the genial spirit of Christmas, Santa Claus himself, hasn't always had it easy. There have been occasions when laws or traditions or regulations have put certain curbs on the old gentleman. Here are some examples:

In Newark, N. J., Santa is required to pass a stiff physical examination before he can serve in a department store. And even then he is barred from kissing any of the children who perch upon his knee.

In Charleston, S. C., charity Santas have been forbidden to make a pitch on public streets on the grounds that children flocking in to see them may create a traffic hazard. And in Washington a few years ago, when the postmaster general was asked to print a Santa Claus stamp at Christmas time he rejected the proposal with a scornful, "I should say not!"



Outside the U.S.A., Santa has had trouble, too. In Montreal, Canada, an influential organization fought against holding of the city's annual Santa Claus parade on the ground that it was "merely a display of grotesque and vulgar buffoonery." A prominent journalist in Rio de Janeiro fostered a movement to do away with Santa Claus (Papa Noel) in Brazil and substitute a toy-bearing grandfather Indian. In Mexico City the minister of education recommended that the Aztec god Quetzalcoatl, instead of St. Nick, should bring gifts to children.

In the field of opinion, Santa has encountered some detractors. A Prof. Ivan E. McDougle, sociologist at Goucher college, Baltimore, declared: "The Santa Claus myth has lived too long. Parents should substitute philosophy"—whatever that is.

A Toronto psychiatrist got in his blast. "It should be made clear to children," he said, "that Santa Claus is not necessarily a real man any more than any other character out of a story book."

Tell the truth about Santa

Among the myriad problems which beset parents at Christmas time are the many questions from the small-fry about Santa Claus. And the business of telling Junior or his little sister the truth about the jolly old gentleman in the red suit is really a major task.

However, the situation is bound to arise, and when it does, it does something to your heart strings—so you draw the little ones close and cast about for the best explanation.

Oddly enough, the true story is best—and the easiest to tell. So why not just tell the little ones this?:

St. Nicholas (or Nicolas) is Santa Claus' real name. He lived in Asia Minor and was the beloved bishop of the Greek church of Myra in Lycia. He is the patron saint of the young, and in some European countries a person dressed as a bishop still assembles the children and distributes gifts of nuts, sweetmeats and other nice things to the good boys and girls.

Children loved St. Nicholas and trudged along beside him as he trudged the dusty roads of the Lycia countryside, bringing fruit and candy to the sick and needy.

One of many stories told of his goodness concerns a poor and honest man and his three good and beautiful daughters. The father was unhappy for poverty prevented his giving the customary dowries to his daughters, and for this reason they could never have suitable husbands.

One night a bag of coins was tossed in at the man's window. The next night the act was repeated. But on the third night the father watched, and the anonymous giver was detected. The jolly bishop stood with the third bag of coins in his hands. The father was very proud and would not accept the money. The good bishop begged the poor man to accept the gifts and use them for his daughters' dowries, requesting that his name never be revealed.

At last, the father accepted the money for his daughters, but he could not keep the name of the generous bishop secret — so the legend of the goodness of St. Nicholas was further spread and strengthened.

SHIRT-SLEEVED SANTA . . . It's not a common subject for discussion, but Santa Claus sometimes does take off his coat and just lounge around in his beard and shirtsleeves. However, this is not standard procedure, and it's mighty few Santas you see sitting on a park bench in New York.

THINGS WE SEE & HEAR

(by TUCK)

Guess who! Shelby Studdard, who else?

Boy, does Miss Hunter have fun every day fourth period. She practices throwing guys out of Algebra (not literally throws, but you get the general idea.) Oh, well, I guess they bring it on themselves, or should I say, ourselves?

These girls! Always going around with some guy five or six years older than they are. I'm afraid there's going to be some of them quite nacked when they get back down to earth.

We were in Biology class the other day and I, found a book with Joanne Scott's name in it. When she came in I told her that her boolc was on the teacher's desk. She said, "Oh, that's not mine, that's Lenore Oglesby's." You know, that's the first time I've every seen Joanne spelled with an L.

Benny Ray Tucker has a new way of saying kidding. Instead of saying, "You're kidding," or "You're Fooling," he says, "You're jesting." I kinda believe hes been reading too much of Shakespeare.

I don't imagine these fellows will be running to lunch any more until they get outside the building. The other day Reedie Taylor tried to run through the front door before it was opened and cut his hand. I don't believe it was Reedie's fault, but anyhow, I don't think they'll run any more.

This week's mystery is: He has sorta dark blonde hair; weighs about 135 pounds; height is about 5 feet 6 inches; he is a Senior I and his mother and the teachers think quite a lot of him. He works, but doesn't, or won't, kill himself, I don't imagine.

I spoke of going to lunch a little while ago, didn't I? Well, Mrs. Williams sure has those home economics girls trained.. Either they're not hungry or they just don't care whether they get there or not.. Which ever it is, they don't run.

Well, how did you kids like the "Amateur Contest?" It was really something, wasn't it? I kinda liked the Barber Shop Quartet better than any I think.

Say, kids, I believe the Birmingham schools are beating us out of another week for Christmas, aren't they? I don't know how they do it. Somebody must know the Superintendent really well. Anyway, we get out of school this week for a little while anyhow.

Looks like we could use a little "something" on the basketball team, doesn't it, kids? We're strictly losing too many games this season..

THE FARMERS UNION CONVENTION

The State Convention of the Farmers Union held at the courthouse in Clanton, Ala., on December 1st, 2nd and 3rd, seems to have created quite a discussion among the supporters and critics of the organization.

We, the members of the Farmers Union, feel that the program adopted at this convention carries the highest of American principles and ideas..

The delegates at this convention were composed of dirt farmers and wrote out and adopted the 1950 program for the Alabama Farmers Union.

We, in the Farmers Union, believe in the kind of organization that allows the farmers to formulate their own program and not have it handed down to them by other organizations.

The Farmers Union believe in an organization true to its name—a farm organization should be composed of farmers, bankers composed of bankers, merchants composed of merchants, doctors composed of doctors, lawyers composed of lawyers.

We feel that each organization has its rights, privileges and obligations to our American ideas of progress through law and order.

The Farmers Union program is a product of form of thought and reason, and we challenge anyone on the issues we support.

I do not claim the Farmers Union is infallable or that it can't make a mistake, but I do know that we have a definite set of principles and purposes and we shall continue to support them until some one shows us that we are wrong.

We believe in an old age pension. and the Farmers Union shall continue to fight for it until they receive it, or until someone shows us we are wrong, and that those old people do not need or deserve a pension.

There are many other issues I hope to discuss in the columns of this paper and invite constructive criticism on any of them.

I do not believe in a hush, hush, or whispering campaign on issues of great concern to the people.

Dictators rise to power through undercover and whispering campaigns, because the people are misinformed.

I feel that more space should be given and used in the public press to discuss the issues that face the people today.

Only through honest and open discussions can people form honest opinion about the issues they should support.

Do you believe in an old age pension? Is this issue of public interest? Is old age pensions a public obligation? I will discuss this issue next week if space will permit.

Remember the Farmers Union believes in the kind of democracy that makes men free and that the truth neither fears nor offends.—W. L. Sanders.

"B" Teams—Clanton 33 Loretta 10
"A" Teams—Clanton 60 Loretta 25

There were some good games at the Clanton High School Gymnasium last Tuesday night when the Loretta Saints of Montgomery and the Clanton Tigers met in a grand clash.

On the "B" team for Clanton, Lawrence, Ogburn and Bates really stood out. Lawrence's scores added up to ten points. Ogburn's points were 7. Johnny Ogburn didn't make any superhuman scoring feat but he did play an excellent game. Charles Bates racked up 13 well made points. Bates is a good ball player and we sure do need him on that team. On Loretta's team, Tucker and Garrett stood out over the team, Tucker making five points and Garrett making 8. Garrett looks like a promising young ball player to us.

On the "A" teams for Clanton, Popwell, Seales and Johnson were the chiefs. Royce Seales in the first half of the game made 10 points and in the second half he made 7. F. Popwell in the first well played half racked up 12 big points and in the second half came up with a neat 10 points, giving him a total of 22 beautifully made points. Johnson in the whole game sunk 10 points and played some good ball. On the Loretta team, Tucker made 8 points. Incidentally, folks, he plays right forward and is really good at it. McCray who plays center, made 9 points for his team and helped a lot on the score.

Loretta has a good ball team and they are really willing to use all they have to win a game.

Xmas Spirit-

been filled with spiritual music and hymns played on the carillon of the First Methodist Church.

So many homes and buildings have been decorated that it would be impossible to mention them all. Among the most attractive we have noticed are the manger scenes at the First Methodist Church and at Spigener's. While other beautifully decorated homes include those of Mrs. C. O. Lawrence, the Leo Thompsons, J. L. Teel and others too numerous to mention.

The Christmas season has also brought back to town for family visits a number of folks we were glad to see. They have all remarked on the progress that Clanton is making.

Bob's Coming to the "Blue and Gray" Game Again

The other day I got a letter from Bob Johnson, of Pittsburgh, saying he and some friends were coming down again to see the "Blue and Gray" football game in Montgomery, on December 31.

This is getting to be a habit with Bob—like it is with thousands of other folks. And a good habit, too, because it brings people from all sections of the country into Alabama.

While here, they have an opportunity to see our rich "Black Belt" farmlands, our great industries, our romantic Gulf Coast and thriving cities.

It's Alabama's chance to say, "Howdy, we're glad you're here. Stay awhile, and look around."

From where I sit, the "Blue and Gray" North vs. South football game is much more than a nationally-famous gridiron tussel. It's an annual opportunity for Alabama to make new and lasting friendships. And which side a fellow roots for makes no more difference than his preference for buttermilk or a temperate glass of beer.

Christmas Carols

Christmas carols express better than anything else, probably, the true spirit of Christmas.

The word "carol" itself signifies joy and was originally used to accompany a dance. William Wallace Fyfe concludes that the term carol "signifies a song of joy or exultation." Another definition states: "A carol is a hymn of praise especially such as is sung at Christmas in the open air."

In England, which gave America most of its carols, they were sometimes gay and sometimes convivial until the time of the Puritans, who tried to suppress the Christmas spirit.

After the Restoration, the religious nature of the day was for a time almost forgotten in the reaction from Puritanism, and the carol was temporarily lost in the songs.

There are many quaint customs associated with the early carolers that might be used today to break the monotony of going from house to house singing Christmas hymns.

It was about the 16th century that caroling became a Christmas custom, and is supposed to have been brought to England from Italy by the traveling clergy. The first real Christmas carol is attributed to St. Francis of Assisi who made a model of the Bethlehem manger to help him tell his people the Christmas story.

The idea of caroling fitted admirably into the English conception of Christmas as a combination of religious celebration and a great home day with neighborly feeling, so it grew and flourished in that country.

Little bands and groups of singers which sprang up in the towns and villages came to be known as "Waits." A natural explanation of the name seems to be that it refers to watching and waiting, for Christmas Eve is called the Vigil of Christmas.

As early as December 21, which is the day dedicated to St. Thomas, mummers and carolers would begin going from door to door, announcing the great feast at hand. It was natural for the householders to offer hospitality to these Christmas troubadours, and gradually in many places the custom of giving alms and presents of various kinds was established.

This benign custom threatened at one time in England to become a profession and to lose its original simple charm.

For a period beginning just when no one knows and ending in 1820, there were in London and Westminster companies of "Waits" whose leaders held office by public appointment and who obtained an exclusive right to solicit contributions from the public.

The carolers were often accompanied by entertainers who gave a spirit of revelry to the occasions. The mummers often interrupted the singing to give their interpretation of "St. George and the Dragon." Tumblers, dressed in bright red, would perform their arts of skill to entertain the onlookers.

END OF THE RAINBOW . . . The rainbow of at least one human desire had fulfillment at the end when Judy Sue Warschauer found herself face to face with the doll of her dreams—and it was the very one she wanted for Chirstmas.

Russian People Are Also Able to Say "Merry Christmas"

"S Rojdestvom Xristovym."

That's what a Russian would say to you if you were in Russia on Christmas day and he wished to extend the season's greetings.

The phrase is the Russian's way of saying: "Merry Christmas."

In the past, the Russian's Christmas was closely associated with his church; but how the day is observed now that the religious life has been subjugated in the Soviet, one would have to be behind the "iron curtain" to know.

But it was not always like that. In other days, the Russian Christmas was much like the Ukrainian. There was a Santa Claus known as "Dedushka Moroz" and there were traditional gifts of red boots for children and golden slippers for young girls.

In certain parts of the country the "baboushka" (grandmother) was the legendary dispenser of gifts. According to one story, she repented of unkindness and ever since has tried to make amends by distributing gifts to children at Christmas.

Star of Bethlehem Continues to Puzzle Modern Scholars

Once again Christendom sees the Star of Bethlehem and, like the Wise Men of old, rejoices with exceeding great joy.

Astronomers have discounted possibilities that the star may have been a natural phenomenon since such phenomena occur too far from the earth to serve as any sort of local guide. Modern opinion is, however, inclined to hold that there was a Star — although the story probably has been touched by Oriental imagery.

St. Matthew suggests that even the Wise Men may have lost sight of the star while they were in Jerusalem; hence, they rejoiced when it reappeared to their vision as they approached the Manger of Bethlehem.

Come to think of it, astronomers have sought an astronomically authentic star — and found it not; historians have sought an historically human Jesus of Nazareth —and are still arguing whether or not they have found Him; even zealous theologians, striving to harmonize messianic and eschatological theories with the illusive historical and human Jesus, have sometimes lost sight of the Babe in the Manger Who from His lowly stable draws unto Himself all who are weary and heavy-laden.

Pressing close to that sacred Manger, Christendom glimpses the Star of Bethlehem once more and rejoices in the light of righteousness and peace which has conquered every tyranny that evil men could think of, the light that shineth in the darkness and shall not fail.

Time Not Constant In the Celebrations Of Christ's Nativity

While December is now the month in which Christ's birthday is celebrated by Christians all over the world, research and study show that Christ's nativity has been celebrated in January, March, April, May, September and October by various peoples.

And although few people know it, it was for the purpose of substituting a Christian festival for pagan ones of Romans and Druids that celebrations of Christmas in December were popularized.

No historian pretends to fix the actual date of Chirist's birth or the date at which Christmas became a general festival.

About all that is known is that during the fourth century the feast of the Nativity was observed in all western world churches at different dates.

The confusion resulting from celebrations in seven months of the year caused the western church authorities to meet in 340 to set a definite date for the celebration. The eastern churches did not cooperate until the sixth century when December 25 was set as the day to be observed.

The question has arisen innumerable times as to why December was selected as the month for rejoicing. The answer is that this month was chosen in order that a Christian festival could compete with those of the pagans, because December was noted for its feasts and holidays in nearly every civilized land.

Greeks, Romans, Saxons and Scandinavians all took part in the celebration of these festivals which had originated before the birth of Christ.

From the Saxons came the ceremony of burning the Yule log. The Saxons burned great bonfires in honor of their god Thor. From the Romans came the giving of presents, for this custom has been traced to the Roman Saturnalia.

It may seem strange to claim that the pagan riotousness might be the forebear of the Christian holiday of goodness and love, but intermingled with that which was objectionable, were things that have gone straight to the hearts of people throughout the Christian world.

New York Claims Santa Claus to Be Its Private Property

While the claim may cause the rest of America to bristle, New Yorkers insist that Santa Claus is peculiarly New York's own. Not only did he land in Manhattan with the Dutch settlers, they point out, but for almost two hundred years he never took his activities or presents out of New York state.

The New Yorkers advance some interesting points to bolster their contentions. They declare that in the genial company of Washington Irving, James Kirke Paulding and Clement Clarke Moore, Santa Claus gradually lost the grim, stern aspect he wore when he arrived with the Dutch settlers to the bulging, benevolent mien he now offers.

It was in New York, too, they assert, that Santa acquired his reindeer sleigh and his habit of arriving on Christmas instead of on the Dutch St. Nicholas eve (December 5). And thus, in his New York panoply, he finally found his way to all parts of the United States, England and even Australia and India.

Indeed, as the New Yorkers will tell you, New York, as New Amsterdam in the beginning, was dedicated to Santa Claus, or St. Nicholas, by its Dutch founders. For Santa Claus—or Sinterklaas, as it is sometimes written in Holland—is of course only the centuries-old pet name which Dutch children gave to their patron and gift bringer, the good Bishop St. Nicholas. And it is said that the ship which brought the first Dutch children to Manhattan island bore his face as figurehead.

From the first, too, his special day of December 6, was set aside with Christmas, New Year's, Easter and Whitsuntide, as one of the five chief holidays of the new colony, just at it had been in Holland.

So, year after year, as regularly as St. Nicholas eve came around in New Amsterdam, in Breuckelen (Brooklyn), in Fort Orange (Albany) and many other hamlets above the icy Hudson, the children in every good Dutch family gathered in expectant circle. For weeks beforehand they had learned their lessons and helped with the milking and churning in an agony of good behavior. And now, all ready, they sang their song to Santa Claus.

In the midst of the song would come a knocking at the door and in would stride Santa Claus, himself—not round and jolly, but solemn and majestic in trailing robes. In one hand he might have a basket of presents or a purse, but in the other was sure to be a birch rod—an awful warning to a naughty boy.

Santa questioned each child in turn about his behavior in the year just past and gave him a pat of approval or a warning shake of the head, as the record indicated. Then, bidding them all look for presents in the morning, the good saint suddenly flung a handful of lollipops into the room and, in the ensuing scramble, vanished into the night.

Then the children set out their sabots, or later the great blue yarn stockings made for the purpose.

However he did it—and the tale varies in many lands—Santa Claus got about, for in the morning over the hearth steaming with waffles and sausages and other good Dutch fare, were the blue stockings bulging with apples, balls, dolls and tops.

Legend relates that the crown of thorns which was placed on the head of Jesus was made of holly and that before the crucifixion the berries were white, but turned crimson like drops of blood.

Pilgrims Deplored "Ye Christmas Day"

Puritan disapproval of Christmas celebrations disembarked from the Mayflower with the Pilgrims in 1621 and, accordingly, Governor Bradford issued a statement publicly rebuking certain young men who declined to work on December 25, "ye day called Christmas."

This first New England Christmas — or non-observance thereof—should not be credited as the first Christmas on American soil, since Leif Eriksen spent a winter or two on the North American continent around the turn of the 11th century.

Leif was a Christian, and it is likely that members of his crew were Christians, too; although it is quite possible that some had accepted the faith without remodeling their pagan natures, since King Olaf's methods were ruthless and his command "Be baptized, or else!" left them little choice.

Undoubtedly, flagons of crude, raw wine fermented from the grapes of Leif's vinland were passed around and the celebration may have been rather boisterous, but in all fairness to Leif—who, according to excellent testimony, was a sincere convert—it is reasonable to assume that there was a trace of religious observance.

Perhaps Leif remembered the few words of Latin prayer he learned at the time of his conversion and recited them in honor of the birthday of the Redeemer he had accepted. . . . Thus, the first Christmas in America was observed.

The first Christmas card was designed in 1845.

Poinsettias which have come to be a "must" for Chirstmas decorations owe their name and popularity to an early American diplomat, botanist and scholar—Joel Roberts Poinsett.

The practice of placing burning candles in the windows on Christmas eve is tied up with an Irish custom which holds the thought of the Christ child alone in the dark, needing light for his way.

YULETIDE PARTY

The Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church of Clanton held its annual Christmas Party last Friday evening at the church.

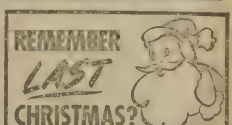
The large room was very artistically decorated with winter greenery and red crepe paper entwined around three of the columns, while the others held beautiful sprayes of holly and green cedar, tied with large red bows of crepe paper. Huge red and green paper Christmas ropes brought the pretty decorated columns "together." A large, beautifully decorated Xmas tree stood at one end of the room with many beautifully wraped packages underneath.

Those on the decorating committee were: Lois Hocutt, Referee Lineberry, and Lucile Carroll. The Intermediate R.A. boys were the tree committee.

Miss Helen Parrish was guest of the class and gave a dramatic interpretation of the old French Legend. "The Juggler of Notre Dame," which was enjoyed so very much by all present. Group singing and games made the evening a very enjoyous one. Laura Little and Minnie Wade served on the program committee.

A delicious refreshment plate was served by the hostesses, who were: Hazel Boockholdt, Jewel Thompson, Annie Lane, Maggie Kemp and Beulah Brown.

Gifts were delivered by each one present. Lots of fun and happy times were had in opening and showing the lovely gifts received. Those enjoying this lovely Yuletide Party, other than those serving on the various committees were: Lillian C. Smith, Lou Hamilton, Blanch Powell, Freda Blair, Martha Wilson, Marzelle Scott, Kathleen DeRamus, Frances Hutchison, Essie White, Essie Walker, Jewel Sutley, Evelyn Teel, Mary Hedin, Nell Powers, Minnie Reeves, [illegible] Lewis, Thelma Williams, Mammie Higgins, Loraine Eubanks, Sue Sullivan, Rose arley, Alice Hayes, [illegible] Rose Bell, Erma Corbett, Lenora Jones, Alma Dickerson, Leila Bell Moore, Iris Taylor, Grace Golden, Eva Wright, Nan Taylor, Gladys Grooms, Madelyn Wood, Ruby Smith, Bessie Fruette, Gertrude Nivens, Polly Easterling, Gertrude Calloway and Ida Gladdens, who is the guest of Lou Hamilton.



Remember Last Christmas?

These were the major goings-on in the world during Chirstmas week in 1948:

December 27 — Joseph Cardinal Mindzenty, outspoken foe of Hungary's Communist regime, was arrested on charges of plotting against the government, spying, treason and blackmarket dealings in currency.

In an extemporaneous speech at Kansas City, President Truman made this remark that caught the interest of the world: "There are certain leaders in the government of that country (Russia) who are exceedingly anxious to have an understanding with us."

December 29 — President Truman returned to Washington after a Christmas vacation in Independence, Mo.

December 28 — Twelve stranded air force men were rescued by plane from an icecap in southern Greenland by Lt. Col. Emil Beaudry.

December 31 — The 80th congress, denounced by President Truman as the second worst on record, passed into history with the adjournment of both houses.

December 31 — At year's end, America's favorite popular song for the moment was "On a Slow Boat to China."

TOYS FOR THE CHILDREN

How did you choose the toys for your youngsters this Christmas?

A New York toy manufacturer declares that only a few parents will select the proper playthings for their children each Christmas.

Most, he said, buy toys that please themselves, rather than the children.

The man, who owns a company that makes creative playthings, warns that "gadgety" toys may be harmful and frustrating. And, he adds, children quickly tire of them.

"The best toy a parent can buy," he said, "is a set of plain unpainted, wooden unit blocks. Children will use and enjoy them from age 18 months to nine years."

He said that girls between age 3 and 7 should have a "doll corner." He said the corner should be supplied first with a large wooden stove, bed and cupboard.

"The doll corner will become the most treasured play place in the little girl's life," he said.

He contends boys from ages 2 to 7 mostly enjoy "transportation" play—trucks, cars and boats.

There was no statement about what parents should choose at Christmas for the young teen-age boy or girl—in the 13-16 year-old group, whose interests already are deeply grained in social activities, and who prefer parties and dances to play-at-home activities.

Perhaps by next year, this manufacturer, or some child psychologist will have solved this problem.

ONE TRACK MIND

By Shirley Sargent

THE VERY NICEST thing about Henry Ellis, Henry had decided, was the fact that he was nine years old. He possessed another attribute variously described by his mother as stubbornness, stupidity, and the result of a one track mind.

To get something he really wanted, Henry had learned from experience, he always had to work hard and long. Pestering his mother for what he wanted came easiest.

"Why not, Mom?" he begged. "Why can't I do it? I want to more than anything in the world. I'd be so good you wouldn't know me."

Finally his mother gave in to his endless teasing and what she considered impossible promises.

"All right, all right," she said, "We'll see if you can be good for a whole month and then—well, we'll see."

His long-awaited goal was in sight, but Henry had to admire his mother's shrewdness. Knowing that Rita, who was five, would keep close tab on him, Mrs. Ellis put her in Henry's charge for the month. Playing nursemaid to a five-year-old was a stern task, even when he could be as nasty as he wanted—but taking care of her on his good behavior was purely awful. All this time she would taint her demands with "Or I'll tell mama."

Only once he told her calmly but desperately, "If I ever have any children, they'll all be boys or all be girls. I'm not going to make any little boy of mine have a little sister. No sir, I'll give him a turtle or a goat or something he wants, not a little sister."

Rita just barely listened to him before demanding, "Now be a turtle for me, Henry. Crawl like a turtle and pull your head in a shell."

The days crept past Christmas and Henry knew that being good was surely a most terrible experience. Then at last the month was over and he heard his mother asking, "Had enough of being good, Henry?"

Feeling it to be a trick question, he answered casually that ". . . would be fun to see the fellows again, and just sort of all over relax!" She laughed, encouraging him to go on. "Hey, mom, well, can I do it—you know?"

She kissed him, saying, "Yes."

Henry yelled "Hooray" as he ran into his room. Gosh, it had been worth waiting for after all—my but he hated girls, though. Ugh! There were some very important matters to attend to before he was quite ready. They wouldn't take so long, but the waiting would. He started unwrapping his packages. Thanks to mom, life was really fine.

A little before 12 that night Mrs. Ellis, noting the silence, went into Henry's room. His lights were blazing but the boy was asleep in a chair drawn close to an open window. She walked quietly over beside him. A whole month—thirty arduous days devoted to being good—he had worked for this night, and now he was asleep with the sum total of his dreams in his lap and fists. Soundly sleeping, he lay back in the chair, in one hand a noisemaker; clutched limply in the other, a large horn. The box in his lap contained piles of confetti, while reams of paper streamers were laid neatly over the chair arms. There was a ridiculous paper hat crushed into the chair back by his head, and, on the table near him, there was another horn. It had a white card tied on it labelled simply "For mother."

So, she thought, with tears in her eyes, a little man's plan for one night had included his mother. She shook him gently, settled his hat more perkily on his head, and picked up her own horn. Noise seemed suspended in the air.

"Wake up, little one track mind," she said, sitting him up straight. "Hurry and wake up so you can wish me a Happy New Year!"

Soundly sleeping, he lay back in the chair, in one hand a noisemaker; clutched limply in the other, a large horn. The box in his lap contained piles of confetti.

—then came Three Wise Men

Legend not only has identified the Wise Men as Gaspar, Melchior and Balthasar, it has crowned them and given them the kingdoms of Tarsus, Arabia and Ethiopia. It has symbolized their gifts as symbolic of what Jesus was to become—gold for a king, frankincense for a high priest and myrrh for a great physician.

The Gospel text's specific wise men from the east logically identifies them with Zoroastrianism—an ancient monotheistic religion of Persia. Zoroastrian priests were called Magi; they were powerful in public and private life since they, and they alone, possessed the priestly mysteries involved in the worship of Mazda—who represented the Zoroastrian power for good.

The Magi may or may not have been fabulously wealthy: St. Matthew does not elaborate their treasures nor the amount of gold, frankincense and myrrh which they presented to the Christ Child. The gifts may have been mere tokens of their treasures, or the sum and substances thereof.

And if they were soothsayers, mystics and possibly clairvoyants they were also truly wise—in as much as they did not return to Herod, but departed into their own country by a different route.

Legend of the YULE LOG

In Virginia, the old Dominion, storied land of early American history, there is an old tradition of the origin of the Yule log that is retold every Christmas.

As the family sits around the Yule log and sips their Christmas eggnog on Christmas eve, the ancient legend is recounted again.

One very cold Christmas eve, when the frosty wind howled across a world of snow, an old man was sitting in his little cabin wishing that he had a fire to warm him.

Suddenly he heard the cry of a little child away out in the cold. The old man hobbled to the door and gazed out across the snow. The wind and the snow came rustling in and the old man shivered until his "onliest two teef" chattered with cold.

The plaintive cry of the child came again above the whistle of the wind. It went straight to the old man's heart and he wished with all his power of longing that he might have the strength to go out and find the unfortunate babe.

The cry came a third time — and then a wondrous thing happened. A miraculous power filled the old man's veins. His muscles became strong and tense, his crutch fell back into the cabin and he stepped from his threshold out into the snow.

Hurrying over the snow with a speed he had not owned since boyhood, by and by he came to a little child lying in a snow bank.

He bent down and touched the child and a great new strength flowed over him, a strength which seemed to give him wings as he sped back to his cabin.

Arriving there, he placed the child upon the bed, tenderly drew the ragged coverlet about it and then looked to see if there were a bit of furniture he could use to make a fire with which to warm the little one.

At that precise moment a great log rolled across the threshold and into the fireplace. The little child looked at the log with eyes like stars—stars which sent gleams of light that kindled the log with the most brilliant fire the old man ever had seen.

The dingy little room immediately was filled with radiance and warmth, and as the light enwrapped the child he laughed and laughed with a melody like a song from the heart. The old man turned his eyes to where the fire burned and watched the flames leap in beautiful rainbow tints over the log, and as his old eyes watched, the colors seemed to form the shape of the Cross in the fire.

The flames of the Cross leaped higher and higher, blue, red, yellow and white, and as the old man watched this display, suddenly and magically there appeared a table in the center of the room, covered with a Christmas feast such as never before had been spread before his eyes. And never again was the old man hungry or cold, and never after that was there a Christmas in old Virginia without the Yule log and the Christmas Child to give light and warmth.

And that is the story of the Yule log as it is told in Virginia every Christmas eve.

The ideal Christmas tree is the fir, because of its tendency to hold its needles longer.

A final step in trimming the Christmas tree is frosting it with fluffy snow. A simple and popular form of snow is ordinary soap flakes.

Christmas of 1804 Was Chicago's Best

Surely there will never be another Christmas celebration like the one in Chicago in 1804.

Captain John Whistler (grandfather of the painter who painted the famous "Whistler's Mother") was in command of the garrison at Fort Dearborn and he decided that there should be a great feast—complete with music, dancing and a splendid Christmas tree.

Soldiers from the garrison went a-hunting in the woods just north of the river and came back with a fat buck deer, some rabbits, a raccoon or two, a few wild turkeys. Added to the roasting pig (contributed by some festive-minded citizen) and the magnificent Christmas pudding, these morsels provided abundance for all. Everybody — the civilians and the military — drank a toast to Thomas Jefferson, the President of the United States.

The punch was "dizzy" and there were fifes and drums and a couple of fiddles to play for the dancing.

It was getting late when a watcher in one of the blockhouses gave a warning shout that Indians were approaching; but they turned out to be friendly Indians who came bearing gifts to the feast. They watched the white folks dance, and when the whites were exhausted, the redskins took the floor and began a wild, whooping dance of their own which climaxed Chicago's unique Christmas celebration in 1804.

Swiss Brotherhood Sang at Christmas To Banish Plague

One of the most impressive customs in the world is observed in Switzerland where the "singing at the fountains" is done by the Sebastiani brotherhood in the picturesque spa town of Rheinfelden.

According to the Swiss writer Gottlieb Wyss, the custom is more than 400 years old, dating from 1540 when a plague, sweeping through many lands, visited Rheinfelden. Twelve men formed a brotherhood in honor of St. Sebastian, promising to pray to him to safeguard their town from further distress. They also undertook to nurse those afflicted by the plague and to bury its victims.

If one of their own members died, the brethren acted as pallbearers, and up to the present day, by their own selection, the membership of the brotherhood has remained at 12.

Pestilence in the medieval period was ascribed to the evil spirits in the water, and when the Sebastiani brethren make their rounds of seven fountains on Christmas eve, they start at the fountain in the "Froschweide" where the plague started in the 16th century. After singing for the seventh time near the town church, they join its congregation for midnight mass, first placing their quaint mounted lantern, with its lighted candle, before the altar of St. Sebastian.

For their Christmas eve singing at twelve, brethren are dressed in dark clothes and black silk top-hats. Around their lantern-bearer they stand in a circle and three times, as the name of Christ is mentioned in their song, they uncover their heads. The song dates back to the middle ages.

Miss Ryles suffered lacerations about the head and face and possible skull fracture. The 16 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baker suffered possible skull fracture. Mr. Rowland suffered a broken hip, and Mrs. Rowland suffered body bruises and lacerations.

Ambulances from J. Mell Martin Funeral Home and Spigeners Funeral home answered the call and brought the injured to Central Alabama Hospital. A check Wednesday found all victims of the wreck resting and much improved.

CHRISTMAS FIRE HILL GROCERY

QUARTERLY MEETING

Chilton W.M.U. to meet January 4, 1950 at the Liberty Hill Baptist Church at 1:00 a.m. On program will be Rev. and Mrs. Howard Bryant, Missionaries from Chile. All pastors are urged to attend, as well as all members of W.M.U. Bring lunch or a dish of food. We're counting on you.

A group of supporters and volunteers is being enlisted for the 1950 March of Dimes in Chilton County, according to information from Mr. Leo Thompson, County Campaign Director for Chilton County.

"The annual appeal of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis takes place January 16-31," Mr. Thompson said. "It will be sparked toward success by representative citizens throughout our County."

Mr. Thompson emphasized that last years enormous polio outbreaks stretched the National Foundation's epidemic aid funds to the breaking point.

"It is only through the 1950 March of Dimes that our organization can obtain sufficient money to fulfill its obligation to the American people," he declared. "Every dime, every dollar contributed during the March of Dimes campaign period next month is desperately needed. The polio bill for assistance to patients in 1949 alone is expected to reach the staggering sum of $31,000,000."

"To assure your chapter of the National Foundation enough money to help defray hospitilization costs and bills for care and treatment of local polio patients, we have scheduled a series of activities inviting participation by everybody in the 1950 March of Dimes.

"We've a tremendous job of work to do," Mr. Thompson concluded. "I am sure that each citizen of Chilton County, realizing the vital need to continue the fight against polio, will join wholeheartedly and generously in the all-important 1950 March of Dimes."

Series of Meetings To Be Held For Farmers

Montgomery — Alabama farmers will be asked to outline what changes they recommend in the cotton marketing quota law at a series of meetings called by Walter L. Randolph, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. These suggestions will be taken to Washington, where representatives from all cotton states will discuss the problem as it affects the whole section January 9th.

Randolph notified county farm bureau presidents that four district meetings would be held beginning Jan. 3, and asked that "a good representative delegation of farmers from your county" attend one of the sessions. Alabama farmers and others in cotton growing states approved marketing quotas for 1950 in last month's election, recognizing at the same time that inequities existed and that additional measures were necessary to iron them out.

Alabama farmers will meet to talk over the situation at these meetings: Jan. 3, Ozark community house, 1:30 p.m.; Jan. 4, Monroeville, high school auditorium, 1:30 p.m.; Jan. 5, Birmingham, Tutwiler Hotel, 1:30 p.m.; Jan. 6, Belle Mina Experiment Station auditorium. The meeting for farmers of Chilton county will be held on January 5.

Prices Paid Farmers' Prices They Receive

Auburn, Ala. — As farmers begin a new year, they face some sobering facts with respect to market prices they receive and prices they pay, states A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist.

For instance, as of November 15, the first time in eight years, U.S.D.A. reported that average prices of all farm products had slipped down to parity. In other words, the relationship between prices that farmers recived for their products and the prices they paid, including interest and taxes, were exactly the same as during the base period 1909-14.

Since the general expectation is that this trend will continue for most products next year, Jones urges farmers to make careful plans to reduce the cost of farm supplies wherever possible and still get efficient production; get the maximum production from every investment made, including land, labor, fertilizer, equipment, insecticides, and other factors of production; and include in the farm operation the crops and livestock that are best adapted to the farm and offer the best opportunity for profitable sale in available markets.

Mr. Jones adds that the reason for the decline in the parity ratio is that the prices of things farmers sell have gone down faster than the prices of things they have to buy. The present parity ratio of 100 is one point below a month earlier, nine points below the level of a year earlier, and far below the record high of 133 reached in October, 1946.

Names Omitted From Contest Winners In Last Report

The following gifts were omitted from the list of winners in the Truth and Honesty Contest in a recent issue of this paper according to Mrs. Russell A. Williams, C hairman. These places of business were the first to give their gifts.

One box of chocolate covered cherries given by Yellaw Front Store to Margaret Kemp.

One box Hershey bars given by Hill Grocery to all honorable mention students of the essay and poster contest.

One box of choclate covered cheries from Moatt's Market.

David Maddox won the dinner at Cafe Royal.

Jerry Studdard won the wash and grease job at Johnson's Service Station.

Much interest was shown in this contest, more than 200 students have entered. A startling statement was made by one of the students that truth and honesty are not like an old coat to be put on and taken off at will but is to be worn at all times.

The Truth and Honesty Committee was composed of Mrs. John R. Smith, Mrs. A. T Hickman, Mrs. W. B. Atkinson, Mrs. Russell Williams, Chairman.

The Old-Age Pension

The year 1949 will soon be gone, but it has not passed without much pleading for the security of our old people.

Governor Folsom carried this question before the Lawmaker's of Alabama and they refused to give any consideration to the needs of those people.

Those officials should be well remembered if they should offer themselvs for re-election in 1950.

I feel that the father and motherhood of Alabama is as deserving as those of other states.

They have cleared the farms and built the factories that has made this a great and wealthy state.

They handed the state down to this generation with confidence and with pride that they had helped to make Alabama a better place in which to live.

Taxes from their labor helped build better roads, better streets, better schools and better homes, and they should have in the wealth of this great state they helped to build.

It seems to me that there should be more young and middle age people fighting the battle for security for those old people.

Scurity for those is not only a moral obligation, but is a Christian obligation.

I cannot persuade myself to believe in any religion that keeps silent on these important issues.

I cannot believe in any form of religion that appears to be interested in a man's soul, and cares nothing for his welfare.

Is it that Christianity has turned over our God given resources to the politicians to measure out the blessings as they see fit, or is it that there is not enough pure and wonderful religion to meet the challenge?

A Christian will go to the polls as well as the church, and fight for justice for those that deserve, and are in need.

The year 1950 is just ahead, get your poll taxes paid, and get ready to turn down the politicians that turned down the welfare of the aged fathers and mothers of this great state.—W. L. Sanders.

Builders of Clanton

ONE OF A SERIES

"DOC" LEVINE

In the 15 years since he has been here, Doc Levine of the Levine Dry Goods Co. has seen Chilton County make great strides. The population has just about doubled, farm income has risen to great heights, and the community is building all the time.

One reason Clanton has grown is that merchants of public spirit like "Doc" have pitched in and put their shoulders to the wheel. A past president of Red Cross, an organizer of the community concerts, wartime head of the Truck and Tire Board, he is now chairman of the Crippled Children's Society.

Doc is excited on the subject of community spirit. He mentioned several times the "wonderful, wonderful cooperation" of the folks who want a bigger and better Clanton, and he added:

"There's no place in the world where a man can live as peacefully with his neighbors and feel as much at home as he would right here."

At his store in downtown Clanton, Doc has built up a county-wide business, and gives a lot of credit to his wife, Rose, who came with him from Birmingham in 1935 with their son, Myron. Myron is now in Chilton County High School where he is active in student affairs. Myron's ambition is to be a doctor.

When he gets away from the store, which he owns and operates, Doc will most likely be found at some committee meeting, but he dusts off his old fiddle once in a while, plays a little golf, and does some reading.

When you're talking to Doc, he always comes back around to the subject of crippled children. His work with the society has given him a burning desire to see those broken bodies mended.

"There are 268 crippled children registered in this county," he declared. "About 165 are receiving services through the Clinic. I hope everyone will make a New Year's resolution to pledge support to the work of rebuilding their crippled bodies."

Doc quotes reams of figures to show the agricultural progress made in Chilton in the past few years, and he believes that because of its geographical advantages and its community spirit, the county will soon reach a population of 10 or 12 thousand.

As the county advances and progresses, you can be sure that Doc Levine will be in there pitching, with his shoulder to the wheel. He is one of our outstanding "Builders of Clanton."

CHRISTMAS SYMBOL . . . The light of the deathless spirit of the Yule burns steadily in every mind at this season of the year, but nowhere is it more beautifully typified than in the delighted, wide-eyed look of a child experiencing the shimmering delights of his first Christmas.

Naturalized Citizen—That's Our Santa

Santa Claus as Americans know him is a naturalized American citizen, and as such is America's contribution to the Christmas legend. That's the opinion of Dr. Gustav O. Arlt of the department of Germanic languages on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"The Norwegians who settled early in America brought the first version of the modern Santa Claus, who in Europe had been known as St. Nicholas, but never adequately personally described," said Dr. Arlt.

"When the American Clement Moore described the jolly, rotund gentleman in minute detail in his poem " 'Twas The Night Before Christmas," he assumed the proportion of living legend and thus became an integral part of Christian legend and folklore," the professor stated.

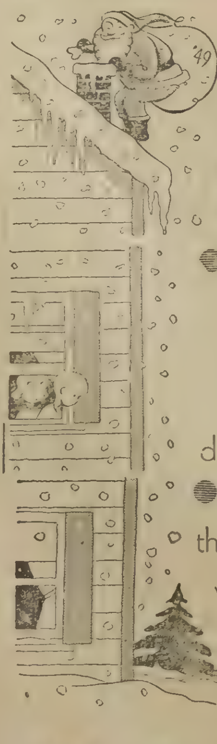
Archaeologists' Findings Bear Out Bible Stories

Archaeologists' findings ofttimes serve to further establish the authenticity of the story of Jesus. Only recently a group discovered the name of Jesus, carved before 70 A.D. and perhaps by an eyewitness to the crucifixion, among inscriptions on 11 early Christian burial urns found in a cave on the Jerusalem-Bethlehem road.

The urns may provide the "oldest archaeological record of Christianity" and an historical confirmation of the trial and crucifixion of Christ, the archaeologists said.

A sect of Hebrews, who followed Jesus, denounced Pontius Pilate and mourned the crucifixion of their leader, was believed to have left the writings on the urns in the cave.

The Hebrew and Aramic inscriptions contained common names like Mirian, Simeon, and Matti. The Greek inscriptions and symbols beside them contained references to Christianity and, it seems probable, to the crucifixion.



Yuletide Greetings

Naturally, there is a Santa Claus---just as naturally as there are children. No one even doubts that any more.

Just give way to the spirit of the season and your share of joy will come.

JEMISON HIGH DEFEATS CENTREVILLE 40-38

December 13th it took the J.H.S. basketball team a couple of extra periods to subdue the Bibb County boys. A clean, hard, but stubbornly fought game it was. The game was played at Centreville before a fairly large crowd, considering the unfavorable weather.

The Jemison Panthers then took on the fast breaking Maplesville quint the following Friday night, December 16th, and by a series of lucky breaks and a determined zeal they managed to salvage the game the last minute of play, when Cobb looped a foul shot to tie it up. With less than one half minute to go, Hayes came into possession of the ball and cut through a stubborn defense for a shot that sealed up the game by a 31 to 29 count.

This gives the J.H.S. team a record of three wins against one loss—to Calera High by a 15 to 14 score. The B team has won all four of their contests played thus far.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

That Clanton Fire Department under Charles Wade, is due a lot of credit. What could have been a local calamity was taken care of in about 30 minutes Christmas Day. We're talking about the fire at Hill's Grocery Co. With a little headway a fire in that block could wreck Clanton, but the local fire department members didn't make any mistakes. They worked with cool efficiency and took care of the situation in a minimum of time.

Clanton has the finest volunteer Fire Department we know of, and it isn't just pride of our locals that prompts the statement. Facts will bear us out.

We'll stack ours against anybody's.

It was told to us by those present at the time the fire started: A visitor to Clanton discovered the blaze and rushed up to Pud Walker to ask him where the fire alarm box was. He repeated the question two or three times before he realized that Pud was a deaf mute. Then he took Pud by the arm and led him to the front of the building and showed him what was happening. They said then Pud really took off. He was quite busy for the next half hour standing at the corner at the Piggly Wiggly getting the fire wagon rolling.

The local Highway Patrolmen tell us that the local residents are evidently looking for Santa to call next year. They were exceptionally good Christmas Day. There were five arrests by the Patrol. Three for driving while intoxicated and two for no driver's license.

Several wrecks marred the quiet of the day. A couple of automobiles were banged up pretty badly, but no one was seriously injured. Three or four wrecks were reported.

The cutest Christmas Card we received wasn't even signed. We know not if the sender was in a hurry and forgot to sign (her) name or if they were just full of Christmas Cheer and sent the card anonymous. At any rate it was written on a brown paper sack, and the lines went something like this:

Christmas Greetings: I know this card ain't fancy
And it sure ain't much to send,
But it brings a Merry Christmas
From a "pore, but honest" friend.

They Need Your Help

Polio epidemics in 1949 were the worst in the nation's history. More than 40,000 people were stricken in major outbreaks that raged across widespread areas from coast to coast.

The epidemics are over, but for thousands who must live with the disease, the tragedy of polio has hardly begun. Of last year's victims, 17,000 will require continued care and treatment this year. Many more thousands remain from other years.

Most of these patients are children. They are depending heavily upon the MARCH OF DIMES to furnish financial assistance in the long, hard pull along the road to rehabilitation.

They need your help!

March of Dimes receipts for last year totalled $26,000,000. Patient care alone in 1949 cost $31,000,000 in MARCH OF DIMES FUNDS!

How Much Will Be Needed In 1950?

No one can answer that question with any degree of certainty. But it is obvious that your contribution to the 1950 MARCH OF DIMES must be much greater than ever before, if sufficient funds are to be made available to the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis in its all-out fight against this dreadful, crippling disease.

The time to help is NOW—January 16-31—when the 1950 MARCH OF DIMES drive is in full swing. The time to think about polio is TODAY, when there is time to organize and plan our defense against the disease and place in capable hands the weapons that will ultimately spell victory over polio.

So, now you are being asked to contribute, give-and give unstintingly.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ANOREXIA NERVOSA

There are bigger words in the medical dictionary than anorexia nervosa but these will do for today's discussion. Anorezia is from the Greek words meaning "without apetite," obviously nervosa refers to the nerves. Anorexia nervosa is the term to describe a nervous disturbance in which the patient loses her appetite and consistently takes but little nourishment.

"Her" was used above because most of the victims are young girls usually with a psychoneurotic constitution. They are generally intelligent young women, highly sensitive, impulsive, willful, introspective, and emotionally unstable.

There is often a sudden loss of appetite following an acute emotional disturbance. Loss of appetite is but a part of a general reaction varying in different individuals, which also at times gives rise to nausea and vomiting diarrhea, pallor, faintness, flushing, sweating, palpitation and smothering sensations. Loss of appetite frequently results in extreme loss of weight. Observers begin to fear the presence of tuberculosis, cancer, hyperthyroidsm, or other serious disease.

In most cases there is rapid improvement on relief of the cause of worry and strain. Failure of adaptation to environment, homesickness, morbid concern of minor physical symptons and insecurity as to position, are familiar causes of anorexia nervosa. These patients need understanding and encouragement available through psychotherapy. If you consistently have no appetite, your physician should be consulted.

Allen Candidate For Lieutenant Governor

GADSDEN, Ala.—State Senator James B. Allen, Gadsden lawyer, will be a candidate for Lieutenant Governor in the 1950 Democratic primary.

Senator Allen, named "outstanding member of the 1949 Legislature" by newsmen at the close of the session this year, has issued a statement confirming his intention to make the race for Alabama's second highest elective office.

"It is my intention at the proper time to qualify as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the May, 1950, primary," Allen said.

His statement continued: "The four years beginning in January, 1951, will offer greater opportunities for the growth and progress of our State than have existed during any comparable period in our history. If the people honor me with this office I will strive at all times to so conduct its affairs as to reflect credit on them and on the State of Alabama. I invite every believer in good government to help their cause by supporting me in this race. A vote for James B. Allen for Lieutenant Governor will not be so much a vote for me as a vote for the principles of good government for which I stand."

SEN. JAMES B ALLEN

Allen was born in Gadsden Dec. 28, 1912, and was educated in the public schools of Gadsden and at the University of Alabama. He is the son of the late G. C. Allen, prominent Alabama lawyer for many years and a former state legislator.

Senator Allen was elected to the State Legislature from Etowah County, in 1938 and again in 1942. In 1946 he was elected to the State Senate from Etowah and St. Clair Counties.

He resigned from the Legislature after the 1943 session to volunteer in the U. S. Navy, and served in the Atlantic and Pacific Theatres and in the Philippine and Okinawa invasions. He is a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The End Is Near

After a disaster to one of the United States torpedo boats, two bluejackets of the United States navy lay side by side in the hospital. Both of them were mortally wounded. In his awful agony one poor fellow raved and blasphemed. But the other boy made of other stuff, and he said: "Hold hard, shipmate! It will soon be over. The end is near. We have but a little time to live. Let us be decent." Our hearts go out in love and sympathy for the one whose pain had virtually driven him crazy. But we do admire the quiet spirit and resolution of the other to meet the end with a brave heart and mind.

REV. HICKMAN

We are coming to the last hours of 1949. The end is near. And that should set us thinking. Does the end find you a better man than the beginning? Are you better prepared to meet the New Year than you were a year ago? If you are not better prepared to meet the problems of the New Year, then something is wrong. The old is behind us with all the lessons of experience; we have learned many things; even though many of us have learned the hard way. But let us use the failures of the past as stepping-stones for the future. Be careful in setting your sails, and be sure they start you off in the right direction. The voyage across 1950 may be rough sailing, but if we are careful in setting our sails we will make it.

In Eccl. 7:8 we find these words, "Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof." So with many people the end of 1949 is better than the beginning. During the year some time, they were converted to God They confessed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. They became new creatures in Christ Jesus; baptized and thus raised to walk in a new life. To such people the end of this year finds them better off than the beginning; and too, they are better prepared to travel across the untrodden paths of 1950. Let us hope and pray that many more will do likewise during the coming year.

Here I am wishing for all my readers a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Will you leave these to your children?

Men have died to leave you these 4 symbols of freedom:

A door key—your right to lock your door against illegal government force and prying.

(Fourth Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

A Holy Bible—symbol of your right to worship as you wish.

(First Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

A pencil—freedom to speak or write what you think, whether you agree with the government or not.

(First Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

And a free ballot—your right to choose the kind of government you want—your protection against government tyranny.

(Article I, U. S. Constitution)

These symbols have no meaning in countries where government controls everything—for there the individual man or woman has no freedoms.

But there are people who are trying to give the U.S. government more and more control over American life. "Let the government start," they say, "by taking over certain industries and services—the doctors, the railroads, the electric light and power companies."

Most of these people—like most Americans—don't want a socialistic U.S.A. They have other reasons for government control. But when government, moving step by step, controls enough things, you have a socialist government, whether you want it or not. You'll be controlled, too. Then what freedoms will you be able to pass on to your children?

Lutheran Ladies Aid Xmas Party—
Members of the Lutheran Ladies Aid were entertained on Wednesday afternoon, December 21st, in Clanton, Ala., when Mrs. Erle Ellis gave them a Christmas party at her home, which will long be remembered by all who attended. The home was artistically decorated with Christmas ideas. The program consisted of the reading of the Christmas Story by Miss Naemi Turnquist, after which the group sang Christmas carols. Mrs. Ellis then gave a musical program, assisted by Henry Grady Heflin, Jr. The guests then enjoyed the gifts which had been placed under the Christmas tree in the living room. Numbers were drawn and each guest received a gift. They were then ushered into the dining room where delicious refreshments were served, buffet style.

President Truman, at his home in Independence, Mo., pushed a button to turn on this holiday brilliance by remote control. The White House shows dimly in the background, framed by the tree and huge Christmas candles.

Prepare for the eternal life in Heaven rather than torment, for as sure as there's a Heaven to gain, there's a hell to shun.

RECRUITING NEWS

The graduates of Chilton County high schools were urged to consider the Army's new Career Guidance program in a statement made here today by Sgt. James Aussant.

"Never before has the young man of 17 or 18 been faced with such a wealth of opportunity as that offered him by the Army," he said.

"The openings are fewer, but it will pay well to check closely with high school officials or personnel in the recruiting station here in Clanton for latest information on quotas and opening dates," Sgt. Aussant stated.

4 YEAR OLD BOY WAS WASTING AWAY

Bobby Jean

My son Bobby Jean, 4, had been suffering from vomiting spells. Each attack sent him to bed with fever for 2 or 3 days. We tried all kinds of medicines but he continued to lose weight and grow pale and weak. We started giving him HADACOL and since the first dose he has never had a vomiting spell or fever. He gained 4 pounds in 2 weeks and is full of pep and energy. It is really remarkable how HADACOL has helped my child.

Mrs. Joseph Prejean
RFD No. 3, Box 231D
Beaumont, Texas

IS HADACOL A MIRACLE FORMULA?

No, there is nothing miraculous or mysterious about HADACOL. The potent health-giving benefits of HADACOL are based on a proven scientific fact: Lack of sufficient vitamins and minerals in most diets leaves the door WIDE OPEN to diseases and weaknesses of all kinds. HADACOL, the scientifically balanced dietary supplement, helps to CLOSE that door and KEEP it closed.

BOBBY JEAN JUST ONE OF THOUSANDS!

Had is not been for HADACOL, the story of Mrs. Prejean's little boy, as told in her letter above, might have had a tragic ending. His system was run down to the danger point. Medicines and treatments didn't help. What he really needed was a supply of "building materials" for his poor little wasted body—and that's what he got from HADACOL. Today, like thousands of others, he is healthy again!

WHO SHOULD TAKE HADACOL?

HADACOL is not a medicine. It is a concentrated FOOD formula containing all the important vitamins in the B Complex group as well as these vital minerals: iron, calcium, phosphorus and manganese. If you are not getting your full daily quota of these essential dietary components, you may be heading straight into danger—weakness, loss of appetite, and then disease!

Registrar C. A. Rutherford came before the Court advising that according to the law no Precinct should have more than 350 qualified electors. According to recent polling lists it appears that several Precincts have more than this number of electors and that the Court of County Commissioners is going to have to re-apportion the lists of qualified electors in Precincts which have over 350 electors listed. It appears that Precinct No. 4-1 is the most conjested with approximately 2,000 qualified electors.

MAPLESVILLE NEWS

Sunday School Class Party—

Mrs. C. C. Bates honored the members of her intermediate Sunday School class on Dec. 25th with a lovly Christmas party. All members of her class were present. They were: Lois Taylor, Artherell Johnson, Betty Payne, Shirley Chambers, Betty Lovelady, Wilma Jean Clark, Jeanette and Elizabeth Dennis, and Mabeline Sealy. Other guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ogee Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. G. L Huston and little Gene Gore.

Mrs. Bates entertained with games, then gifts were exchanged after which Mrs. Bates served delicious plates to her guests. Little Gene Gore who is only four years old always attends a party given by Mrs. Bates as he is a next door neighbor and gets an invitation because he is very popular with the intermediate girls. After the plates were ready to serve, Gene, in his sweet and childish manner said he would return thanks to God for the nice food. Mrs. Bates and the girls feel that their parties would be incomplete without little Gene.

Mrs. Bates had her home very beautifully decorated with the usual Christmas decorations, a lighted tree, with electric window decorations, which were indeed very beautiful, green pot plants and seasonal flowers were displayed throughout her lovely home.

Mrs. Bates is very much interested in teaching and leading the girls to live true, useful and Christian lives and loves them very much, and if they will follow her example and heed her teaching, they will truly be Christian women, which we need so much today.

The girls are very much devoted to their teacher, Mrs. Bates, and they always count it a happy privilege to be invited into her home.

Selecting Right Slops Important

Auburn, Ala. — Are you one of the many women who carefully try on dresses before buying but choose your underslips simply by the size on the label?

"If you are," says Levice Ellis, A. P. I. Extension Service clothing specialist, "remember that this kind of buying will not insure a good fit."

She points out that a size 14 of one make is likely to fit very differently from a size 14 of another make. A good fit makes a slip more comfortable, makes it wear longer, and is important to the dress worn over it.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank everyone that contributed in word and deed in our bereavement of the recent death of our daughter and sister, Guesna Bradley Mr. and Mrs. Coburn Bradley and children.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Milk cream that turns sour is a left-over with a useful future. Sour milk can be used to replace sweet milk in baking, and it will give lightness, tenderness, and flavor to almost any hot bread, as well as to gingerbread and spice cake.

About 50 per cent more light is given by a white or ivory lamp shade than by a dark one which absorbs and wastes light.

Good vegetable buys this month are spinach, snap beans, kale and canned corn.

Safety, comfort, and convenience should be your guides in choosing a skirt for wear around the house.

Beware Of Cottonseed Saved For 1950 Crops

Auburn, Ala. — Some farmers had germination tests made on their cottonseed harvested in 1949. Several of the tests ran as low as 32 per cent.

With this in mind, and since last fall was a bad season to harvest cottonseed, O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist, urges all cotton growers to send a sample of their seed to the State Seed Laboratory, Montgomery, Alabama for free testing.

Andrew adds that cottonseed should have a germination of 80 per cent or higher.

Cottonseed Hulls Cut Cost of Steer's Feed

Auburn, Ala. — Results of a recent test show that when cottonseed hulls replace up to 60 per cent of the alfalfa contained in a steer's fattening ration, equal or superior results are obtained at a lower feed cost.

The most recent of these experiments was conducted by the Texas Experiment Station in El Paso Valley. It was found that elimination of bloat and the lower gains are the advantages favoring the feeding of cottonseed hulls while maintaining the same rate of gain and degree of finish.

W. H. Gergory, A.P.I. Extension Service livestock specialist, in full agreement with steer feeding authorities of the Texas Experiment Station, recommends that some alfalfa hay or other Vitamin A-containing roughage be fed to avoid Vitamin A deficiency when cottonseed hulls are fed steers.

Oven-Baked Meal And Onions With Cheese

On a chilly day there's nothing like an oven-baked meal, according to Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist.

"Onions prepared with a cheese sauce fit in with such a menu," she declares. "Peel, wash and cook 6 to 8 midium sized onions until tender in a large amount of boiling salted water. Make a cheese sauce of two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of flour, one cup of milk, and one-half teaspoon of salt. When it thickens, add one cup of grated cheese. When the onions are done, drain and add them to the sauce. Pour into a casserole. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan and add one-half cup dry bread crumbs, stirring rapidly until all the crumbs are well buttered. Sprinkle them over the onions and place casserole in a hot oven, 325 degrees, until crumbs are browned.

To complete the meal, serve oven-baked pork chops, baked sweetpotatoes, cabbage and grape salad, rolls and baked apples.

Chemists of the USDA suggest adding two or three pounds of hydrogenated vegetable oil to each 50 pounds of home rendered lard as a simple and practical way to keep it from becoming rancid.

Brief Farm News

It rarely ever pays to shuck or grind corn for fattening hogs since they have mighty good sets of corn shuckers and grinders themselves.

Wormy calves eat but fail to grow or gain, their coats are dull, and usually they have a marked unthrifty appearance. In some cases there will be a noticeable swelling under the jaw.

Peach and plum trees that have not been treated for borers should be treated as soon as possible.

A cord of dry hardwood will produce the same amount of heat as a ton of coal. Wood is a clean fuel, makes cleaner smoke, heats faster, and makes less ashes, and unlike coal and oil, it can be taken from the same area year after year.

Those interested in results secured by 66 Extension-TVA test demonstration farmers should ask the local county agent for the Extension Service publication, "New Wealth From Soils."

A Butler County farmer planted five acres of sweetpotatoes from which he sould $997.50 worth. His expenses, including labor, amounted to $512.75, leaving a net income of $484.75 from the five acres.

Today's shotgun shells contain fast-burning, smokeless powder, making them too powerful for guns made of Damascus steel.
